ROKs, Reds in Deadlock on Finger Ridge

Flame-throwers Burn Chinese Out of Forts but They Strike Back

SEOUL, Sunday — (AP). South Korean troops seized Chinese Communist soldiers out of their bunkers and tunnels with flame-throwers this morning but failed in their attempts to recapture Finger Ridge on Korea's Central front.

The two forces battled to no decision in predawn darkness and the fight still was going on shortly before noon Sunday.

An Allied officer said the South Koreans reached the crest of Finger Ridge several times but couldn't hold it against the Chinese counterattacks.

During the night twin-engine Allied bombers attacked a Red supply center near Pukhng, deep in North Korea on the east coast. Returning pilots reported 70 secondary explosions, indicating they had hit ammunition or fuel dumps.

PRESSURE MAINTAINED

Farther south the B-26s bombed Communist supply lines and reported at least 95 Red vehicles destroyed.

The night-flying bombers were keeping the pressure on the Reds after Allied warplanes plastered targets deep in North Korea Saturday from the big Suho power plant on the south bank of the Yalu to the forward city of Suohung, a large supply center.

On the battlefield, South Korean troops smashed assaults by two Chinese companies on Capitol Hill, the sensitive central sector hot spot.

SABRES WIN, 12-8

And, in its weekly assessment of Communist losses, the U. S. Fifth Air Force announced American Sabre jet pilots destroyed 14 MiGs between Sept. 6 and 12—the biggest kill for a week in nearly six months. The Air Force said no Sabres were lost.

The big raid on the Suho hydroelectric plant, which the Reds have been repairing since it was knocked out by fighter-bombers June 23, was the northernmost penetration by U. S. B-29 Superfortresses. Thirty-five bombers dumped 350 tons of explosives on the plant despite heavy anti-aircraft fire.

American carrier-based planes struck at a troop concentration center at Hoeryong, a few miles south of the Yalu River boundary between Korea and Red Manchuria and 41 miles southwest of Soviet Siberia.

The Navy reported eight of 30 buildings in the area were destroyed and the others damaged.

ONE KILLED, 8 HURT IN KOJE CAMP RIOT

PUSAN, Korea, Sunday (AP) — South Korean soldiers Saturday killed one Communist prisoner and injured eight others as unrest flared again on bloody Kojé Island.

An Army announcement said prisoners in one of the compounds began milling about and shouting insults. Two platoons of South Korean soldiers entered the compound after the Reds ignored an order to disperse.

"Force was used to restore order," the Army said. "Eight prisoners of war were injured and one other was hospitalized and later died as a result of his injuries. There were no United Nations injuries."

LAC SAYS:

The School Problem Increases

Our local school head tells us we must have two new high schools within three years. No money is available without another bond issue.

On the November ballot voters are asked to increase the state contribution for average daily attendance of students by 50 per cent. This will come from the state sales tax. On that same ballot is a state bond issue calling for $185 million. The $250 million which was for the same purpose voted three years ago is all gone.

The cost of schools is spiraling due to higher costs of building, equipment and teacher pay. And yet buildings, equipment and teachers are unused about a fourth of the time. No private enterprise could afford such wastefulness. No government enterprise should.

We are again bringing up a very controversial and unpopular subject. The tragic waste of unused space while

Volcano off Mexico Spewing Gas, Ashes

SAN DIEGO—(AP). Earth's newest active volcano on uninhabited San Benedicto Island, 780 miles south of San Diego, is belching clouds of boiling gray smoke and gas every 20 minutes, a geologist reported here Saturday after flying over the erupting volcano.

Dr. Robert S. Dietz, geologist at the Navy Electronics Laboratory here, described the volcano, first in the Pacific basin east of Hawaii in historic times, as of "prime scientific importance."

He said that, together with other new information about the ocean floor, it may point to one of the major features of changes in the earth's crust.

"Between explosions," Dietz said, "the crater was nearly clear of smoke and we were able to see clearly into it. Then, after a few minutes, there was a gigantic explosion that sent clouds of smoke and gas belching into the air."

"We flew through the edge of the smoke cloud and smelled hydrogen sulfide, the odor given off by rotten eggs. The presence of hydrogen sulfide is somewhat suggestive of the waning phase of an eruption. It may quiet down within a few weeks."

Dietz said the biggest explosions probably are the volcano "has cleared its throat." Cataclysmic explosions such as might set up tidal waves are not expected, he added.

Every explosion, he said, rained down a shower of yellow ash which covers the island completely, probably to a depth of several feet.

He said that the volcano's cone, which in approximately six weeks has reared its summit 1050

All-States Picnic to Lure 75,000 This Afternoon

An estimated 75,000 persons, representing the 48 states, Alaska and Hawaii, will gather in Bixby Park today for the annual picnic of the All States Society.

Flying over the heads of the picnicers will be the flags of each state and the two territories.

Television and radio performers will entertain in a program which will be opened at 1 p. m. by a concert by the Long Beach Municipal Band. Among the entertainers are Johnny Standly, comedian on the Horace Heidt radio and TV shows; Irene and her Comedy Canine Review; and the Black Brothers, acrobats.

Songs and music will be provided by the Pine Ridge Sisters trio, Western singer Whitey Knight, Marion Darlington, Long Beach whistler, and Cornetist Don Pratt.

Lloyd E. Keller, past president of the All States Society, will be master of ceremonies.

Downey Man Killed in Race

TULARE, Calif.—(AP). Jim McCaughan of Downey was killed Saturday night when he lost control of his motorcycle and crashed into the retaining wall in the eighth race at the Tulare County Fair.

The cyclist was starting the fourth lap of the scheduled 10-lap main event when McCaughan crashed into the wall and bounced back onto the track. At least six other motorcycles ran over McCaughan and three other cyclists were injured in the pile-up.

Bob Smith of Castro Valley was in critical condition at Tulare District Hospital, and Bob Emmer, Fresno, suffered a broken arm. Peter Duke of Tulare was treated for minor injuries.

Schuman-Plan Powers Act to Unify Europe

Work Begins Monday on Draft of Charter for Confederation

STRASBOURG, France — (AP). The Schuman Plan Assembly turned itself into a constitutional convention here Saturday to promote the age-old dream of a United Europe.

The legislators of the six-nation coal-steel pool, lifting their sights from industrial problems, decided to start work at 10 a. m. Monday on a draft of a European federation or confederation.

The 78 representatives from the parliaments of France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg fixed March 10, 1953, as their deadline for finishing the draft.

This decision came in a landslide indorsement of a resolution adopted by the foreign ministers of the six nations in Luxembourg last Wednesday, asking the assemblymen to take up the task.

The vote was 58-4, with two abstentions.

In accord with the foreign ministers' request, the assemblymen agreed to take in nine more members—three each from France, West Germany and Italy—when they sit as a special ad hoc assembly in preparing the unification blueprint. The French and Italian delegations chose their extra men immediately; the Germans expected to name theirs Monday.

This padding brings the total membership to 87, the number provided in the European Defense Community Treaty of the same six nations for a similar mission.

The assembly also agreed to invite other member nations of the Council of Europe—notably Britain—to send observers to sit in on the work of the constitutional convention. It said this would be done in line with Britain's Eden Plan for other European communities within the 14-nation council.

Such an invitation is expected to be near the top of the special assembly's agenda Monday. First it must organize itself and, it is hoped, pick something better than "Ad Hoc" for a name.

Paul-Henri Spaak of Belgium, president of the Schuman Plan Assembly, told assemblymen he wanted the new assembly to elect the same officials and adopt the same rules of procedure as its parent body to simplify liaison and gain time. This suggestion is expected to be adopted.

The Schuman Plan Assembly ended its initial session as such Saturday afternoon after appointing a 23-man committee to prepare its next session here in January.

This committee is also to maintain contact with the Schuman Plan high authority, or executive branch, at Luxembourg in the interim.

Saturday's vote represented a smashing victory for Spaak, who has placed himself at the head of a group of ardent federalists.

Today She Is a Man

THIS BRITISH WOMAN doctor threw England's nobility officials into a dither this week with her announcement that she has completed "all legal formalities" for a change in her sex. In the future, Dr. Elibabeth Forbes-Sempill will be known as Dr. Ewan Forbes-Sempill. By becoming a male, she says she legally becomes heir to a Scottish baronetcy held by her brother. DESERT WINDS TURN ON HEAT; 94 HIGH SEEN

Back in Utah and Nevada they're cooking on high pressure so the predicted Long Beach temperature today is 94, advises the U. S. Weather Bureau.

The heat from those states, combined with the warmth picked up in the Southern California deserts, is enough to keep this region's sea breezes at sea, instead of passing them into this port.

High here Saturday was a sizzling 93, after Friday's cool 78, and the weatherman predicted continued hot weather for Monday.

"It's too early to tell," the forecaster said, "but chances are the heat won't last as long and as consistently as it did last time."

The "last time" saw temperatures around the 90-mark for 12 days.

Lifeguard headquarters here tabulated Saturday's beach crowd at 30,000, "a fairly small one," and reported the water temperature was down to 62, some seven degrees below the season high.

Seven 'See Monster off Flying Disc'

SUTTON, W. Va.—(AP). Seven persons reported, Saturday, seeing a 10-foot glowing "Frankenstein-like monster" which gave off a sickening metallic smell when they climbed a wooded hill in an isolated sector near here.

Friday night to investigate reports that a flying saucer had landed.

Mrs. Kathryn May, of Flatwood, W. Va., said she and six boys, including a 17-year-old member of the National Guard, climbed a hill in back of town after her two small sons told her they had seen a bright object come down.

However, state police laughed the reports off as hysteria. They said the so-called monster had grown from seven to 17 feet in 24 hours.

Gene Lemon, a member of the National Guard, was leading the group up the hill when he said he saw what appeared to be a pair of bright eyes in a tree. He said he thought at first it was a "possum or a coon" but when he shone his light on it he saw a 10-foot monster with a "blood-red face and a green body that seemed to glow."

Mrs. May and the other persons in the group said Lemon let out a scream and fell over backwards. She said the monster, which appeared to be about four feet wide floated toward them, moving with a floating, bouncing motion.

"There was an overpowering gaseous smell that burned my nostrils and made me sick," Mrs. May said. "Several of the party passed out and vomited for several hours after returning to town."

Both Mrs. May and Lemon described the thing as having the shape of a man, blood-red face, bright green body, protruding eyes, hands forward, and seeming to give off an eerie light. They said it had a black shield affair in the shape of an ace of spades behind it and wore what looked like a pleated metallic skirt.

Feuding Party Battles Over Label on Ballot

Telephones Buzz as Loyalists Strive to Squelch Revolt

AUSTIN, Texas—(AP). Angry loyal Democrats went to court Saturday to keep Republican Dwight Eisenhower off the Texas ballot as a Democratic nominee for President.

They succeeded at least temporarily. District Judge Jack Roberts granted the backers of Adlai Stevenson a temporary restraining order to keep the hastily organized Texas Democratic Party from Eisenhower as its nominee off the ballot.

The self-styled Loyal Democrats accused the new party of trying to steal the "Democratic" name of the traditional party that has been dominant in Texas since 1845.

The order keeps Secretary of State Jack Ross from certifying the new party and its candidates until Judge Roberts hears arguments Tuesday morning and reaches a final decision.

PARLEY BY PHONE

Attorneys filed the suit on behalf of Stevenson and his running mate, Sen. John Sparkman of Alabama, this morning after telephone conferences yesterday and last night with Speaker of the House, Carl Albert, National Democratic Chairman Stephen Mitchell, and other pro-administration Democrats.

Austin lawyers John Cofer and Fagan Dickson, two leaders of the Loyal Democrats, talked the judge into granting the temporary order.

The plaintiffs said the attempt to put two Democratic columns on the ballot was an effort on the part of "disgruntled Democrats" to confuse voters and to cause "an unfair decision in the general election to be held in November."

IKE RALLY IN AUSTIN

While arguments are being heard in court Tuesday, another Eisenhower movement will be initiated in Austin.

Tom Sealy, Midland attorney, University of Texas regent, and close political friend of Gov. Allan Shivers, called a meeting for Tuesday morning to organize a "Texas Democrats for Eisenhower Movement."

Sealy sided with the Governor at the state Democratic convention at Amarillo last Tuesday, insisting that Stevenson be certified as the nominee on the Democratic ticket. But Sealy said then that he personally opposed Stevenson and would support Eisenhower.

ORIGINATED IN DALLAS
The convention, by two-to-one majority, supported Shivers' demand that Stevenson be put on the ballot as the Democratic nominee as a matter of legal right and political morality.

However, the convention adopted a resolution urging Democrats to work for Eisenhower's election.

A group of about 10 Dallas citizens met Wednesday in a private office and organized the "Texas Democratic Party."

They nominated Eisenhower and Nixon and filed their names and a slate of electors duplicating that of the Republican party. They also cross-filed a full ticket of Democratic nominees for statewide office, including Shivers and U.S. senatorial candidate Price Daniel.

Supt. of Schools Douglas A. Newcomb of Long Beach today reveals his endorsement of a series of articles entitled "Your Child and Your School," written by Mrs. Irene Patal.

The series of five starts Monday in The Independent.

Of the series, which deals with preparation of children for schools, Supt. Newcomb says:

"Many parents and the public generally will enjoy reading the articles.

"Mrs. Patal is a teacher and a parent and is acquainted with the many problems and questions involved in helping youth succeed in school. Her answers and comments are presented in simple fascinating fashion."

You'll want to begin reading this series in Monday morning's Independent.

Sensational Discovery Made by AEC Physicists

NEW YORK—(AP). The New York Times says atomic physicists at the Brookhaven Laboratory have made a discovery that is "a sensation not equalled since the announcement early in 1939 of the discovery of uranium fission."

The Times, in a story by Science Writer William L. Laurence, says a team of physicists has discovered a new principle which would make possible the building of a new high-energy accelerator.

The accelerator, Laurence says, would be capable of reaching an energy of 100 billion electron-volts.

The most powerful accelerator now in existence has reached an energy of two billion, 300 million electron-volts, the Times says.

The Times says Dr. Leland J. Haworth, director of the Atomic Energy Commission's Brookhaven Laboratory on Long Island, confirmed the facts of the discovery but emphasized that construction of such an accelerator was not contemplated at this time.

"The new strong-focusing, high-energy accelerator is expected to lead to the attainment of entirely new levels of knowledge about the material universe, its constitution, origins and future," Laurence's story says.

"When and if built, and there is little doubt that it will be, it will put man for the first time in the business of creating protons and neutrons, as well as electrons and mesons, principal building blocks of the material universe, on a grand scale."

Red Press Opens Fire as NATO War Games Begin

GOUROCK, Scotland — (AP) A powerful fleet of 160 warships moved out Saturday to battle stations in the North Sea for the Atlantic Pact's first big war games and promptly drew the fire of Moscow's editors.

The Soviet Army newspaper Red Star charged that the exercise, Operation Mainbrace, was aggressively aimed by the Pentagon at clamping control over the Baltic, to the detriment of Russia and other Baltic powers. Moscow dispatches said the tone of the wistful attack indicated Russia may protest officially to Norway and Denmark, among the eight nations taking part.

Later Moscow dispatches reported the Soviet press on the opening day of Mainbrace widened the propaganda attack on the U. S. far beyond the maneuver locality. The attack appeared to be unusually heavy, even for the Moscow papers.

Various Moscow papers during the day accused the U. S. of: sending rotten and dust-laden wheat and poor-grade grain to India and preventing India from buying wheat from other countries; "criminal plans" in the Balkans; torturing Korean prisoners of war and destroying homes and dairy farms in Korea; stationing soldiers in Britain who rape and rob the British people; exerting "gross pressure" on Iran; colonizing Libya; encouraging a "super-cartel of cannon kings" in the formation of the European coal-steel pool; and forcing the Scandinavian countries to hold provocative maneuvers in the Baltic and along the Norwegian coast.

"BATTLE BEGINS"

Reports from Copenhagen, Denmark, indicated the "Battle of Bornholm" began Saturday night as the first war games engagement of Operation Mainbrace.

Joining of battle at 9 p. m. was announced in a communique of the Danish Admiralty. Bornholm is a Danish island in the Baltic Sea.

More than 85,000 men, including 40,000 U. S. sailors and marines, are involved in the operation, along with British, Canadian, American, Belgian, Dutch, French, Norwegian and Danish warships.

Next week, concurrent maneuvers by 250,000 British, Canadian, Belgian, Dutch, Norwegian and Danish troops will get under way in the British Zone of Germany along the Danish frontier.

More than 25,000 Swedish troops and nearly all Sweden's available warships and planes started maneuvers in the Baltic last Thursday and will not wind up until Monday.

Ex-Sen. Downey in Coma Briefly From Indigestion

PASADENA — Former U. S. Sen. Sheridan Downey, 68, was hospitalized briefly Saturday for what his doctor diagnosed as an attack of acute indigestion.

Downey's son-in-law, John Dinsmore, said he was driving Downey to the office of Dr. Walter K. MacLaren when the indigestion became acute.

The attack put the former senator into a coma.

Dinsmore said, however, that Downey "recovered nicely" and was up and around his home Saturday afternoon.

Downey, California senator from 1938 to 1950, now is representing the City of Long Beach in the tideland dispute between the federal government and the states.

It will probably carry because it has a few crumbs included for every area in the county.

IT TELLS of covering drainage ditches in the Lakewood area.

But actually it covers only the big ditch that runs parallel to Bellflower north of Spring St.

THESE DRAINAGE ditches throughout many new subdivisions are a constant terror to mothers.

Anyone taking a look at them during a heavy rain would shudder at the danger to little children.

SURELY with so much money involved these hazards should be eliminated.

No new subdivision should be allowed that leaves them as a hazard.

Douglas Workers Voting on Strike

SANTA MONICA. — (AP) International Association of Machinists workers at Douglas Aircraft Co. plants here and in nearby El Segundo will hold separate mass meetings today to discuss plans for a strike called for Monday.

Meanwhile the AFL union's strike at the big Lockheed Aircraft plant in Burbank went into its sixth day with no settlement in sight.

Douglas Santa Monica workers held two meetings Friday. Night-shift employees, meeting first, approved the negotiating committee's turn-down of a company offer of 5 cents an hour wage boost.

Douglas IAM workers want 10 cents, plus a union shop and other benefits.

Day-shift employees, with many reportedly voicing opposition to a strike, reached no decision on the company offer. Both shifts meet today in secret session for a final ballot.

El Segundo workers vote in a separate meeting on the same proposal. The IAM represents a majority of the 34,000 employees at the two Douglas plants. Present pay ranges from $1.32 to $2.54 an hour.

The company issued a statement which said in part:

"The obvious revolt of the majority of our workers both in and outside the bargaining unit against a strike action without a clear cut mandate from the membership is the best proof that the majority of the workers as well as the company prefer a peaceful settlement of the present dispute."

At Lockheed, where 25,000 IAM members are out, production is virtually at a standstill. Picketing has been peaceful.

Gen. Marshall Says U.S. to Stay Until Europe Safe

PARIS — (AP) Gen. George C. Marshall, presiding at a symbolic dedication of memorials in U. S. military cemeteries around the world said Saturday that America will stay in Europe as long as European security is threatened.

Marshall—wartime U. S. chief of staff, known throughout Europe as the originator of the Marshall Plan for economic aid in the troubled postwar period, and organizer of the North Atlantic Treaty—spoke only as chairman of the American Battle Monuments Commission.

Speaking at the U. S. Military Cemetery in suburban Suresnes, Gen. Marshall said great strides already had been made toward a spiritual unification of Europe.

"The men who lie buried here," he said, "in some world beyond our conception, may be unaware of the efforts we are making to promote peace and understanding. But I hope they are deaf to the propaganda demands that we living Americans go home and dedication of memorials in U. Sen. Morse Won't Campaign for Ike

WASHINGTON — (AP) Republican Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon, who announced some time ago he would campaign for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Saturday said he has had a change of heart and now plans to sit this one out.

Morse, self-described liberal Republican, told reporters his present intention is to spend the time between now and election day listening to the radio, watching television and showing his cattle at county fairs.

The Oregon Senator was one of Eisenhower's early backers for the Presidential nomination.

GE, Union Agree on Higher Wages

NEW YORK — (AP) The sprawling General Electric Co. and the United Electrical Workers Union (Ind.) have reached contract agreement giving 50,000 workers wage increase of 7 1/2 to 13 cents an hour.

The company, announcing the pact Saturday in New York, said the pay boost amounts to 5.76 per cent and will be effective Monday, upon approval of the Wage Stabilization Board.

The present wage averages $1.75 an hour.

UE International Representative Joseph Dermody said the contract must be ratified also by the union's conference board, which will meet next week, and by affected locals.

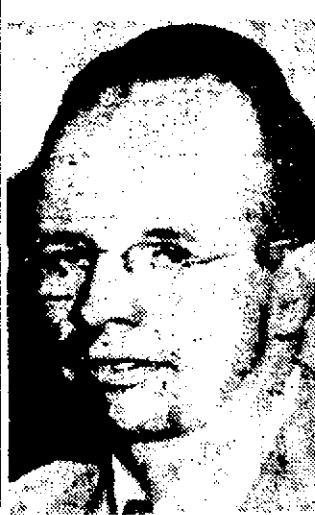

In New York, L. R. Boulware, GE's vice president in charge of employee relations, said the same increase had been offered to about 200,000 employees.

Fifty-seven unions in the company have accepted it, he said, the only major holdout being UE's rival, the CIO International Union of Electrical Workers.

Boulware said the company will meet again with IUE-CIO Monday afternoon at GE's New York headquarters.

IUE claims some 70,000 members in 60 GE plants; UE claims about 50,000 in 50 plants.

Church of Christ Defies Ban by Italian Police

ROME — (AP) A determined handful of American-led Church of Christ worshippers announced Saturday night they would hold regular services today in open defiance of an Italian police ban.

Cline R. Paden of Brownfield, Texas, who heads the church in Rome, said the ban was part of a "completely unexpected" nationwide crackdown against the small Protestant group under laws of the Fascist era.

The Alessandria Church was closed "by force" last Sunday, the Rome church was ordered to close, a third church was given one month to shutter and the other 19 Church of Christ congregations are probably to be closed, Paden declared.

In Alessandria's police headquarters, Dr. Michele Lomazzo said police had prevented "an unauthorized gathering for religious practices" by the Church of Christ last Sunday. He denied the use of force.

One of Paden's fellow missionaries, Carl Mitchell of Los Angeles, Calif., said the Alessandria police forcefully prevented 25 members of the congregation from entering the church, tore down the church sign and roughly handled four Church of Christ representatives in an effort to make them stop singing hymns.

Official action appeared to be limited to the Church of Christ. Other Protestant denominations, including the Baptists and Methodists, have operated in Italy for years without official action against them.

An informed Italian source said friction with the Church of Christ arose over missionary activities and efforts at conversion in this predominantly Roman Catholic nation.

The United States Embassy said the Church of Christ representatives have been instructed to present a full report and "we will see what we can do."

Eisenhower Calls on Aids for Crusade

NEW YORK—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower rallied his workers behind him Saturday for the beginning Sunday of a circuit-riding "peace" crusade through the politically vital Midwest.

Describing himself as only the spearhead of a movement for "honesty and integrity" in government, the Republican presidential nominee told volunteer supporters that a crusading spirit will go much further than political organization toward winning a victory in November.

"I believe in organization but I believe more in spirit and that is what I see here today," Eisenhower told about 250 members of the Citizens for Eisenhower-Nixon, who had gathered from all sections of the country to plan a get-out-the-vote drive.

Preparing to depart tomorrow on a 12-day, 12-state train tour, Eisenhower cast himself in the role of a missionary taking the political gospel of peace and honesty in government to the people at wayside stops.

NO STOPS

He will make 56 of these stops, besides major appearances in St. Paul, Minn.; Des Moines, Ia.; Omaha, Neb.; Kansas City, Mo.; St. Louis, Mo.; Louisville, Ky.; Cincinnati, Columbus and Cleveland, O.; Wheeling, W.Va.; Baltimore, Md.; and Richmond, Va.

The GOP nominee told the volunteer workmen he is only the symbol of a crusade aimed at restoring world peace and "honesty, integrity and decency" in government.

Observing that he sometimes wonders why he should "deserve such devotion, such commendation" as had been shown by the volunteers, Eisenhower added:

"If it is justified at all it is only because a name or an effort, a thought or maybe a grin has come to symbolize for each of us something that is bigger than a person."

CAUTIOUS PARTISANS

He said he sometimes shudders as he sees the Republican case overstated.

As a specific instance, he took the slogan of the volunteer organization that Eisenhower is "the man who will bring durable peace."

"Instead of this, he said it ought to be 'the man who will work for peace, who will work, who will pledge to you energy and devotion to that cause that could take me literally down to the bones of my fingers.'"

"But to bring peace is going to be a tremendous job for 155 million people for years to come. It is not going to be solved easily," he declared.

He said if the Republicans win in November they will have "the satisfaction that we have done something in a very great cause for humanity" but that they will suddenly realize that "we have just started."

"Winning an election is nothing," he said with emphasis. "What does it matter what name a President may bear? . . . But it does make a great difference if people dedicated to a cause have the opportunity to pursue that cause through four years of organized government in the United States. . . ."

TO ADDRESS AFL

Eisenhower's excursion into the Midwest will be broken after his St. Paul appearance Tuesday to fly back to New York to address the American Federation of Labor (AFL) convention on Wednesday.

At that time, he refreshed all alliance with Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio will be tested by what he says about the Taft-Hartley Act. Taft has offered in the Senate some revisions to the act but has said that its main features should stand.

AFL President William Green, who has called Taft-Hartley a "slave labor" act and demanded its repeal, announced here today his organization probably would endorse one of the presidential candidates next week.

Eisenhower's trip will take him into Indiana where he already has been enthusiastically embraced by Sen. William J. Jenner. The latter called Eisenhower's great friend, Gen. George C. Marshall, a "front for traitors."

Sen. Frank Carlson of Kansas, who had a lot to do with bringing Taft and Eisenhower together for their Friday conference here, said he was satisfied that unity had been restored within the Republican ranks. Taft said he would go all-out for Eisenhower's election and urged his pre-convention supporters to do the same.

Selection of three advisers to travel with Eisenhower on all his train and plane trips during the presidential campaign was announced.

They are Sen. William F. Knowland of California and Reps. Leonard W. Hall of New York and Leslie C. Arends of Illinois.

Walter Wanger Tastes Freedom

WITH A PAPER-WRAPPED parcel under his arm and a head full of new ideas for new movies, Walter Wanger walks away from the Hall of Justice in Los Angeles a free man. The white-haired motion picture producer Saturday completed a sentence for shooting Actor's Agent Jennings Lange, who Wanger claimed was breaking up his home with Actress Joan Bennett. Wanger said one of his ideas is to make a film about prison life. He was silent about Joan. (United Press Photo.)

U. S. Pushing Pin-Pointing of Dangerous Subversives

WASHINGTON—(AP) The Justice Department is quietly pushing a program pin-pointing dangerous subversives for immediate arrest in event of war with Russia, an authoritative source disclosed today.

The program would enable the government to start a round-up of potential spies and saboteurs within a few hours after war broke out. A similar round-up was made in the early hours of World War II.

The program is one of the major reasons why Attorney General James P. McGranery announced expansion of the Justice Department's internal security section early this month. He said then the section "as a result of the expansion will be able to evaluate more speedily the reports turned over to it by the FBI."

The program requires the section to:

1. Review the investigation reports prepared by the FBI internal security cases.
2. Determine which cases involve persons who would be dangerous to the nation in time of war.

Evaluation of the reports has been in progress for some time, it was learned. There was no data, however, on how large a backlog remains of many thousands of reports submitted by the FBI.

Angry Wives Cause Card Players' Arrest

MANITOWOC, Wis.—(AP) Two angry wives sent nine poker players, including their husbands, into court Saturday.

The players were fined a total of $360. Officers who arrested them in a hotel room yesterday said they were tipped off by two of the men's wives.

Africa America Once Bridged, Says Geologist

ALGIERS, Algeria—(AP) A great land bridge probably once joined South Africa and South America, Dr. Kenneth E. Caster, geologist and paleontologist of the University of Cincinnati, said Saturday.

Speaking to the International Geologic Congress here, he expressed belief that a craton bridge—a changeable belt of the earth's crust sometimes submerged, sometimes above water—joined the continents and permitted an exchange of plant and animal life.

Dr. Caster said the two southern continents show an astounding similarity in flora and fauna and certain geologic features.

An earlier theory is that the two once were one, and drifted apart. They are now about 1800 miles apart at their nearest point across the Atlantic.

Adlai Stands Best Chance for Endorsement by AFL

NEW YORK—(AP) AFL President William Green, saying his union probably will break tradition to endorse a Presidential candidate this year, Saturday gave newsmen the impression that Gov. Adlai Stevenson stands the best chance.

WILLIAM GREEN . . . Wants to Hear Ike . . .

Green, discussing the forthcoming AFL convention at a news conference, said it would be "inappropriate" for him to make any comment as to what action it might take.

He also steered clear of any personal expression of favoritism.

However, his remarks on labor matters gave rise to the feeling that the Democratic nominee presently is considered most suitable for union support.

Both Stevenson and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Republican nominee, are to address the convention which opens here Monday.

More than 700 delegates will represent the AFL's eight million members, and labor views expressed by the two candidates are certain to have great bearing on any convention endorsement.

While Stevenson now appears to have the inside track, Green indicated that Eisenhower might exchange his chances, depending on what he has to say.

He said the convention would not make up its collective mind until after the GOP standard-bearer has had a chance to state where he stands regarding the Taft-Hartley Law. The AFL, along with most of organized labor, has opposed the law since its passage.

Green asserted that the reason why a candidate endorsement is anticipated this year is that the Democratic Party, at its national convention, repudiated the law while the Republican convention endorsed it.

He said it was believed that Stevenson, in his convention address, would reiterate opposition to the legislation.

As for Eisenhower he said: "We refuse to accept the self-serving, face-saving statement issued yesterday by Sen. Robert A. Taft as indicative of Gen. Eisenhower's views. We assume that Gen. Eisenhower is capable of stating his own position and we hope he will do so when he appears before our convention."

OMAHA—(AP) Army engineers have put a 179-million-dollar cost tag on the flood that ravaged the Missouri River Basin last April.

Atomic Industrial Power Bit Nearer

WASHINGTON—(AP) The atomic energy commission has moved further toward its goal of some day making it possible for private industry to produce atomic power and fuel profitably.

It announced Sat. it had accepted a proposal by two more companies to conduct for the next 12 months a survey of "the feasibility of design, construction and operation by private industry of power-producing reactors."

The firms are the Pioneer Service and Engineering Co. of Chicago, and the Foster Wheeler Corp. of New York.

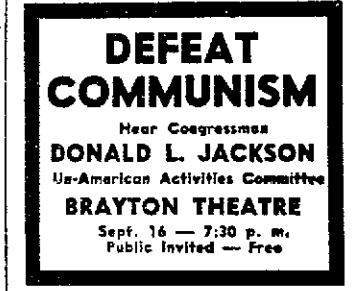

The AEC and the companies now are negotiating on details of the agreement on the project. The survey will be similar to that made by eight firms last year.

Reports from the eight firms are being studied by the AEC and possibly foreshadow history's first practical and economical production of power from atomic energy.

But AEC Chairman Gordon Dean has said it will be five to 10 years before atomic energy can compete economically with coal and oil and water power.

School Help Prop. Wins Wide Backing

Management, labor and both major parties are represented among the first state-wide endorsements for Proposition Two, the school support measure on the Nov. 4 ballot.

This was announced Saturday by Mrs. John Koekkoek, co-chairman of the Long Beach organization sponsoring the measure.

Endorsements have been received from the California State Chamber of Commerce and the California State Federation of Labor (AFL). Mrs. Koekkoek stated that the California Democratic party endorsed the school measure and the California Republican party, which has not endorsed specific measures up for vote, wrote in its state platform approval of the basic principal proposed in the proposition.

Other state-wide groups that have endorsed Proposition Two include the California Farmers, Inc., the California Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, the California Congress of Parents and Teachers, the National Council of Jewish Women, the Native Daughters of the Golden West, and the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

"The school support measure will provide relief for local taxpayers by increasing the state contribution to education," according to Mrs. Koekkoek. "The major share of school expense is now paid by local taxpayers. Proposition Two would divide the cost of the schools about fifty-fifty between the state and local taxpayers."

There's That Bell Again!

Empty corridors in vacant schoolhouses will fill to echo once again the clamor and excitement of youths Monday as Long Beach's younger generation goes back to school.

Record registrations are expected throughout the public and parochial schools.

Principal increase for the public schools, as in past years, should be in the elementary divisions. Predicted registration from kindergarten through high school should top 48,000, an all-time high, by the end of the first school month.

Meanwhile, educators at the liberal arts division of City College, Lakewood campus, urged all new students who have not yet taken matriculation tests to report for the exams in the library at 9 a. m. Monday or Tuesday.

Advisers will be on duty both days to assist in planning programs.

New students who have pre-registered will report to Room 110, women's gymnasium, 1 to 4 p. m., Monday, and 8 a. m. to noon Tuesday. Former students who pre-registered will report to the same room between 8 a. m. and noon on Monday.

Classes start Wednesday. Registration for evening classes will be conducted throughout the week in class.

New classes start in the business and technology division of the college, 1305 E. Pacific Coast Hwy., on Monday. General adult division courses open Monday at 43 locations throughout the school district. Headquarters of the division is at the Lakewood campus.

School Plunge Schedules Listed

Public use of the Jordan and Wilson high school swimming pools is scheduled during the academic year which opens Monday.

The public use of the plunges will be limited to evening and Saturday afternoon schedules. The Polytechnic High School plunge, slated to open next month.

Admission for adults is 35 cents. Secondary school youngsters pay a 25 cent admission. The fee for primary grade children is 15 cents.

Both plunges have an evening schedule of two periods, 7-8:15 and 8:30-10 o'clock.

Nearly 1200 youngsters and adults learned to swim in the Recreation Department's free classes of instruction given here during the summer, according to Frances Dixon, city supervisor of aquatics, who guides the fall-winter-spring public swim program at the school plunges.

"We hope these new swimmers will continue to practice during the coming months and that they will patronize the high school plunges," Miss Dixon said.

Schedules follow. (Saturday schedules are the same at both plunges.)

Here's the Tragedy That Didn't Happen

There were no big headlines saying "Young mother commits suicide off Rainbow Pier" several weeks ago because Long Beach has an alert juvenile bureau officer and a Salvation Army.

Maj. E. K. Tobin of the Salvation Army and the kindly matron at their Hospitality House which is maintained by Community Chest contributions feel that this story which didn't make the headlines can be told now. And others in despair should know that there are agencies in our city that work year around trying to keep such tragedies from occurring.

"Her story, unfortunately, is one we often hear," Maj. Tobin says.

She had come to Long Beach intending to take her life because her husband had deserted her. She was in ill health and penniless.

The young mother and two small girls were found on the streets by a juvenile officer and taken to Hospitality House.

When the husband left them, they were living in a small nearby city. Although she was pregnant she had taken a job in a hospital in an attempt to support her children as long as she was able. But she had fainted while at work and lost the baby.

At Hospitality House she found a place of security and people who wanted to help her. Arrangements were made for medical care and a plan worked out for her support.

"In a few weeks Long Beach will be asked to give through the Community Chest," Maj. Tobin concluded. "I hope people will remember that they are preventing the sad headlines about juvenile delinquents, suicides, marital shootings and uncared for children by giving generously to all the Red Feather agencies."

Approve CC for Training Korea Vets

Long Beach City College has been approved as one of the training centers Korean war veterans may attend under provisions of the new GI Bill. Dr. George E. Dotson, assistant school superintendent, reported Saturday.

Under provisions of Public Law 550, veterans who have served 90 days or more in the Armed Forces any place in the world since the start of the Korean war, July 27, 1950, are eligible.

Allowances for veterans in full-time training are $110 monthly where the veteran has no dependent, $135 monthly if there is one dependent and $160 monthly if there is more than one dependent.

A maximum of 36 months, on the basis of one and one-half day of training for each day in service, is allowed. Veterans who also served in World War II may be eligible for longer training periods.

Training must be started by Aug. 20, 1954, or two years after release from active duty, whichever comes later.

Application blanks are available in the Veterans Administration office at the Downtown Post Office Bldg.

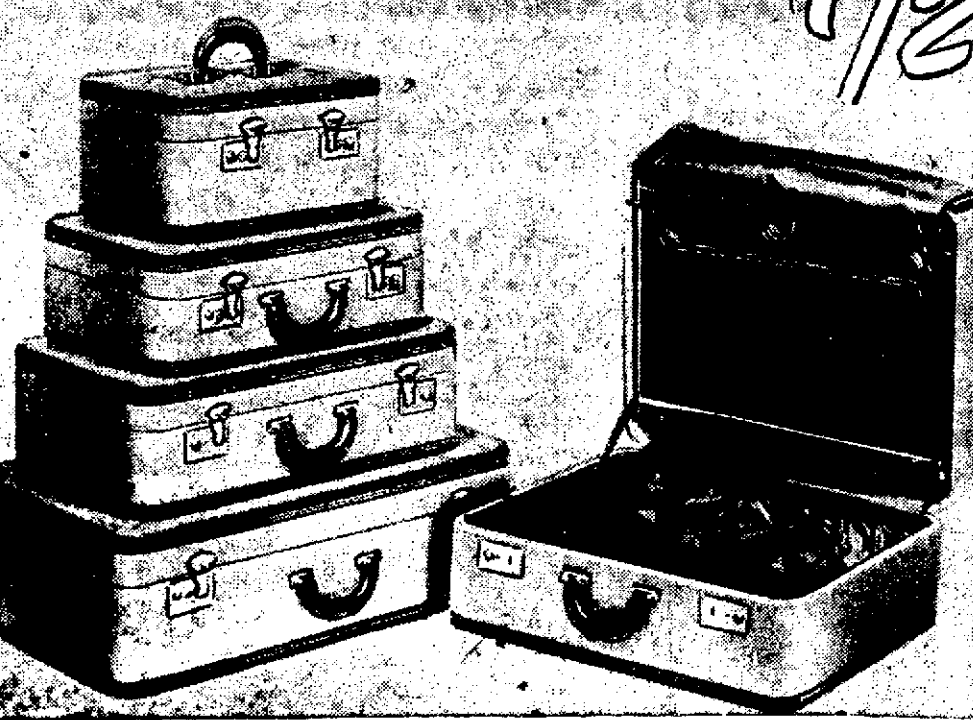

Further information for prospective Long Beach City College students may be had by contacting Emil E. Lubick, co-ordinator of placement, at the business and technology division of the college, 1305 E. Pacific Coast Hwy.

Adlai 'Well Pleased' Radioman to Run Voice of America With West Prospect

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—(AP) Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson returned to his Presidential campaign headquarters today, "well pleased" with his prospects in 10 western states and looking forward to a swing into New England, Virginia and Iowa.

The Democratic candidate for the White House arrived here by plane from Albuquerque, N. M., after a nine-day tour of the West in a bid for November votes.

Just before departing from Albuquerque, Stevenson's campaign manager, Wilson Wyatt, announced plans for a foray into New England starting Thursday.

From there, the Illinois governor will travel to a traditionally Democratic stronghold, Richmond, Va., for a major address Sept. 20. On Oct. 4, Wyatt announced, Stevenson will talk on farm policy at Ft. Dodge, Iowa. As he set out for home from Albuquerque, Stevenson issued this statement on his 7600 mile, nine-day swing through the West:

"I am delighted with my journey through 10 states. Everywhere the crowds exceeded my expectations and their warmth and friendliness even surprised the local political leaders. "It would be bold and foolish

KEFAUVER DIEHARDS SWING TO STEVENSON

LOS ANGELES—(AP) Gov. Adlai Stevenson's swing through California apparently swung the last of the Kefauver diehards here to his support.

"I am satisfied that he and Kefauver are talking down the same alley," said John Anson Ford, Democratic National Committeeman who headed the Kefauver campaign in this state.

Ford said the organization which supported the Tennessee Senator at the Democratic convention was now "ready to roll in full support of Stevenson." Ford himself introduced the Illinois governor in his Thursday night speech at the Shrine Auditorium.

to express any conclusions as to the political destiny of these states in November.

"But I am well pleased with the political situation in each of these states. Everywhere I found the Democratic party unified and enthusiastic—more so, I was informed, in some cities than it has been for many years.

The Illinois governor's tour took him into Colorado, Minnesota, Wyoming, Montana, Idaho, Washington, Oregon, California, Arizona and New Mexico. He made 12 formal speeches, plus eight whistle stop talks on a one-day train swing through California's San Joaquin Valley.

On his Western tour, Stevenson has been hammering away constantly at the idea that the Republicans are hopelessly split between followers of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the GOP presidential nominee, and those who backed Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio for the nomination.

In his speech in Albuquerque last night, Stevenson again talked of the Republican party being a "two-headed elephant."

Alluding to the conference which Eisenhower and Taft held in New York yesterday, Stevenson told his audience:

"The elephants put their two heads together for a peace treaty. They must have eaten crow."

On his tour of the West, Stevenson set forth his views on such issues as foreign policy, farm policy, the corruption in government issue, conservation and public power, and the Communist-in-government issue.

Stevenson hit hardest, perhaps, at GOP charges of corruption in government. He said he was getting tired of going around the country telling people "I am an honest man," and he said repeatedly that no one is running for President this year on a pro-corruption ticket.

The Democratic nominee pledged that as President he would root out from the government anyone guilty of any wrongdoing, and declared he feels he is much better qualified to handle such a job than Eisenhower is.

Radioman to Run Voice of America

WASHINGTON—The Voice of America, the U. S. government's chief weapon in the propaganda war with Russia, will get a new boss Oct. 1. "This time he will be a radio executive rather than a foreign service official."

Alfred Hammond Morton will succeed Foy D. Kohler, who has headed the broadcasting service since November, 1949, the state department announced Saturday.

Kohler, who has held many foreign service assignments and formerly was counselor at the United States embassy in Moscow, has been assigned to Secretary of State Acheson's top level policy planning staff.

Morton was described as having had 30 years' experience in

Top U. S. Brass Hears Ridgway Caution Russia

SURESNE, France.—(U.P.) Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway told the free world Saturday that his Allied armies will "crush to earth" any aggression that may be hurled against Western Europe.

In a message to "all people of all lands to whom life without freedom is worse than death," the Atlantic Pact commander said that American troops are in Europe to prevent aggression if they can and to fight it if they must.

He did not mention Russia by name.

Ridgway and 40 other high-ranking Allied military men came to this Paris suburb to attend the dedication of a memorial to the American dead of two world wars at the United States Military Cemetery here. U. S. Ambassador James C. Dunn read a message from President Truman declaring that "the Americans living now in military cemeteries died while helping to turn back and defeat aggression."

Ridgway said that American troops have returned to Europe because they share the same faith in the ultimate victory of freedom that has brought United States soldiers to the embattled continent in the past.

"We are here in time, we pray, to avert instead of to extinguish a conflagration which, if kindled, would again imperil those same values we are determined to defend," the supreme commander said.

"We are here to do far more than to honor those to whom this memorial is dedicated. We are here to reaffirm our utmost resolve to deter aggression, if that be possible, or to crush it to earth yet once more."

SAN FRANCISCO.—(U.P.) Rep. John F. Shelley said Saturday, after a conference with Navy Secretary Dan Kimball, that the next Congress will be asked to authorize a third supercarrier which would be built at Hunter's Point.

Good Togs Tab Bad Red

WASHINGTON (U.P.)—The State Department Saturday quoted a refugee Soviet geologist as saying it stirs suspicion for a Russian to appear too well-dressed in Moscow.

"To come to Moscow in good clothing was like appearing as an emissary of the Voice of America," the exile was said to have told American interviewers.

The Russian, who fled to West Germany, was not identified by name.

He said that after working Communist-run East Germany, he returned to Moscow on a visit in 1948 and was struck by the "filthy and rundown condition" of the capital.

"He had been dressed in good clothing, including an American hat bought in Germany, and this had made a very bad impression at the ministry of geology," the interrogators' report related.

"People whispered enviously about his western clothes and a letter was even written from the ministry to his superior in Germany commenting unfavorably on the change that had taken place in his external appearance."

Plan Interviews This Week for AF Job Applicants

A recruiter will interview applicants for jobs with the U. S. Air Force overseas Monday and Tuesday at the California Department of Employment, 1313 Pine Ave., according to George Toll, manager.

Salaries range from $4000 to $7000 annually for the jobs offered, Toll said. Needed are welders, auto equipment repairmen, an engineering equipment mechanic, a road maintenance superintendent, steam fitters, a plumber, and a stationary Diesel engine foreman.

All types of engineers holding a degree and three years' experience are needed for overseas assignments, Toll said. Male or female shorthand reporters can be used if they are capable of taking 180 words a minute and have experience in court reporting.

The positions are located in Alaska, Azores, England, Germany, French Morocco, Guam, Iceland, Newfoundland, Japan, Korea, Okinawa, the Philippines and Saudi Arabia.

Age requirements are 21 to 40 for women and 21 to 55 for men. Minimum tours are one or two years, depending on the area. The interviews will be conducted by John H. Leubsen, USAF representative.

Shah Urges Action

TEHRAN, Iran.—(U.P.) A court official called on Premier Mohammad Mossadegh Saturday and reiterated the Shah's desire for a solution to the oil question, informed sources reported.

The meeting followed a visit by British Charge d'Affaires George Middleton on Mossadegh, Thursday, in which Middleton made it clear Britain cannot basically alter the Anglo-American oil proposals.

Reliable sources said Mossadegh has asked for a modification of the proposals "in order that they may be compatible with nationalization laws."

Middleton dined with a court official and was reported to have pointed out the impossibility of the present oil tangle and asked the Shah to "intimate certain recommendations to the Premier."

Middleton is expected to give Mossadegh the official British reply to the Premier's request of last week. It was believed the reply would say Britain cannot make concessions greater than those she already has granted.

END BIFOCAL TROUBLES

MEN AND WOMEN who wear bifocals often are puzzled by their inability to see clearly at "arm's length." The reason for this difficulty however, is very simple.

The bifocal has two focal powers. The power for reading seldom is effective at more than 18 inches. The power for distance is most effective at distances six feet and beyond. In many cases the eye cannot accommodate itself to the range that lies between "... particularly at "arm's length."

CONTINUOUS VISION LENSES provide for this deficiency by adding a third power for arm's length, and minimize HEAD TILT. Come in or phone 42-8519 for appointment. Open Friday Evenings and all day Saturday. Convenient weekly or monthly payments arranged if desired. In Long Beach 25 years.

SNEAKS IN SEDANS

County Wars on Cattle Rustlers

By GEORGE C. HENDERSON

In a swirl of dust the black sedan braked at the cattle sales yard where a figure lurked by a corral gate.

This figure moved swiftly to meet a slouch-hatted man who quickly descended from the driver's seat and opened the rear door of the sedan with the darkened windows. It was as if he gallantly intended to assist a girl from the car.

Out came, not a girl, but a bawling, spotted calf. The stealthy pair cut the calf's leg ropes, turned it into the corral and dragged another calf out of the sedan. A third calf was yanked out before the night prowlers fled.

It was the atomic-age version of cattle rustling.

"There was no magic about it," explained Det. Sgt. Mike Aure, commander of the sheriff's rustler squad, recently created to halt the stealing of $15,000 worth of cattle a month in the county.

"The rustlers had removed the back seat of the sedan so it would hold the calves. The stolen stock would be sold next morning at the auction."

"One gang that used a panel truck was caught because it was too conspicuous. Ranchers suspect a truck near cattle pens."

GOATNAPEE CAUGHT

The rustler squad, organized July 1, is the "livestock detail" authorized by Sheriff Eugene Biscailuz. Sgt. Aure's job, and that of his partner, Sgt. Henry Nelson, is to work with state livestock inspectors not only in catching rustlers but in preventing thefts, recovering cattle, loose and then sold the saddles.

The officers even caught a goat thief last month. And then broke up a gang of juveniles that made a habit of renting riding academy horses, stripped off the saddles turned the horses loose and then old the saddles.

The night rider with the high powered rifle who shot down a prize $650 bull just to butcher out the hind quarters on the Diamond Bar Ranch in Brea Canyon is proof that the moving picture glamor of the movie cattle rustlers is phony, Aure says.

No longer is the rustler a saddle-galled, big-hatted gun slinger astride a rip-snorting bronc, as pictured in the Westerns.

The poke-hatted gents with six guns, spurring their crowsbills onto the cattle range to stampede the heroine's herd, do not operate in the Norwalk-Artesia area where so much valuable beef has been "liberated."

Stealing cattle is a sordid, vicious business of preying upon the 70,000 cows in the 445 dairies of the $90,000,000 industry in the Artesia-Norwalk area, and many more elsewhere in the county, which Sgt. Aure's squad must protect in its entirety.

HIT-AND-RUN

The hit-and-run cattle thief spies on ranches until he finds calves grazing near a fence. Stealthily he seizes as many calves as he can haul, dumps them into his car and drives to some remote sales yard. If the calf is branded, he cannot sell it but he will butcher it.

Despite the standing reward of $500 for capture and conviction of a cattle thief, offered by the Southern California Cattlemen's Association, the county is plagued by from 40 to 50 rustler cases a month.

To combat these thieves, Sgt. Aure works closely with Supervising Inspector L. G. Garrison of the State Bureau of Livestock Identification and his force.

Throughout California there are 80 state inspectors who inspect 5,000,000 cattle annually. Forty of these men work in Los Angeles County checking brands at cattle auctions, slaughterhouses and shipping points.

BRAND 'EM!

"Where cattle are branded we can find out if they are stolen by checking state brand records," Garrison said. "Greatest drawback is the fact that most dairy cattle are not branded."

Garrison and Sgt. Aure outlined six points for stopping cattle rustling.

1. Brand all cattle and horses. It costs only $2 to record the brand and $2 to renew it each year for any number of cattle using the brand.

Navy Chief to Speak

Capt. M. C. Heine, commander of the Navy Base, will speak at a dinner meeting of Independent Business Men's Association Sept. 24 at Lafayette Hotel's Supper Room. Other guests will include commanders of Naval activities in the Long Beach-Los Angeles Harbor area, Mayor Euron W. Chace of Long Beach and Mayor Lloyd Tomlin of Signal Hill, members of the Harbor Commission and representatives of Long Beach newspapers.

2. Keep calves away from fences fronting on roads.

3. Call the sheriff's office at the first suspicion of a theft.

Aure was selected as chief rustler hunter because of the fine record he made over a three-year period while a deputy at Norwalk sheriff's station. In 31 months he caught 31 cattle thieves and one pig thief.

Wandering Russ Armored Car in W. Berlin Ousted

BERLIN, (AP)—A Soviet armored car, equipped with two machine guns and carrying six Russian soldiers, drove into the American sector Sat. and almost started to clash with 1000 late West Berliners.

U. S. military police escorted the vehicle back to the East Zone border after West Berlin police blocked its progress at Hansberg Square with a garbage truck and sealed off its retreat with a squad car.

The Russians brandished their Tommy guns when a crowd gathered booing and shouting, "Ivan, go home!" West German police forced the crowd back to prevent a clash.

The Russians said they were driving back to their Karlshorst headquarters and got the American sector by mistake.

Uniform State Law List Offered

SAN FRANCISCO, (AP)—A list of far-reaching uniform laws was approved Saturday by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws as it wound up its week-long meeting.

The laws will be submitted to the legislatures of the 48 states and U. S. territories.

Leading the list were four model state laws designed to combat organized crime. They were drawn up jointly by the Conference and the American Bar Association Crime Commission.

The first is a model anti-gambling code. The conference said it was designed "to crack down on commercialized gambling, the backbone of organized crime."

It would increase penalties for professional gamblers, punish gambling patrons, prohibit transmission of betting information by telephone, telegraph and radio, and revoke licenses of establishments permitting gambling on their premises.

The conference declared "This law, if passed, would deprive reluctant local police of the excuse that anti-gambling laws are too weak or vague to be enforced."

The second law would improve local police standards by requiring all police to attend training schools, would set up a seven-man state police council to advise local departments on organization, training and financial assistance.

The third law would set up state departments of justice where none exist, and would give the department power to prosecute or relieve local prosecutors who failed to prosecute criminals.

The fourth law would make it possible for the state to compel a witness to testify by giving him immunity from self-incrimination.

The conference also unanimously adopted a Uniform Single Publication Act which it said would end the possibility that a plaintiff in a libel action against a publication or broadcaster could sue in all states the libel entered.

4-Legged Fisherman Snags One, Loses One

Rewed Widow Can Collect GI Insurance, Court Says

PHILADELPHIA — (AP) A soldier's widow has first claim on his war risk insurance benefits even though she remarries, the U. S. Third Circuit Court of Appeals ruled Saturday.

The circuit court decision which held that remarriage leaves the woman no longer a widow.

That is true, the circuit court ruled, as far as the dictionary definition of "widow" is concerned. But it is not true in the meaning of "widow" under the National Life Insurance Act. In that act, said the court, Congress again, as it has frequently in the past, gave a word meaning that differs from the dictionary definition.

The case involved in the ruling concerned $5000 government insurance policies issued to Harry R. Trathen, who was killed in action in Germany on April 12, 1945. No contingent beneficiary was named in the policies. The veterans bureau, however, began making payments to Mrs. Mary Trathen Kerrigan of Girardville, Pa., who remarried six weeks after Trathen died.

Trathen's father, Stephen sued in district court to collect the death benefits under his son's policies and the veterans bureau suspended payments.

The circuit court held that under the language of the portion of the act bearing on the Trathen case, "the status of a widow is not determined by her subsequent marital situation, but by her status as a person at the time of her husband's death."

"If she was then lawfully wedded, and not divorced, she remains so insofar as the war risk insurance benefits are concerned."

Russ Charge U. S. Seized Red Papers

BERLIN—UP. The Russians accused the Americans Saturday night of imposing a blockade on the Soviet military mission as signed to operate in Frankfurt.

The Russians charged the Americans with the mission in a threatening way and forced them to hand over certain documents.

Soviet military authorities in Berlin sent the protest to the U. S. forces at Heidelberg and announced it through the official East German news agency ADN.

U. S. European Army headquarters in Heidelberg denied the Soviet charge, saying that it "simply is not true." However, the Americans said they would investigate.

The Soviet protest was regarded in Berlin as a maneuver to retain Russia's bargaining position over the controversial question of Allied and Soviet military missions.

The Russians recently arrested two U. S. Army officers and an enlisted man belonging to an American mission at Potsdam in the Soviet zone. The Russians released the three but accused them of entering "forbidden" areas for espionage and demanded their recall. U. S. Army authorities have not announced their reaction to the demand.

The letter of protest from Maj. Gen. V. I. Truksov, deputy chief of staff of the Red Army in Germany, said merely: "The building of the Soviet Military mission in Frankfurt was blocked by the American military police on Sept. 5 without any reason. By threatening to extend the blockade for a longer period, the American military police confiscated documents from three members of the Soviet military mission. They did not give any reason for this confiscation and said they had a verbal order from the American staff."

P-T Carrier Boy Polio Stricken

A 12-year-old Press-Telegram carrier boy was one of six persons in Long Beach stricken with polio this week.

These and the three cases last week bring this year's total here to 37 cases, the Department of Public Health announced today.

Bob Shelhorn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Shelhorn, 506 Orange Ave., became ill Monday evening after delivering his paper route, and was taken to Los Angeles County General Hospital, where he is in Contagious Diseases Ward 3.

Since June 1, Bob has been delivering Route 4316, which includes the area from Alamitos Ave. to Orange Ave. and from Fifth St. to Seventh St.

The Health Department reported that there were 40 cases of polio in Long Beach at this time last year.

Triplets May Go Home This Week From Hospital

It's ounces to go for the Bishop triplets, daughters of Navy Fireman and Mrs. Arthur E. Bishop, 5717 The Toledo.

Paula, Pauline and Paulette weighed in Aug. 17 at weights from 3 pounds, 11 ounces, to 4 pounds, 3 1/2 ounces.

On Saturday, Pauline tipped the scales at an even 5 pounds. Paula, 4 pounds, 15 ounces, and Paulette, 4 pounds, 14 ounces. When each makes the 5-pound, 8-ounce bracket, they'll be able to go home from St. Mary's Hospital. Attendants think that may be some time this week.

Basie, Eckstine Pack Auditorium

The mellow romanticisms of Mr. B. Billy Eckstine, the piano key-toning of Count Basie and the hot rhythm of George Shearing's quintet packed the Convention Hall of Municipal Auditorium Saturday night with a foot-stomping, enthusiastic crowd.

From the moment the Count opened the program with his 16-piece band's rendition of "Why Not?" the crowd applaudingly told him why he should keep on playing.

The combination of top-notch musicians, after finishing the one-night stand, described their reception here as "outstanding."

"They were hep with pep," said the Count, "young and eager. It was a pleasure playing for them."

Young Traffic Victim in 'Good' Condition

Richard P. Gray, 6, of 1978 W. 19th St., was reported in good condition at Seaside Hospital Saturday night. He was struck Saturday morning by a car and suffered a possible head injury.

The driver of the car, Mary Boren, 27, of 2023 20th St., was not held by police. The accident happened on West 19th St. in the 2000 block.

Crash Hospitalizes Driver, Passenger

An accident at Pacific Coast Hwy. and Alamitos Ave. at 7 p. m. Saturday sent one driver and his passenger to St. Mary's Hospital with injuries not believed to be serious. Verne V. Clement, 55, of 4055 Daisy Ave., a driver, was treated for possible back injuries and Arthur M. Lizer, 15, of 4822 Brayton Ave., received a possible head injury. The other driver, G. P. Wilson, 22, of 1068 American Ave., was cited for alleged failure to obey traffic signals.

County Drainage Problems Topic of Monday Meeting

Problems of drainage in the heavily populated areas of Los Angeles County will be explained to more than 100 public officials and civic leaders Monday afternoon at the Hall of Records by engineers from the County Flood Control District.

Air-Pollution Hearing Booked by County Board

Chief Clerk Ray E. Lee of the Board of Supervisors has fixed Oct. 7, as the date for the special conference before the supervisors on forcing further curbs on the sources of air pollution in Los Angeles County.

Lee said Air Pollution Control Engineer Gordon P. Larson is under orders to submit a formal report of his recommendations at that time. It will be an open public session of the supervisors.

Larson is being asked by the supervisors to be specific regarding his proposal to prohibit backyard burning of rubbish both in and out of incinerators. Larson already has stated he believes much of the smog could be reduced by outlawing trash and rubbish burning at homes.

Another subject, which also will be given attention, will be the part which automobile-engine exhaust fumes play in fouling the atmosphere. In previous discussions of the motor-fumes problem, county officials have been told that the best solution is for auto factories to install special fume-control devices on the cars before they leave the factory.

Charles Cipperley's Last Rites Monday

Funeral service will be at 11 a. m. Monday for Charles E. Cipperley, 946 Magnolia Ave., Whittier, at Lanier's Colonial Chapel, 314 N. Greenleaf Ave., Whittier. He died Friday at his home. Suspect in Hit-Run Collision Arrested

Police booked James G. Fletcher, 28, of 1915 W. 19th St., Saturday for investigation of felony hit-and-run charges. Officers believe he jumped from his car and fled the scene of a three-car accident Friday night at Orange Ave. and South St.

Four persons were injured in the accident and three members of one family were trapped when their automobile was knocked on its side.

Police traced the abandoned car to Elizabeth Fletcher of the West 19th St. address. Although police said she told them she had let her brother-in-law use the automobile, Mrs. Fletcher denied she had made such a statement and told The Independent-Press Telegram she did not know he had the car.

Meanwhile, Seaside Hospital attendants reported Robert E. Naylor, 28, of 3331 Gendar Ave., one of the injured, in satisfactory condition, as was his daughter, Victoria Sue, 2 1/2. Mrs. Naylor, who suffered a broken pelvis and possible head injuries, was in serious condition, they said.

The fourth individual hurt in the accident, Mrs. Vera Stephens, 43, of 1120 E. 70th St., who suffered possible head injuries, was in satisfactory condition at St. Mary's Hospital. Driver of the car in which she was a passenger was her husband, Clenton T. Stephens, 46, who escaped injury.

Stephens told police he saw the driver of the Fletcher car get out all homes in the immediate area without finding a trace of the toys.

GENEROUS BOY LOSES WAGON, TRIKE, 2 PALS

At the age of 2 1/2 years, Dale Gaudreau, 3912 Camerino St., Lakewood Park, was proud possessor of a maroon pedal-pushing station wagon and a red and yellow tricycle.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Gaudreau, had taught him to share his toys with others. So that's what he did Saturday. He shared the station wagon and tricycle with two new-found playmates. They disappeared and so did his vehicles.

Mrs. Gaudreau explained Saturday night that she had visited all homes in the immediate area without finding a trace of the toys.

AF Board Studies Strafing Accident

Why the .50-caliber machine gun in a parked Air Force plane here accidentally fired 17 rounds Friday afternoon should be unraveled by late this afternoon or early Monday.

Col. R. L. Orr, executive officer at the local Air Force Base, Saturday said a board of officers was studying the accident and would submit its conclusions and recommendations then.

He added that damage done to three homes by the bullets would be paid for by the Air Force. It is believed damage to the homes, all in Lakewood Plaza, is very minor.

Once Prisoner of China Reds, 'Smitty' May See Korea Next

By VERA WILLIAMS

Remember the Smiths? Long Beach had one of its happiest hours the morning of May 19, 1950, when Navy CPO William C. Smith and Marine M-Sgt. Elmer C. Bender, for 19 months Red prisoners in China, walked down the ramp of a Douglas Sky-master at the Los Alamitos Naval Air Station, home at last.

Bender went on to Chicago where his family awaited him. "Smitty" walked into the waiting arms of his devoted wife, Ruby, their two little sons, Pat and Mike, and a tumultuous city welcome.

They live in a two-story, chocolate-colored stucco, 1217 Electric Ave., Seal Beach. "Smitty," a construction electrician chief stationed at Terminal Island, expects orders this week for overseas duty. That may mean Korea.

MIKE'S IN SCHOOL. Mike, who was 5 years old last July 17, goes to Seal Beach kindergarten. "Time marches on, doesn't it?" Pat, who was born when his father was a prisoner, will be 4 next Dec. 18. Pat is somewhat astonished that Mike has been in kindergarten a week and still can not read comic books to him.

The boys have a swing in the back yard, they have cars and a lot of toys. They have a dog, Prince, a Chihuahua born last Christmas Day. They are fascinated by an ant hill on the sidewalk in front of their house. The boys are well-behaved little fellows and mind when they are spoken to. Even the dog minds.

The Smiths kept in touch with the Benders. Bender is at El Toro. The Benders have a daughter, Kathleen, 7, and a little son, Steven, born last January. Smitty and his wife exchange glances as they tell that news. "We have our family," she says.

He nods. "VERY SET!" Mrs. Smith looks around their pleasant home which is a real home, with flowers and trees she has planted in the yard. "Well, if Smitty is satisfied and I know we can be with him," she says.

Anyone who knows her would know that she would say that, but she wouldn't even sigh when she said it. No material things like a house and yard can keep the Smiths apart.

Smith and Bender were can-

"UP YOU GO!"—Navyman William C. Smith gives 5-year-old son, Michael, a push in the swing, while 4-year-old son, Pat, Mrs. Smith and Prince, the Chihuahua, look on with approval. The two men were held in mud shacks, under the surveillance of guards with Springfield rifles. "The guard spent most of the night sleeping," says Smitty. Readers Review Debate on UN

Readers of the Sunday Independent Press-Telegram hold strong opinions about the merit of the United Nations and the mission of public school education, the past week's mail to this newspaper has disclosed.

Whether the United Nations is a suitable topic for study in Long Beach public schools became an issue recently when a group of 12 persons asked the Board of Education to remove such study from the curriculum.

The Independent Press-Telegram opened its pages to a written debate in which views were presented on both sides of the issue. And readers took up the question.

Reader comment centered on two distinct major points—whether the U. N. is worthy of support, and whether the U. N. should be studied in the public schools. The majority of the letters received favored the U. N. or at least the objective study of it.

Here are excerpts from letters both pro and con:

Mrs. Robert V. Fowler, 2125 San Anselmo Ave.—"How will our children be able to eliminate the shortcoming of the U. N. organization or UNESCO or be able to make any kind of progress toward promotion of democracy if they don't know what they are fighting against? The job of our schools is to guide our children so that they will be able to make the right choice. They can only make the right choice if they have been allowed to study the facts—the whole truth."

Eve McGee, 5724 E. Ocean Blvd.—"Although I should be willing and happy to have my daughter (a Junior High School student) taught the facts and policies of the U. N., I see no reason, under the policy outlined by School Superintendent Douglas Newcomb, for parents who oppose the principles of the U. N. to be unduly concerned for the welfare of their children. To study the U. N. through a presentation of facts and the points of view of both sides could surely do no harm to the mind of any student."

M. E. Fox, 4764 Palo Verde Ave.—"My ideal of world peace can never be achieved by the U. N. And I do not and never shall embrace its theory of facts. . . . Do not criticize Mrs. Battelle; she is doing what I would have done had I been able to do so." (Miss Fanchon Battelle was one of those who asked the Board of Education to eliminate U. N. study.)

Joanne Lauer, 1530 Washington St.—"I recently graduated from one of the city high schools. I am inclined to believe that in order to teach human beings right from wrong, you must first show both sides of an argument or question and then define the differences. . . . We must all remember that we must be open minded."

Eldred L. Meyer, chairman, Grand Parlor Americanism Committee, Native Sons of the Golden West—"The Native Sons of the Golden West are unalterably opposed to the use of any UNESCO literature, regardless of its printed origin, until further study of it can be made by local civic, patriotic, and veteran groups, to ascertain whether it advocates doctrines inimical to the best interest of our city, our state, and nation. . . . No objection is made to the study of world-wide activities, but we do vigorously protest high-powered propaganda advocating a 'One World Federation,' which is successful, would ultimately result in replacing the flag of the United States with a new banner and a lower standard of living for each American citizen."

Laurel Whitman, 226 Corona Ave.—"I believe the U. N. is making a path toward the true Christianity in that it practices one of the main virtues that is preached by Christians—that we are our brother's keeper."

Herbert H. Ausburn, 2279

L. B. Engineers Plan Dry Dock

Long Beach engineers will design a $500,000 dry dock to accommodate large seaplanes on the water front at Consolidated-Vultee Aircraft Corp. plant at San Diego.

Moffatt & Nichol and George F. Nicholson, consulting engineers, were awarded the joint Consolidated-Navy contract for the dry dock and all appurtenances.

The dry dock will consist of two large concrete pontoons connected with the shore by smaller pontoons.

Mira Mar Ave.—"Intelligence tends to thrive more readily in an atmosphere of objective reasoning, unhindered by the attempts of any regulatory body to control thought. It is my belief that so-called world government or world federation merely envisions the future relationship between nations and a central government body that now exists between the several states and the United States government."

Jessica Lewis, Villa Riviera Hotel—"Since when is ignorance a virtue? . . . Information is not propaganda. Teach all subjects. Should not Mr. and Mrs. America be informed?"

(Editor's Note: Many excellent letters on this topic have been received. There is a limit to the space which can be devoted to a single subject. And comment, though pertinent, tends to become repetitious. Unless there is some further, salient point to be made, these excerpts will be considered the termination of this particular discussion.)

'Drag Strip' and Outdoor Pools Lead Youth Recreation Survey

By ED LUNDBURG

Ask a Long Beach teenager what he thinks the city needs in the way of additional public recreation facilities and you will get an answer right now.

The city's youth apparently is giving the problem careful consideration and it remained for Walter L. Scott, co-ordinator of school and municipal recreation, to provide an avenue for this hitherto silent opinion.

Scott recently conducted a survey which sampled the thinking along recreation lines of 964 boys and girls of high school age.

The survey simply asked teenagers to list those things which they thought were needed, improvements and additions to existing recreational facilities here.

A quick check of the preference list shows a "drag strip," with 407 mentions, No. 1 on the list. "More bath houses on the beach" is in second spot, having been mentioned 376 times in the survey.

Next, with 350 designations, is the item "outdoor swimming pools," followed by "regional type park," 222 votes; a zoo, 194 votes; more golf courses, 153; more parks, 135; more baseball diamonds, 114 and "ice skating rink," 112 votes.

A need for "cleaning up certain parts of the old Pike" was mentioned 103 times in the survey, placing it tenth in the frequency list.

JOHNNY MORRIS, 16, 1045 1/2 Myrtle Ave., heartily approves the drag strip idea.

"It would be a good deal," Johnny said. "Lots of fellows like to hop up their cars. It's usually one fellow's theory against the others. So they want to prove who is right. So they have a drag race."

A drag race, it should be pointed out, is a speed contest wherein two cars race from a standing start. As Johnny Morris points out, it is more than just speed. "There is science in shifting gears," he says.

Lowell Renold, 15, of 1286 Camargo St., says the big need is for swimming pools, particularly for one on the westside of Long Beach.

"We don't have a pool over there at all," Lowell explained, "and there are lots of kids in the area. We have to go out to Jordan or to Wilson or down to the beach."

The bath houses on the beach, second most frequently named need in the survey, leaves Lowell cold. "Can't see it," he said. "Only use 'em a couple of months out of the year."

Both Madeline Crosby, 16, 3552 Gaviota Ave., and Kay Gremmels, 16, 1421 E. 15th St., are rooting for more swimming pools.

"I think it would be nice to have some place to go swimming besides the beach," Madeline said. "I don't know whether I would rather have it an outdoor pool or indoor. Maybe both."

Kay said the pool should have fresh water and thought it should be located "somewhere near the beach, like on the bluff at Cherry Ave."

BOTH GIRLS THOUGHT the "hot lots" were "cute suggestions." Hot lots are places where youngsters could be left under close supervision while older brother and sister went, say, swimming. The hot lot idea was mentioned 41 times in the survey. Commenting on the need for the survey, Scott said: "Many public bodies and civic groups recently have voiced their belief that expansion of areas and facilities for public recreation is necessary here, particularly in view of our heavy population increase. Ministers Hit Mercy Killing BOSTON — (AP) Euthanasia, or so-called "mercy killing" was condemned Saturday by the House of Deputies of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

The House approved a resolution which branded killing the hopelessly ill as contrary to the will of God. The resolve will be presented for final approval at Monday's meeting of the Church's 57th triennial convention. The House shelved another resolution which would have put the convention on record as not directly opposed to vivisection of animals for medical experimentation.

The House also voted to retain the present church pension fund, rejecting a proposal for an investment trust that would invest mainly in common stocks.

Pension fund officials told the House that the fund now has a $4,000,000 surplus above actuarial reserves of more than $45,000,000.

NAVAJO BABY

Tsianina Rules With No Outcry

HER NAME is Tsianina (pronounced "Cha-nena"), which means "Wild Flowers." She is cutting three teeth, but she doesn't cry about it. In the car coming from Window Rock, Ariz., to Long Beach she rolled off the seat three times and bumped her head, but she didn't cry about that, either.

A full-blooded Navajo, 10 months old, she is the adopted daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Grant Thomas, 218 Norton St., missionaries at the Navajo Reservation at Window Rock.

Thomas, a Baptist minister and full-blooded Creek Indian, works as a pipefitter for the Long Beach Water Department and preaches when he can at the Navajo Evangelistic Mission.

MRS. THOMAS, a professional nurse and quarter-blood Creek, former superintendent of a hospital at Holdenville, Okla., spends most of her time at the mission. She visits the Indians in their hogans, takes care of sick and aged patients and leads the singing of Navajo hymns at the mission services. Also she helps distribute contributions of food and clothing to needy Indians.

Although the services largely are attended by Navajos, other Indians such as Hopis, Apaches and Utes share in the contributions, she says. Tsehe Notah, a Navajo, is the mission minister.

LITTLE TSIANINA has black hair and midnight black eyes and understands both Navajo and English. She says her foster parents. She stops when they say "Dadah!" as well as when they say "No!" and she smiles at "Ateed nizoni" as well as at "pretty girl."

She was dedicated recently in the Calvary Baptist Church at Bellflower. Her godparents are Col. Ted Davis, Long Beach Apache, and Mrs. Davis.

Extra Iron Lung Sent San Diego

SAN DIEGO (AP) — An extra iron lung was brought here from Los Angeles today after an increase in the number of polio cases filled all available machines at County Hospital Saturday.

Dr. J. B. Askew, city-county health director, said there have been 122 cases of polio in the county this year. There are 14 patients in the County Hospital polio ward, seven of them in respirators.

It was hot in Compton Saturday and police weren't sure whether the woman was just seething the clouds for rain or praying.

They took the middle-aged woman into custody regardless of what she was doing because they felt she ought to have been wearing clothes in either instance.

Police Officers Fred Honerkamp and Robert A. Conway said they found the woman in the middle of Caldwell St., her clothes strewn behind her.

They said they had to handcuff her to put her in the police car. From the women's quarters of the Compton City Jail she was taken to the psychopathic ward of Los Angeles Central Hospital for observation.

Police reported they were unable to obtain a name or address. They did not believe the woman had been drinking.

GOP Leader Raps Stevenson Talk

WASHINGTON — (AP) Republican National Chairman Arthur E. Summerfield Saturday denounced Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson for his recent foreign policy speech in which, Summerfield said, the Democratic nominee said, "The American people should forget about China."

Summerfield said in a statement that Stevenson's remark about China was "the most shocking statement (Stevenson) made on his western tour."

In his foreign policy speech in San Francisco earlier this week, Stevenson said that Republicans should show their good faith by "doing something about India today rather than talking about China yesterday."

Building Tide Runs Northeast as Home Ownership Increases

By FRED BOLINGER

Dramatic changes in the Long Beach population picture and home ownership are shown in a report released Saturday by City Planning Director Werner Ruchti.

The report reveals that while all newer sections of Long Beach are gaining in population, some of the older sections are losing.

This exodus from older to newer sections within or adjacent to the city, is expected to continue. The tide of population runs to the east and northeast.

HOME OWNERS GAIN

The ratio of owner-occupied dwellings here increased from 28 per cent in 1940 to 42 per cent in 1950.

While the number of rental units increased during the decade, proportion of rentals to the total dwelling units has been reduced from 61 to 52 per cent. Vacancies declined from 10.4 per cent to 6 per cent.

Long Beach has lost its reputation for being an apartment-house city.

Planning Director Ruchti's new figures are based on the 1950 census, adjusted by building permits, field surveys and other land use data.

Since 1950, greatest population increase has been in east Long Beach and in the Lakewood area, where much of the city's population overspill has been caught.

Total city population in July of this year was estimated at 253,780, compared with 1950's 250,767 and 1940's 164,271.

SOME LOSSES

Some older sections, south of Signal Hill, lost population during the last decade.

These sections, which comprise about six square miles, decreased by more than 5000 persons, or almost 6 per cent of their population, in 1940-50.

Well-defined population trends indicate a stable, slowly increasing population within the present city boundaries, according to the report.

A comparison of the rate of increased home ownership in Long Beach and Los Angeles reveals that in 1940-50 the number of owner-occupied units here increased approximately 120 per cent, against 80 per cent in Los Angeles.

Long Beach had nearly a 90 per cent gain in population since 1940, but the rate of increase has fallen off sharply and now more nearly approaches the 1930-40 rate.

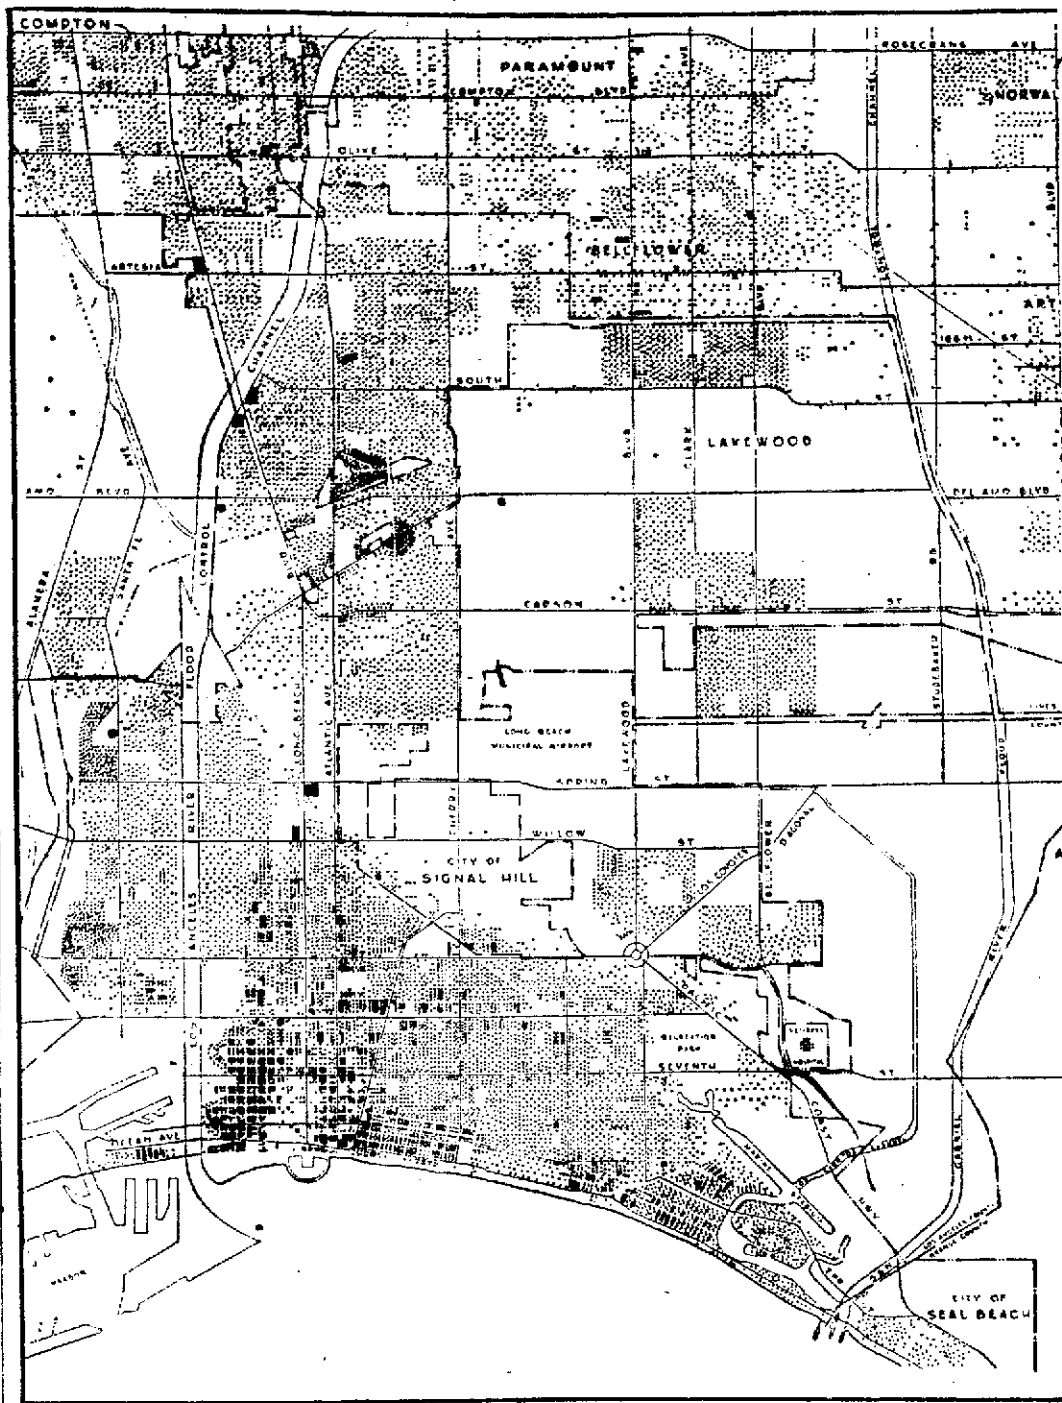

Dwelling units increased here from 65,137 to 97,021 in the 1940-50 decade, or by 49 per cent.

If the rate of population increase for Long Beach property has declined, there is no indication of a slump in the influx of new residents to areas adjacent to the city on the east and northeast.

Still building rapidly are the new Lakewood Park and Lakewood Plaza areas on the northeast and Los Altos on the east.

A metropolitan Long Beach population of 585,000 by 1970 was forecast last week by a committee of doctors and laymen recommending a $16,260,000 program to improve local health facilities.

Present Greater Long Beach population is 348,400.

Gardena 'Car Cleaner' Injured in Gasoline Explosion, Hospitalized

GARDENA—Joe Gutierrez, 29, aid and transferred to Bellevue Hospital with burns he received Saturday when gasoline he was using to clean the engine of his auto exploded on El Segundo Blvd. near Crenshaw Blvd., according to California Highway Patrol reports.

Traffic Officer Fred G. Lowe said Gutierrez is suffering from severe shock and burns about the arms, chest, neck and shoulders. Lowe said he extinguished the fire and took Gutierrez to Park Emergency Hospital in his patrol car. The victim was given first aid and transferred to Bellevue Hospital.

Lowe said the fire started when the gasoline Gutierrez was using to clean his engine at the side of the road ignited from a spark caused by the car's voltage regulator.

Thug Kidnaps Family of 5

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, (AP)—A family at home, took them to the store where he forced Daff to open the safe.

The Daff's two young daughters were downstairs when the bandit arrived. When Mrs. Daff protested she did not want to leave her three-year-old son asleep in the house, the gunman escorted the parents to the child's bed and insisted that the youngster be taken along.

About $500 was taken.

ALTON W. FISH

New Director Named by 'Y'

Alton W. (Al) Fish will assume responsibilities as director of physical education of Long Beach YMCA Monday, Glenn R. Snyder, general "Y" secretary, announced. Fish will take over duties handled on a temporary basis by George (Shorty) Kellogg. Kellogg will devote his full time to the boys' physical program which for 20 years he has administered, Snyder said.

Fish comes to Long Beach from San Francisco where he was associate physical director of the Central Branch YMCA. He also has served with the Santa Ana, San Bernardino and Chicago YMCAs.

He served in the Navy during 1945 and 1946, and his assignments included instruction and supervision of the naval survival aquatic program for enlisted men and officers at Naval Air Stations at Alameda and Los Alamitos. He also taught physical fitness for the Navy.

Fish is married, with a 19-year-old son and 11-year-old daughter, and the family will make its home at 6075 California Ave.

LONG, FRANTIC SEARCH FINDS VANISHED CHILD

A tearful three-hour search by parents plus an all-points bulletin and checkup by police Saturday afternoon ended in a North Long Beach backyard with an equally tearful 2-year-old girl Saturday evening.

Her mother, Mrs. Robert Bowen, 405 W. 28th St., Los Angeles, said Sandra Lee Bowen, disappeared from the family's parked auto behind a market at 5800 Atlantic Blvd., Long Beach.

She told police the car doors were locked and she wasn't gone more than 10 minutes when she returned at 3:30 p. m. to find the child missing.

At 6:25 p. m., Mrs. H. R. Hanon, 5860 Lime Ave., called the Long Beach juvenile bureau to report a blonde-haired youngster wearing white dungarees and a yellow shirt was in her backyard. Sandra was reunited with her parents.

Pontiff Invokes Catholic Prayers for Europe Unity

VATICAN CITY — (AP) Pope Pius placed the spiritual strength and prayers of the Roman Catholic Church behind the move for unification of Europe Saturday.

In a surprise major speech to a 2000-member European pilgrimage, the pontiff declared:

"If, today, political personalities are conscious of their responsibility, if statesmen work for the unification of Europe, for its peace and for the peace of the world, the Roman Catholic Church in truth cannot remain indifferent to their efforts, but sustains them with all the strength of its sacrifices, and of its prayers."

MISS SPACE . . . The Photo Was Magnetic (UP Telephoto)

'Miss Space' Draws Pair 2500 Miles

A 2500-mile quest by two Memphis young men searching for "Miss Space" led to the Independent Press-Telegram office Saturday.

George Harrison, 28, and John Fouch, 23, came there seeking information of the whereabouts of Jean Willes, 26, of Los Angeles, a friend from Memphis.

On Sept. 2, the pair saw a picture of Jean in the Memphis Press-Scimitar. She was billed as having been proclaimed "Miss Space" after an "interplanetary beauty contest" in Los Angeles.

Harrison and Fouch recognized her as the girl they used to know in Memphis as Martha Jean Gildewell. They resolved to find her, although they had not known where she was for several years.

With just the clipping as a clue, they set out for Los Angeles by automobile, leaving Tennessee Sept. 8. During the several days they've been in California, they've been unable to locate her, although trying a number of sources.

However, a check revealed that the photo was taken at Universal International studios. The intrepid pair were last seen heading for the motion picture studio.

Pears Race Here To Board Ship

By EDELL NEWTON
Marine Editor

To hit the premium market in Rio de Janeiro for early Oregon pears, eight big trucks were loaded with 8000 boxes in the orchards at Medford, Ore., and raced 750 miles to Long Beach, Los Angeles Harbor to overtake a ship.

Harvested a few hours too late to catch the SS Mormacgulf at San Francisco, the pears were routed on down the coast and are now safely in the big C-3 freighter's chilled holds, along with a wide variety of other Oregon and California fruits. Among other cargo loaded here by the Moore-McCormack Lines freighter is 2000 tons of oil field pipe for Venezuela.

The 30th annual report of the American Merchant Marine Library Association whose local library is at 820 S. Beacon St., San Pedro, discloses that 552,160 donated books and 788,000 magazines were put aboard 1920 ships in 1951. The association put 7770 library units aboard ships during 6356 shipboard service calls. Since the association was founded in 1921, 9,682,723 books in 179,396

City College Offers Course in Transport

Training for persons interested in the field of transportation and related activities will be conducted at Long Beach City College, Business and Technology Division, 1305 E. Pacific Coast Hwy., beginning Wednesday at 7 p. m.

The schedule of 14 meetings will cover: Bills of lading; classification; tariffs; routing; parcel post and express; claims and claim prevention. Other subjects to be covered during the meetings will be import and export, transportation of household goods, government transportation; regulation of transportation agencies; and air freight. Special instruction in the use of routing guides; rail tariffs; motor freight tariffs; and California highway tariffs will be given toward the close of the series of meetings.

This series of meetings is sponsored by the Traffic and Transportation Club, Don Needle, chairman of the committee, and traffic manager in Long Beach for Douglas Aircraft Co., Inc., states: "The committee feels that in sponsoring this educational program we will help in meeting the ever-increasing demand in the Southern California area for trained traffic and shipping personnel."

library units had been given 48,292 vessels up to the end of last year. Mrs. Alice M. Halladay is librarian at the local port.

Reading is the No. 1 recreation of the sailor and a balanced diet of fiction, technology, outdoor sports, science and current events is always available to him because of the association's activities. The libraries are located at 14 domestic ports. The work is supported 50 per cent by steamship companies, 22.8 by the general public, 12.9 by the National Shipping Authority and the remainder by Lake Carriers Association and undisclosed donors.

In a time of almost universal cost increases, the bottom has dropped out of the charter market, with the transpacific rate falling in a month from $15 per ton of cargo to $6.50. One foreign bulk carrier sailing from here with a cargo for the customarily stipulated "North of Hatteras" designation is reported to have been fixed for less than $5 per ton, said to be a mutual inducement to the cargo shippers and the ship's owners who wanted their vessel in place on the Atlantic coast for seasonal carriage of coal to Europe. Desperate undebidding by owners of idle ships puts a question mark before the future. One operator here says a rate of under $5 is "amazing," although the tramp operators under all flags are going through a global cargo shortage and 50 American Liberty tramps are among those recently laid up.

Class to Open in Navigation

Marine navigation instruction, an evening course that is entering its third year, again will be offered tuition-free at Harbor Junior College, 1111 Figueroa St., Wilmington. Raymond E. Wallace, advertising man, yachtsman and former Coast Guard quartermaster, again will conduct the course, according to Raymond J. Casey, Harbor J. C. director. Instruction will include simplified methods of piloting, dead reckoning, rules of the nautical road, safe boat operation and determining positions by celestial observation. Safe boat handling and accurate navigation will be emphasized, Wallace said, and, in addition to classroom instruction, offshore cruises will be held whenever practicable.

Four college units plus a certificate of completion are awarded to full semester students. Enrollments will be taken at or before 6:30 p. m. Monday at Harbor J. C. Library. All residents of the local area are eligible.

"I'VE HAD ENOUGH," Oscar the penguin seems to say. He was brought here by tuna fishermen from his native Galapagos Archipelago, along with an identical twin, and now they and six sea lions and Maggie, 6-year-old chimpanzee, and a troupe of human performers are outward bound from Long Beach aboard the freighter Mirrabooka to join a circus in Australia. Holding Oscar, prudently with gloves after being nipped several times, is Max Morris, one of the circus men.—(Staff Photo.)

Damaged Tanker May Be Repaired

The present owners of the fire-damaged former Union Oil Co. tanker Victor H. Kelly have no inclination to scrap the vessel, although they are in the ship dismantling business.

National Metals & Steel Co., which bought the Kelly from underwriters to whom she was abandoned revealed she is being kept "as is" at Alameda because of a possibility that she may be repaired.

The Kelly's fleet sister, the T-2 type tanker Lompos, was damaged in the same fire a month ago at Oleum, but is back in service.

Among vessels which National recently received at its Terminal Island yard are the subchasers Visitor I and Emerald Isle. The company is scrapping the little oil tanker San Diego, veteran of the petroleum products trade between here and San Diego.

Catalina Hearing Sept. 23

Public Utilities Commission hearing on petition of Catalina Island Steamship Line to suspend operations will be held Sept. 23 in the commission courtroom, 145 S. Spring St., Los Angeles, Examiner Grant Syphers presiding.

At the same time the commission will consider the proposal of Harbor Water Taxi Co. to take over the company's passenger and freight service during the other company's suspension.

Citing a 43-per-cent decline in passenger volume, and rising costs, Catalina Line is asking time to formulate plans for improved, profitable service.

The company says net revenue declined from $20,125 in 1951 to an estimated $17,827 through September of this year and predicts a loss of $2845 by the end of the year. By the end of 1953, losses would amount to an estimated $164,292.

The company operates SS Catalina. It has permission of the commission to sell the older SS Avalon, laid up at Long Beach and awaiting a buyer.

Steamship Line Added at Harbor

Coming of another steamship line through the local port is announced by Max Linder, president of Transmarine Navigation Corp., agency for various foreign lines.

Transmarine has been appointed representative here of Saguenay Terminals, Ltd., Montreal, which initially will operate one or two ships monthly between Eastern Canada and British Columbia ports, with intermediate stops in the Caribbean, here and San Francisco and San Diego and other ports as inducements offer.

Linder said the eastbound voyage would include Mexican, Central American, Panama Canal and Caribbean ports. Rates, he added, must be established since there has been no previous all-water service over the route.

"We of Transmarine believe this new service presents a great opportunity to Southern California business firms to expand their ever-growing trade with our friends and neighbors in eastern Canada."

WHEN City Jailer Howard Sweet gives a newly introduced acquaintance a "where have I seen you before" look, the other man may have reason to squirm.

Sweet, like the rest of us, is always seeing vaguely familiar faces, but his trouble is that he can't figure out whether he previously met those people at his jail or at some social function.

SALESMEN who dream of happy accidents that put them in good with prospects will envy Lawrence Shelton, a tall man who hawks vacuum sweepers in front of a Pine Ave. hardware store.

Walking down the street, Shelton found a jeweled Order of the Eastern Star pin lying on the sidewalk. He picked it up, pocketed it and forgot it.

Next day he went to give a demonstration to a prospect. When he arrived the lady of the house told him he had caught her in a bad mood. She had lost a beautiful Eastern Star pin that held great sentimental value because friends in the organization had given it to her.

"Would this be your pin?" asked Shelton, taking the pin out of his pocket.

She gasped delightedly. It was her pin, and if Shelton didn't make a vacuum cleaner sale out of that, he's not the salesman I think he is.

EVERYONE has a pet idea for a local reform, and frequently such things get to this desk.

For example, Peggy Lowery, who spend weeks and weeks on Pine Ave. operating a voter registration table, has passed along some comment on what she thinks is the most persistent "bad habit" of Long Beach pedestrians.

"They throw away lighted cigaret and cigar butts," she said. "I've seen it happen hundreds of times."

The lighted butts, she reminds, are a serious fire hazard. Little kids could pick them up and get burned, and birds have been known to carry them to eaves or other places where they set fires. The wind can blow them into doorways.

She's right. Step on those fags if you must discard them on the street.

FOR 25 OR 30 YEARS or maybe longer, Frank Goss, supervising city editor of the Press-Telegram, has been notifying the P-T switchboard operator whenever he leaves his desk. It is a fetish with him, and a worthy one, to keep people informed of his whereabouts.

Long ago, Frank and the 'phone girls established a one-word code system. Frank would simply pick up the 'phone and say something like "lunch" or "home" or "bank" and the girls would know where he would be for a while.

Recently, as everybody knows, the folks from the Independent have moved to the Press-Telegram building. Especially welcome among the newcomers was a bevy of telephone operators.

The other morning Frank picked up his 'phone and a cheery but strange voice announced:

"Operator."
"Cackleberries!" said Frank.
"Uh-uh-hhh what?" came a startled gasp over the wire.

"Cackleberries means eggs and eggs mean breakfast," said Frank, never a man to fool around about definitions.

ONE NEVER knows from what direction will come the next bit of friendly advice, or what the nature of the advice may be.

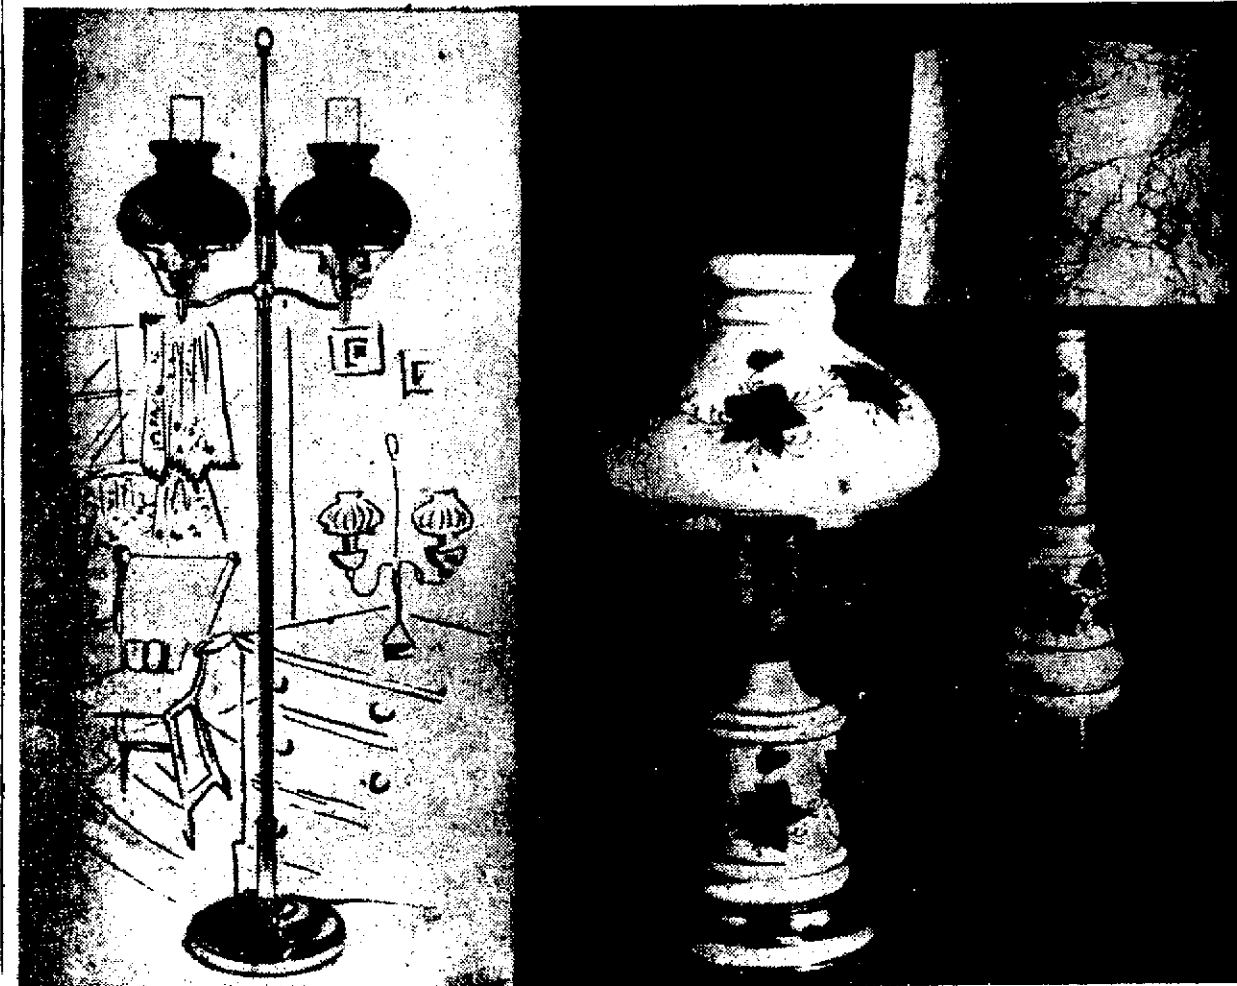

For instance, consider the experience of a young Long Beach woman shopping in a local store the other day. She was approached by another shopper, a small woman dressed conservatively in a long, black dress.

"My dear," said the small woman in a friendly half-whisper, "if you ever get in a family way—please don't wear shorts on the streets."

School Anxiety May Give Junior Nausea

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — (UPI)—Anxiety over going to school makes some children ill with headaches and nausea. And this may be traced in numerous cases to reading difficulties, according to Dr. R. Swartout of El Monte, Calif.

Few adults can realize the tremendous tension and feelings of insecurity that a child has when faced with a school day during which he is "expected to do the impossible," according to Dr. Swartout.

From 4 to 12 per cent of school children have reading difficulties, Dr. Swartout points out in the current issue of GP, magazine of the American Academy of General Practice. This inability to read, called dyslexia, has the most warping effect on children between the ages of 5 and 9, he believes.

Parents or teachers too often feel that the child is not trying or that he is inferior, while actually some other cause is at the base of the difficulty. This may be bad hearing, poor vision or strephosymbolia (mixing symbols, like mistaking an n for a u). The difficulty may be due to low intelligence, but other causes should be checked first, the doctor advises.

Since 12 1/2 per cent of the population is ambidextrous, in this group mixing symbols is apt to occur. The dyslexic may be right-handed by use and left-eyed, for example.

While adults with reading difficulties will simply not attempt to read, the California doctor asserts, children are expected to, and cannot avoid the anxiety of a bad performance.

Three ways to approach the problem are suggested.

1. Diagnosis by the family physician.

2. Enveloping the child with loving individual attention.

3. De-emphasizing the great importance of reading and school, and concentration in other fields, where the child has skills.

India's Pensioned Princes Expect Big Slash in Pay

By SELIG S. HARRISON

NEW DELHI—(UPI)—India's 294 pensioned princes are listening in gloom while politicians publicly argue their fate in a darkening future.

Popular clamor against privileges won by the princes when the new Indian government took over their domains in 1947 has increased since announcement of the recent agreement between India and Kashmir.

Hereditary rule by the Kashmir maharajah will end under the pact signed by Prime Minister Nehru and Sheikh Abdullah. The Kashmir constituent assembly will elect the state's head.

REACTIONS EXPECTED
Obviously referring to the seven other princes besides the Kashmir maharajah who now act as rajapramukhs, or constitutional heads of Indian states, Nehru told parliament last month that "undoubtedly, what is happening in Kashmir must have its reactions elsewhere."

He dismissed the life term appointments of the rajapramukhs with the comment that "this decision to give life tenure to anybody in a particular office is . . . not in keeping with either modern thought or intelligent thought."

Then Nehru took a swipe at the government's annual 58,000,000 rupees ($12,180,000) pension payments to the princes, terming them "very large, unnecessarily large."

Princely pensions range from the Nizam of Hyderabad's 5,000,000 rupees ($1,050,000) a year to the 192 rupees ($40) received by the one-time ruler of Kotadia, a tiny section of the present state of Saurashtra.

OTHER PAYMENTS

In between are the maharajah of Mysore, who gets 2,600,000 rupees ($546,000); Gwalior with 2,500,000 rupees ($525,000) and Travancore-Cochin with 1,800,000 ($378,000).

By agreement all payments are under 1,000,000 rupees ($210,000) except for 11 rulers—the Nizam and the maharajahs of Mysore, Gwalior, Travancore-Cochin, Patiala, Indore-Jaipur, Bikaner, Jodhpur, Bhopal and Baroda.

Successors of the 11 were to get no more than the 1,000,000 maximum. The maharajah of Jodhpur died in an air crash. The maharajah of Baroda was deposed by the states ministry on charges of organizing a princely combine against the government.

How long payments to successors would be made has not been settled. It wasn't even mentioned in the agreements.

2,450,000 Total Registration in County Forecast

Prediction that the registration for the Nov. 4 general election in Los Angeles County will reach the record total of 2,450,000 was made Saturday by Deputy Registrar of Voters Harry Chapman.

Chapman said he based his belief on information gained from reports of the hundreds of field deputies who worked up until midnight Thursday taking the signatures of last-minute voters.

When Chapman figured the last official registration total for this month, it was 2,362,284. Since then, the last-minute rush took place and Chapman makes his prediction of 2,450,000 should be correct when all the figures are tabulated. The previous registration high for any election in Los Angeles County was 2,353,548 at the June 3 primary election.

Plane Talk

By DON BRACKENBURY

If there isn't a sudden change in the weather between press time and the time you read this, Bellflower Airport fliers and their friends will be frolicking at the beach at Ventura this morning.

They plan a 7 a. m. takeoff from Bellflower, flying to Ventura Airport. Breakfast will be cooked and eaten on the beach, which is a few steps away. They'll return by noon.

If Ventura weather doesn't co-operate, the flight will go to Apple Valley.

Speaking of Bellflower Airport, its owner, Jim Most, is in Arkansas on business. Jim flew down last week in his Cessna 190 and plans to return Thursday or Friday.

Passengers on the trip as far as Wichita, Kan., were Francis Clark of the Clark Gun Shop, Norwalk, and two friends. Clark recently purchased a Cessna 170 from Most and went back to the factory to pick it up and fly it back.

Another trip of some proportions is being flown this week end by Diana Bixby of Bixby Airborne Products at Long Beach Municipal Airport.

She is piloting the firm's C-47 to Alaska to pick up two helicopters of Rotor Age Co. of Oakland. The helicopter firm has been doing work for the Army engineers in Alaska. The Bixby company ferried the helicopters up there last spring.

Diana's due back tonight and it's a good thing because Monday night she will be hostess to Long Beach chapter of Ninety-Nines at a spaghetti feed at her home. Following the dinner the women fliers, their husbands and their guests will view motion pictures and colored slides of the 1952 All Women's Transcontinental Air Race.

Wilfred J. Cowell, 218 Rivo Alto Canal, who came here just a short while ago from England, has been appointed a research lab analyst for Northrop Aircraft, Inc., at its Hawthorne plant.

Prior to his arrival in the states Cowell was a development engineer with the Rotax Ltd. aircraft firm of London.

Four-year-old Barbara Cain, daughter of George Cain, district manager here for Western Air Lines, was being questioned the other day by friends of the family about a recent air trip she took.

"Did your daddy fly the plane?" she was asked.

"Oh, no," said Barbara. "It was two other men—the co-pilot and the hot pilot."

The Regional Planning Commission, which last month ruled against the Bellflower Airport on the question of continuing aircraft operations there, on Oct. 20 will hear an appeal of San Gabriel Valley Airport for permission to use the reservoir area behind the Santa Fe dam as an airstrip.

The field would replace the Monrovia Airport, which was another victim of the steadily growing residential areas.

Baker Aircraft Sales at Long Beach airport, in conjunction with the Riley Flying Service of El Monte, has a Piper Tri-Pacer on display at Los Angeles County Fair.

As previously mentioned in this column, John V. Baker and his secretary, Gretchen Zeiss, were in Sacramento last week with an exhibit of two planes at the state fair. It turns out that they sold both planes they had on display there and had to drive home in the lowly automobile.

Also in Sacramento last week were Mr. and Mrs. Leo Yoder of Aircraft Sales and Brokerage at the local airport. They were delivering a Stinson to a Sacramento physician. They had better luck coming home than the Baker entourage. In fact, they flew back in the ship in which Baker and Miss Zeiss originally went north.

We also heard via a rather indirect route that J. Walter (Spud to you) Martin of Aircraft Associates has just taken delivery on a Super Cub PA18A for use in his crop-dusting service. It's operating out of Cypress Airport.

Air-Oasis Co. of Long Beach has applied to the Air Taxi Conference in Washington for a permit to operate interconnecting flights with scheduled air lines in this area, according to Tom Sheridan, Stan Trimble, who recently joined Air-Oasis' staff, is heading a newly established air taxi department with the company. Passenger and cargo service is offered via Cessna 170 or 195, says Stan.

Dr. and Mrs. Donald B. Truitt, who are among the most active of local flying physicians, are on a week-end jaunt to Carmel. They are due back this evening.

Port Authorities to Hold Meeting

Annual two-day meeting of California Association of Port Authorities will open with an informal stag dinner at the Hotel Claremont in Oakland Thursday evening, with Long Beach and Los Angeles Harbor officials in attendance.

Topics to be discussed the following day include tariffs and practices, small boat regulation, a stand on tuna imports, tide-lands legislation, freight rate differentials and representation of the association at the October meeting of the Japan Ports and Harbors Association in Kobe.

Port Manager E. J. Amar and Harbor Commissioner John P. Davis of Long Beach are among those scheduled to attend the meeting in Kobe.

Maj. John Shoden Wins Flying Cross

Marine Maj. John C. Shoden, 29, who has been serving in Korea since Feb. 1, has received the Distinguished Flying Cross, it has been learned here.

The citation says "For heroism and extraordinary achievement while participating in aerial flight against the enemy in Korea April 10, 1952."

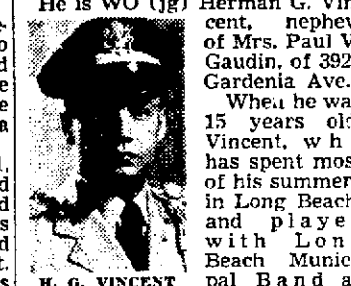

The flight was directed to attack heavy artillery pieces and bunkers. On his first run, Shoden located one gun position and despite intense ground fire, pressed his attack to an extremely low altitude. The result was a direct hit on the gun position with his 1000-pound bomb. On a subsequent run, Shoden located a machine gun position which was firing at the flight. He immediately directed his attack to this position and despite being hit by ground fire courageously continued his attack until the position was destroyed. He then resumed attacks on the assigned target, expending the remainder of his ordnance on enemy bunkers and trenches. He was largely responsible for the destruction of one artillery position, seven bunkers and one anti-aircraft position.

Previously Maj. Shoden had been awarded the Air Medal and Purple Heart. He was injured in action March 28. He was made a major June 28.

The officer is the son of Mrs. Louella Shoden, 824 Hoffman Ave., and brother of Richard Shoden, 265 Roycroft Ave. His wife, Jan, and daughter, Melinda, live at 910 Buffalo St., Santa Ana.

5000 Moose Expected at State Meet Here

An executive meeting of the California Moose Association, in the Rose Room of the Wilton Hotel Wednesday evening will herald opening of the 19th annual state convention of the Loyal Order of Moose in California.

The convention, which is expected to be attended by 5000 Moose, will continue through Saturday and will officially open Thursday at 10 a. m. in Municipal Auditorium, where the delegates will be welcomed by civic leaders.

Archie Prowant, secretary of the Long Beach Moose Lodge and general chairman of the convention, said the largest class of Moose candidates ever inducted will be enrolled in the order Friday evening by Harry Albert, governor of the Long Beach lodge.

L. B. Man on Copter Rescue as Chest Goal

Lt. William F. Collins Jr., son of Capt. W. F. Collins, salvage master, 2410 Chestnut Ave., will become the USS Helena's helicopter pilot in spot and rescue flying.

The 34-year-old veteran of World War II and ferry command pilot was called to duty some time ago and has been in helicopter training at Pensacola, Fla., and Corpus Christi, Texas. He is scheduled to leave here Monday for his tour of duty with the Helena.

Lt. Collins is married and is the father of three children.

A goal of $554,200 has been set as the quota for the 1952 Community Chest campaign, David E. Beeman, campaign chairman, announced Saturday.

Beeman also announced divisional quotas as follows: Residential, $104,500; industrial, $85,000; public employees, $63,800; finance, $60,000; oil companies, $58,000; retail stores, $58,500; commercial, $49,000; professional men, $28,800, and large industries, $31,000.

The figures are based upon a study made by an evaluation committee and upon contributions last year, Beeman said.

Tootsie Tickles London!

By JAMES STERLING

Betsy Duncan, a blonde curve with a smile, Saturday night closed a two-week engagement at London's capital of big-time vaudeville, the Palladium.

Betsy sang "Zing" and "I'm Yours," danced and played straight man for Bob Hope.

The tough London reviewers, some of whom have seen every Yankee vaudeville since George X. Cohan, dropped their monodies and proclaimed a "sensational new starlet."

BETSY DUNCAN is Tootsie Dewar, who went from Wilson High School to glory as a princess on the fairy barge that won the sweepstakes crown for Long Beach in the Tournament of Roses in 1949.

Her Palladium introduction under the auspices of Comedian Hope capped a month-long triumphal tour of England and the continent for the rocketing Long Beach miss.

She had sailed for Europe with Hope's troupe aboard the SS United States, a floating hotel fireproof against everything but torches like Tootsie. The Dewar dervish ignited the audience in a shipboard entertainment as the partner of Georgie Jessel, the best known master of ceremonies since Nero.

WITH THE HOPE entourage, Tootsie toured Paris, Monte Carlo and all Gaul, including the Scandinavian. Today she is en route to Scotland, letters have informed a Long Beach sister, Mrs. Tom White. After that there'll be

Germany and then...

Hollywood has got the word. Said the Palladium review relayed from London to Variety:

"Betsy... sings quite pleasantly and duets with Hope effectively."

When you write for Variety you leave your monodie home. So it looks as if Tootsie has arrived.

GI Yule Mail Period Listed

Christmas packages for servicemen overseas should be mailed between Oct. 15 and Nov. 15, Postmaster Howard K. Goodwin said today.

Boxes to be shipped overseas must be of double-faced corrugated cardboard, strong wood, metal or fibreglass, should be tied with strong cord, and have loose end flaps, sealed with gummed tape.

The deadline for air parcel post packages up to two pounds in weight is Nov. 25, Goodwin said. After that time, however, neither the post office nor the Defense Department can promise either air mail shipment or delivery by Christmas.

Herbert Play Here Monday

The merry, outspoken and charming comedy, "The Moon Is Blue," which has exceeded all comedy hits since "The Voice of the Turtle," comes to Municipal Auditorium Concert Hall for one performance only Monday night.

For the Pacific Coast production the producers have assembled an all-star cast, including David Niven, Diana Lynn and Scott Brady.

This tale of a naive girl, who meets a young architect on the observation tower of the Empire State Building in New York City, and goes to his apartment for dinner, has been packing the Henry Miller Theater on Broadway for the past 18 months, and only recently closed a run of 15 months at the Harris Theater, Chicago, establishing a record for that playhouse. It also played the United Nations (formerly Alcazar) Theater, San Francisco, for a five-week engagement, turning away thousands of theaters on the final week. It has just completed a five-week engagement at the Biltmore Theater, Los Angeles, where it enjoyed record-breaking success.

JUDGE WORRIED BY INCREASE

Molest Cases Studied

A piece of candy... a ride on the merry-go-round... a milk shake... a few coins. That's all a potential child molester needs to lure an unsuspecting boy or girl into a position where the child will be at his mercy.

Although Long Beach cannot point to any sensational crimes recently against children, the shocking fact remains that 45 child molesting suspects have been arraigned in Long Beach Superior Court in the past three months.

That is an average of one every two days! Yet, for each of those 45 molester suspects who were netted, the district attorney's office can point to two or three others who were permitted to slip away because either a child victim's parents did not want to prosecute or because the child was not a competent witness.

A child molester, according to Section 268 of the California Penal Code, is a person who shall commit any lewd or lascivious act upon the body of a child under the age of 14, with the intent of arousing the passions of such person or of the child.

ALL CLASSES A "288" might be anyone you see on the street. Of the 45 suspects mentioned above, one was a doctor's son, another a department store display manager, while among the others were a non-commissioned Army officer, salesman, musician, painter, college student, mailman, carpenter, carnival hustler and truck driver.

Twenty-two of those 45 suspects are Long Beach men. Nine are from San Pedro, five from Wilmington and one each from Compton, Bellflower, Torrance, Artesia, Lomita, Orange, Harbor City, Redondo Beach and Huntington Park.

The 45 range in age from 18 to 70. Although 16 are in the 31-40 age bracket, 13 (almost one-third) are "over 50." A breakdown of the 45 suspects' ages follows:

Age Bracket	Total
Over 50 years	13
41 to 50	5
31 to 40	16
21 to 30	8
Under 20	2

Is there a reason for the upsurge in recent years of molest cases? Judge Fred Miller, who views each suspect as a potential danger in the Long Beach Superior Court criminal division, thinks so. He blames it on too much emphasis today on sex.

LURID COVERS "Sex confronts us everywhere. We walk down a street and see lurid magazine cover illustrations, theater display pictures and window portraits. Some women pedestrians are nearly naked.

"A man with abnormal tendencies is driven to some course of action by all this. He looks for an outlet. He may find it with a child who is too naive and weak to oppose him."

Child molesters convicted from this area are sent to Norwalk State Hospital for 90 days' observation. If adjudged psychopaths, they receive further treatment there indefinitely or are sentenced to a state prison where added facilities are available. Some men are confined at Terminal Island, where extensive treatment is available also.

If they're not psychopaths, the men are sentenced either to a state prison or county jail to serve a regular prescribed term. Is there a remedy?

"Tone down emphasis on sex tomorrow and crimes against children will decrease immediately," Judge Miller stated. "A partial solution now, however, would be better discipline in the home. Parents coddle little Willie nowadays so that the boy grows up thinking he can get away with anything."

'Adlai' Showed California He's Witty—but Was He Convincing?

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIANS got their first look at campaigner Adlai Stevenson this week. Most agreed that this jaunty fellow with the warm smile and the glacial wit was something different in the way of political personalities. But if they couldn't quite figure him out, it may have been because some of the things he said weren't quite as meaningful as the manner in which they were spoken.

Stevenson repeated in his Shrine Auditorium speech one of his favorite criticisms of the opposition. "They (the Republicans) don't speak well of one another any more." His infatuation with the idea of an irreparably divided GOP began at the Democratic convention, where he delighted a completely partisan audience by calling the GOP a schizophrenic party—one with a split personality.

But it's time Adlai reconsidered his argument. The men who are supposed to represent two personalities of the so-called "schizo" GOP—Gen. Eisenhower and Sen. Taft—have just had a friendly chat, and Taft has vowed his support for Ike. Meanwhile, down south the Democrats have opened a wide rent in their own party. A Texas governor with a name that tells what he's giving the party bigwigs—Shivers—has plastered Stevenson as the heir of Trumanism. The Eisenhower-Nixon slate has been placed on the ballot in Texas under a Democratic label. And all over the south Democratic leaders are threatening to take a walk on Nov. 4.

Examples of dissension may be found within Republican ranks, of course. But Gov. Stevenson, repudiated by some of the most tenacious of Democrats, is hardly in a position to take a supercilious attitude toward GOP intra-party squabbles. He's living in a glass house.

Stevenson did admit there are some good Republicans. One, he said, is California's Gov. Earl Warren. Good Republican Warren, by the way, is a solid supporter of Gen. Eisenhower.

The warm gesture toward Warren comes right in the midst of state Democrats' hue and cry against crossfiling and for greater party responsibility. Warren has done very well in a state with predominantly Democratic registration. He won one of his terms in a primary election, in which "cross-voting" Democrats provided the margin of victory for him. So while state Democratic leaders are urging party solidarity to prevent further such occurrences, Stevenson in effect congratulates California Democrats for their good sense in crossing party lines to support Warren. Perhaps state Democratic leaders can only conclude that Stevenson hasn't much sense of party responsibility. Or perhaps they are merely sorry that they forgot to brief him.

A charge which Stevenson and other Democrats hurl is that Gen. Eisenhower is vague in his prescription of remedies for the nation's ills. Yet Stevenson is no more specific in his own prescriptions. In his Los Angeles speech he rejected all Republican solutions to the problem of world conflict. And he offered this solution: "I do say that the policy of building the strength and unity of free nations will reduce the haunting fear of war." That sounds nice, but it's hardly what you'd call a concrete design for a better future.

The truth probably is that neither Ike nor Stevenson wishes to offer detailed panaceas because the intellectual integrity of each forbids such presumption. But that same honesty should prevent either from charging that the other is vague.

Gov. Stevenson did a lot of inconclusive and almost apologetic talking about the issue of corruption in government. At one point, when he said the cost of legislation for special interests is more than the cost of corruption, he seemed to be trying to excuse corruption with the argument that one evil justifies another.

Most taxpayers will have difficulty in swallowing his statement that corruption is not a major issue. Corruption in government is an established fact. It means that millions of tax dollars have been wasted, misused, and stolen. When such things happen to the money of the people, it is the most serious of issues; the morality of our government is in question.

Stevenson tried to give the impression that Eisenhower says corruption is the only issue of the campaign. But Eisenhower's words were "the mess in Washington"—by which he meant not merely corruption but the inept handling of foreign affairs, disloyal officials, the high cost of living, and the trend toward socialism.

If the truth were told, Stevenson probably realizes as well as Eisenhower does that most of the Republican estimates of the mess left by the Truman administration are accurate.

But the Illinois governor has inherited that record and must defend it.

One can credit him with possessing the hope that after he has paid his tribute, and if he is elected, he may be able to clean up the mess. But the big questions are:

Are the people willing to endorse a record of ineptitude? Are they willing to keep in power the party which authored that record, on the hope that a new Democratic administration will be able to break the shackles of the old?

Or are the people determined to hand that party its due rebuke and elect Eisenhower, a proven leader who has no shackles to break and who offers a clean sweep?

Good Sign: Press Prints Raps at Press

LAST week the nation's newspapers gave prominent display to two stories in which the nation's newspapers were sharply panned.

The stories reported comments by Gov. Stevenson and President Truman, who asserted this two-party country has a one-party press. The Democratic campaign team, of course, made note of the fact that Democrats have been winning Presidential elections for some time now, despite editorial opposition of most of the newspapers.

That these comments were treated as important news by the papers was a wholesome demonstration of the way a free and responsible press works. No one, of course, could deny that newspapers generally have editorially opposed Democratic Presidential candidates for several elections. But the fact the papers used the critical stories as they did clearly refuted any sinister implications in the situation.

It showed the papers printing the news as it comes, which is their first and most important function.

All through the campaign, papers in this vicinity have been giving their readers full accounts of the campaign efforts of both the Democratic and Republican Presidential candidates. The same thing has been going on over the country. When the newspapers suppress legitimate news on one side, to the advantage of the other, they are definitely vulnerable to criticism, but that seems to be the exception rather than the rule.

Getting right down to home base, the Press-Telegram and the Independent and the Sunday Independent-Press-Telegram are following the policy of covering campaign news on a news-worthy basis, regardless of the candidate or party it concerns.

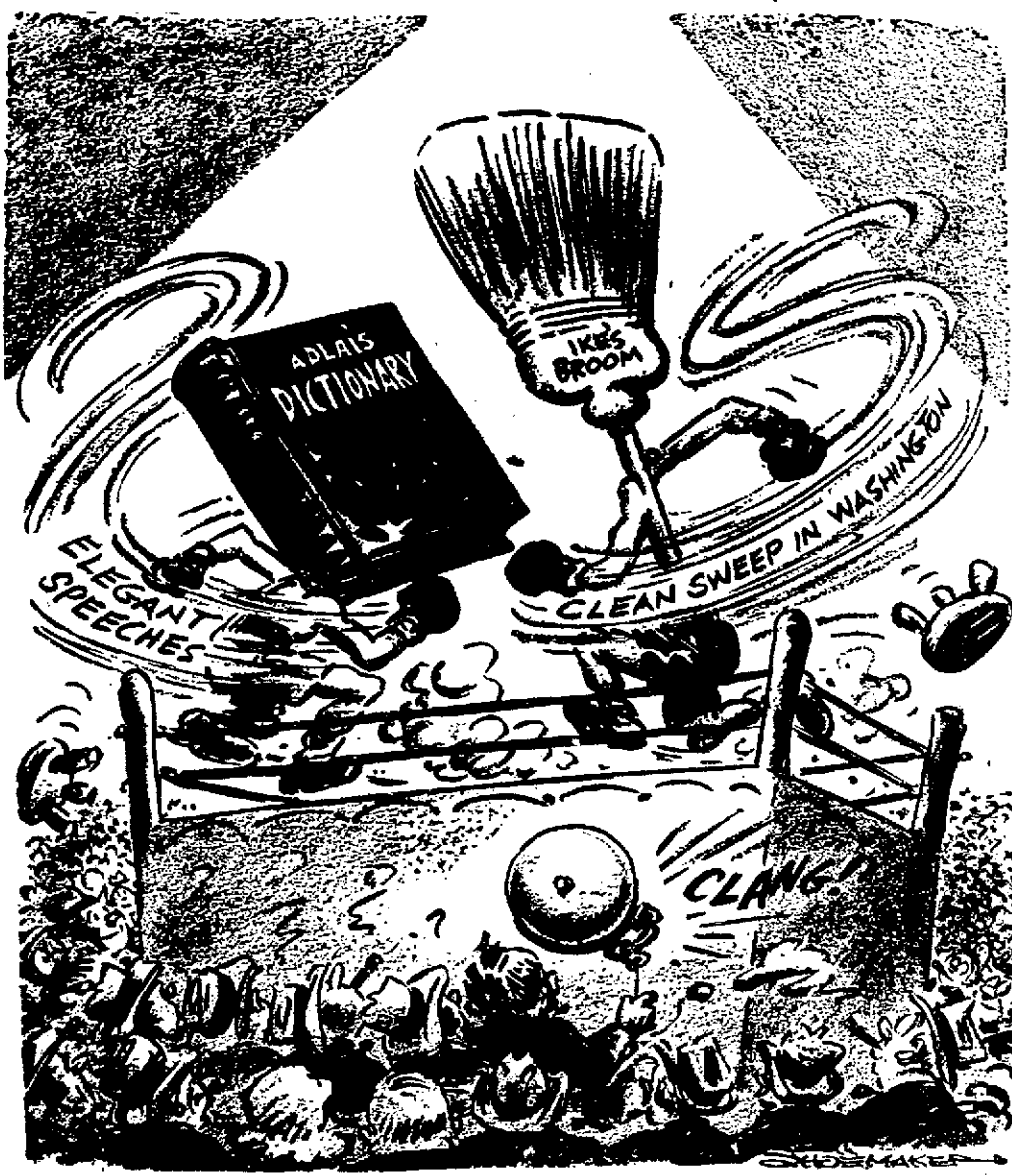

Many partisans, disagreeing with the editorial policy of a newspaper, fail to give credit for impartial news coverage. And it is an old trick of politicians, who don't have the editorial favor of a newspaper, to howl "unfair!" simply to blunt the effect of editorial disapproval. To show how blinding partisanship can get, consider two complaints which reached this editorial desk in the last week. One was from a woman who said her husband was a dyed-in-the-wool Democrat and could "hardly stand" the way the Republicans got all the "breaks" in the papers. The other was from

Missouri River Pork Barrel Under Gun

PEACEFUL summer weather has taken the turbulent Missouri River out of the headlines, but a commission of Congressmen and Missouri Valley residents headed by James Lawrence of the Lincoln, Neb., Star, has spent several weeks studying ways to prevent future floods.

Chief conclusion of the commission is heading toward is to ditch the Army engineers' old idea of making the Missouri River navigable.

This is a pork-barrel project popular back in the days of the Coolidge-Hoover administrations. Almost every Congress since then has voted some funds to deepen the channel of the Mighty Mo so as to bring a trickle of barges up as far as Omaha.

FLOOD MENACE
Testimony before the Missouri River Commission is that navigation up the Missouri is so negligible that it's not worth preserving. On the other hand, the Army engineers' job of straightening out the channel, according to testimony, rushes flood waters down stream at faster speed and increases the flood menace.

Whether the Army engineers will drop their pet project of Missouri navigation remains to be seen. They have now been plugging it for two decades, have built up one of the most powerful lobbies in Washington through this type of pork barrel.

However, the Missouri Valley commission has listened to a lot of highly unfavorable testimony about the Army engineers and is almost certain to issue a critical report.

Note—Chief originator of the Missouri Valley commission is Sen. Tom Hennings, Missouri Democrat, who sold the idea to President Truman. He and Chairman Lawrence have held such long sessions—sometimes from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m.—that their stenographers complain bitterly.

LEGAL SUMMERS
Most people have the idea that Supreme Court justices fritter away the summer when no court is in session. However, the nine black-robed members of the highest court in the land are back in Washington after only semi-leisurely vacations.

What always keeps them busy are "certs"—the Supreme Court name for "writs of certiorari." These are petitions to the court to hear certain cases. And since the court itself decides what cases it shall hear, every justice takes a big stack of "certs" to be read during the summer. Aside from this, here is how members of the court spent their summer:

Chief Justice Fred Vinson stayed in Washington; went every day to his office in the Supreme Court Building; nursed Mrs. Vinson, who was recovering from an operation; played a little bridge.

Justice Hugo Black — Also stayed in Washington, except for a brief trip to his home in Alabama. Black played at least three sets of tennis every day.

Justice Tom Clark—Invaded the jurisdiction of Washington government girls by completely mastering, without instruction, the curlicues of shorthand. He did this in order to help him take notes when lawyers argue before the court. Clark also visited his 6-month-old granddaughter in Texas, attended the eighth circuit judicial conference in St. Louis, dipped occasionally in the Chevy Chase pool.

Justice Harold Burton — Attended two judicial conferences at Denver and Atlantic City, spent two weeks at the old retreat of Chief Justice Stone at Peckett's on Sugar Hill, Franconia, N. H., visited Senator and Mrs. Taft at Manoir Richelieu on Murray Bay, then stopped to see their two daughters and son in Cleveland.

Justice Burton greatly enjoyed getting away from legal tomes. "I did some reading," he said, "and not just law books. I read Rachel Carson's 'The Sea Around Us,' Thoreau's book on the Maine woods, and an astronomy book entitled 'The Stars.'"

Justice William O. Douglas—As usual, surrendered to the wanderlust with a tour of Southeast Asia. He visited the Philippines, Singapore, took a dangerous trip up the Malay peninsula through the guerrilla country, also Rangoon, Bangkok, Saigon, in Indo China, Hong Kong, Formosa and Korea.

Justice Stanley Reed — Spent most of the summer on his old family farm in Mason County, Kentucky, which has been in his family since before 1814. Reed did a little farming, a lot of reading, and some resting. One afternoon Mrs. Reed wondered where he was, later discovered he had visited the old family cemetery. "It was so peaceful there," Reed said, "I just lay down beside grandfather's tombstone and went to sleep." Grandfather Chilc was a general in the War of 1812.

Justice Bob Jackson — Did some fishing in the far west and took his son to the famed Bohemian grove encampment in the California redwoods.

Justice Sherman Minton—Was seen a lot by the neighbors of New Albany, Ind., his old home. Aside from a few trips around Indiana, he spent his time there reading certis and answering mail.

Justice Felix Frankfurter — Summered as usual at his home on Cape Cod.

Both Candidates Fumbling Biggest Issue

WASHINGTON. Two bewildered, befuddled and confused candidates for the Presidency—neither one of them coming to grips with the tragic international situation.

That's the way the campaign is shaping up on the most vital issue of the day—foreign policy.

Gov. Stevenson offers "negotiation" with the Communists. Gen. Eisenhower offers "liberation" for the oppressed peoples behind the Iron Curtain but he backtracks as soon as this bit of forward-looking philosophy is misrepresented and distorted on the stump by President Truman, Gov. Stevenson and Secretary Acheson.

The Democratic nominee is at least consistent with the Truman-Acheson policy of retreat, compromise and appeasement. The favorite phrase used by the administration to describe its foreign policy is "containment of Russia." This is a synonym for passivity—the Soviet Union, with its control of 700,000,000 people, is to be permitted to develop and consolidate its position while the United States is to do nothing but threaten war by means of an increasing armament program in the United States, a small army of NATO divisions and a paper army called "The European defense army."

COLD TRUTH
Meanwhile, what is the cold, realistic truth? The European nations are backing away from their arms program because they simply cannot afford it. The slowdown is apparent in every European country on our side.

The United States, with the highest tax rates in history, is inflating its currency, diminishing the value of the dollar and keeping a so-called "prosperity" going by a continuous spending of more than the government is taking in.

This is a program not of "containment of Russia," but a program to bleed America—and it fits in with Soviet purposes.

For America is being bled not only on the economic and financial side, but it is being bled physically. More than 117,000 casualties have been reported from Korea. Tens of thousands of American boys are being drafted every month.

The Korean war will never be ended till Russia is forced by cir-

children are crowded into rooms inadequately staffed with teachers just does not make sense. And yet, a change will be resisted by parents and some educators until the schools are so overloaded with debt and overhead costs no other course will be possible.

This new state bond issue is for the state to give money to school districts which have already exceeded their bonding capacity for buildings and equipment. Long Beach is not yet in that position. These school districts are financially bankrupt in so far as credit for buildings is concerned. But with their present buildings empty a fourth of the time they seek state aid to build more buildings. If they operated 12 months a year they would automatically increase their number of rooms by almost a third.

As for two more high schools in our local district, where we now have three—that would make five or an increase of two-thirds, assuming the same size schools will be constructed. Actually four schools operated on a 12-month schedule would require only one more high school. One school in Lakewood would save a lot of travel time and serve a rapidly growing district. But two more high schools would not be needed in Long Beach if we would use what we have effectively.

Once again we point out that it is not the school officials who oppose this plan. It is the parents who object to the inconvenience of changing vacation habits. We are not an educator and therefore not qualified to lay out a program of how a 12-month system would be worked. But we have been told by well qualified educators that the plan is entirely practical. But none of them are willing to face the opposition of the PTA or others who insist upon the 9-month system, devised 100 years ago, to allow youngsters to be available to help with the crops during the best growing and harvesting months.

It will be many years before a new system is adopted for the younger children. But there is good reason for adopting it in our high schools immediately. If the 9-10-11 and 12 grades were combined into three, rather than four, years, it would provide for one-third more students without additional buildings. Only a few more teachers would be needed because the present staff would work 11 months instead of 9. The additional pay would greatly raise their living standards.

It will be argued this will bring the young people out of school too soon. Such arguments are not consistent with our changing times. The average marriage age has been lowered two years over the past 20 years. Boys are drafted at 19 years and may be at 18. More young people are needed in jobs. The earlier they get started in college or the work they prefer the better start they have up the ladder of success.

Surely something must be done to stop the spiraling cost of all governmental functions. Schools should not be exempt. They too can be more efficient with better planning. In a state where population is static there is no problem. In California with its tremendous population increases some drastic change must be made. Someone needs to think about using what we have rather than constantly asking the taxpayers to pay for something else. L.A.C.

RETURN

The little girl has been away; Likewise the little boy. We've lived through many a peaceful day We fancied we'd enjoy.

Eight weeks ago they went to camp, And we have been alone. The quiet of a reading lamp For all that time we've known. We've had no romping through the place; No shrieks of joy or pain; No healthy legs the rooms to race, No pleas for peace in vain.

Now pleasanter it seems to me To hear a banging door, And happier I'm sure we are To have them home once more.

Taft Promises Lift in Campaign Fervor

By JOHN S. KNIGHT

Publisher Chicago Daily News, Detroit Free Press

THE WEEK'S three most important political developments were Gov. Adlai Stevenson's foreign policy speech at San Francisco, Sen. McCarthy's smashing victory in Wisconsin, and the success of Gen. Eisenhower's bid for support from the Taft wing of the Republican party.

In the city where the United Nations was born, Stevenson got down to the serious business of discussing our role in a chaotic and muddled world.

It was a good speech, if one could forget the past and overlook the dismal record of Gov. Stevenson's party in the field of foreign affairs.

He talked of the need to give material aid to the new nations of Asia, to recognize their desire for independence and to show them the United States is not pursuing a policy of domination.

Stevenson stoutly defended the actions of the administration in Korea and spoke proudly of our courage in resisting ruthless, cynical aggression.

But I suspect the speech was significant because of what Stevenson failed to say.

Stevenson's full approval of the administration's actions in Korea took no account of the circumstances leading up to that ghastly and unnecessary war.

He preferred not to say that Dean Acheson has been the architect of our foreign policy since 1949 and a power in the State Department when the Yalta and Potsdam pacts were negotiated.

The Democratic candidate didn't inform his nation-wide audience that Acheson, in January of 1950, gave a green light to Soviet aggression by insisting that Korea was not to be included in "our defense perimeter."

While it is easy to agree with Stevenson that "the men and women of Asia desire not only to rise from wretchedness of body . . . and abasement of spirit," it is not quite so easy to forget our failures in the Far East and the men most responsible for them.

If Stevenson has such abiding faith in our foreign policy, he must have a correspondingly high regard for the Secretary of State who formulates and guides that policy.

Let him, therefore, speak up for Acheson and challenge the Republicans to reply.

The voters will relish a chance to have a look at the dirt under the State Department rug.

ALL SORTS of explanations are being made for Joe McCarthy's impressive triumph in Wisconsin, but the best we have seen comes from Fred Sparks.

Since returning from Korea, Correspondent Sparks has been covering the national campaign on the people's level. He doesn't consort with the professional politicians. His assignment is voters and voters' reactions. Sparks says:

"By voting for McCarthy, thousands felt they were voting against Dean Acheson, against the draft of their sons, against the bleeding war in Korea, against the loss of China to the Reds, against excessive involvement in far-off places."

Because of McCarthy's often reckless charges and ruthless tactics, the Senator has long been a target of the "responsible" press, the "liberal" columnists and the "enlightened" radio oracles.

To use Sparks' expression, they have been bombarding McCarthy from the martini-lined foxholes of New York and Washington.

Even if you don't approve of McCarthy's methods, it is clearly the right of the voters in his state to send the man of their choice back to the United States Senate.

That is why Sen. William Benton of Connecticut made a consummate ass of himself by introducing a Senate resolution branding McCarthy unfit to serve in that legislative body.

The people of Wisconsin clearly resented interference of the Bentons and other out-of-state busybodies in their personal affairs.

Some of Eisenhower's advisers who have been urging the general to repudiate McCarthy must have felt a bit sheepish as they read the returns from dairyland.

SEN. TAFT'S unqualified approval of Gen. Eisenhower's basic policies clears the air and is certain to increase the fervor of the campaign in Taftland, where the general has been concentrating his efforts in the last week.

Earlier, Eisenhower's frank and disarming talk to Cook County Republicans on the ward level healed some sore spots in Chicago. He is returning to the Chicago area this week to apply more of the same treatment.

Wherever Eisenhower has had a chance to meet Republican politicians face to face he has made real progress.

Taft's statement following his meeting with Eisenhower Friday confirms our repeated assertions that the two were never as widely apart on public issues as has been frequently represented.

The most important items in the understanding reached by Taft and Eisenhower were on the necessity of lessening the tax burden; the need for regulating big labor as well as big business, through the principles of the Taft-Hartley Act; the wisdom of recognizing the view of the important wing of the Republican party which Taft represents.

Taft will add a punch to the Eisenhower campaign which has hitherto been lacking. He is an impassioned believer in liberty as opposed to the regimentation of the individual which is inseparable from welfare statism. He has the material, the capacity and the desire to attack the Democratic record boldly and effectively.

LIKE SOME READING MATTER?—Gerald Desmond, left, 70th Assembly Democratic candidate, is shown handing Gov. Adlai Stevenson a copy of Sheridan Downey's book, "The Truth About the Tidelands." This happened at Los Angeles Thursday, when Desmond and Congressional Nominee Joe Kennick failed to get Stevenson into a discussion of the tidelands but were informed by the Presidential candidate that he doesn't know too much about the question. Stevenson is on record as opposed to the states on the issue of ownership of the oil-laden submerged lands.

Town Meeting

Dynamic Mom

TO THE EDITOR: For years I've been reading and hearing about the poor working man. Now we're having politicians by the hundreds crammed down our throats while the mothers, as usual, are being completely ignored.

With a few possible exceptions, the mother can be described as the perpetual motion dynamo. She works a 24-hour shift seven days a week. She has to be an expert in every profession and trade, including magic and witchcraft. What she doesn't already know she'd better learn, because sooner or later one of the kids will call upon her with a surprise predicament and you don't just fluff off kids with an evasive answer.

Well, the kids grow up and it isn't long before Mom becomes a grandma. She's tickled silly to be on her own now. No more kids to chase after—that's what she thinks. Before you know it the young couple are on their way for a nice carfare evening. They're free as the breeze, and you know why? Mom's sitting with the kids again.

If I were to run for any political office I'd run on a platform that guarantees all mothers a good vacation every year. May the Lord smile upon them all with His kindest favors. I don't know what Democrats and Republicans would do without them.

Watch for Bus

TO THE EDITOR: It's school time again and I'm wondering how many people are going to remember when they see the red light flickering on a school bus. They are supposed to know that a child is either getting off or getting on the bus.

Last year when the bus came by to pick up my daughter or bring her home, very few cars bothered to stop and we had some pretty close calls.

My youngster is just one of many and one of these cars will eventually hit some child.

It's up to the adult drivers to be careful. It's such a small thing to ask and it means so much.

MRS. JAY BARKLIN,

Dim Outlook

TO THE EDITOR: I have just read L.A.C.'s article on "Never Had It So Good?" regarding this prosperity at the expense of American boys. Just think, 2000 casualties a month! Almost every home is sorrowed at one time or another.

These boys are to be our men of tomorrow, but how can they when the service calls them from schools, homes and jobs? What an outlook on life for them.

Many a boy could earn more money for himself than Uncle Sam gives him. We teach our children not to kill and the Army places guns in their hands and trains them to kill. No wonder we have mental wrecks and confused veterans. I say bring all our boys home from these "police actions" and leave them to fight over there as they have for hundreds of years in China.

By THE LOOKOUT

SELECTION of Lyman Sutter and Mrs. Lueking as Eisenhower-Nixon general co-chairmen here, announced Saturday, virtually completes the major party organizations now set to launch their quadrennial battle for votes for their respective Presidential tickets.

Headquarters for both the Democratic and Republican campaigns have been established, workers are being recruited, precinct and block vote drives are being set up, and all in all it looks like a busy two months ahead for the active local adherents of national tickets of the two parties.

Sutter, attorney and city councilman, and Mrs. Lueking, well known particularly for her work with the Red Cross, will head the official Eisenhower-Nixon campaign committee for the 18th Congressional District. Headquarters for this local branch of the official campaign is at 36 Locust Ave. Southern California chairman of the group is Bernard Brennan of Glendale, who authorized the appointments here.

In accepting, Sutter noted particularly that Eisenhower and Nixon support the state position on the tidelands, of vital importance to Long Beach. Mrs. Lueking, a first-timer this year in active politics, said she feels this is the year for all persons not hitherto active in political campaigns to get in and pitch. "Ike and Nixon will remove the stigma of corruption from our nation's government," she said.

In addition to the regular party campaign setup headed by Sutter and Mrs. Lueking, the Republican ticket is being pushed here by the Eisenhower-Nixon Volunteers headed by Ed Stubbs with offices at 121 Pine Ave. This group is appealing particularly to independents and Democrats.

DEMO OFFICES SET UP

Meanwhile, the official campaign headquarters of the Stevenson-Sparkman Democratic ticket was established at 250 East Broadway. An official opening is slated for the coming week, but campaign work was already starting in the offices there Saturday.

General chairman for the Stevenson-Sparkman group is Willis Lyman, with Raymond C. Simpson as vice chairman. North Long Beach office for the Stevenson-Sparkman campaign is located at 5335 Long Beach Blvd., and will be formally opened on Sept. 15. Mrs. Opal Hutchins will be in charge.

Local Democratic leaders said they were happy over the public reaction to Gov. Stevenson on his visit last week to Los Angeles. Local Democrats attended several of the functions attending the visit, and were enthusiastic over what they saw of their candidate. They said Stevenson's speech at Shrine Auditorium sounded the keynote for a Democratic victory in California.

TIDELANDS ISSUE HOT

The tidelands question has touched off the first major public discussion locally of issues on which the national party candidates disagree.

Republicans were quick to react to the report that Gov. Adlai Stevenson, the Democratic Presidential nominee, had said he was not too well informed on the tidelands question. This news, as it happens, was brought to Long Beach by Democrats Joseph Kennick Congressional nominee here, and Gerald Desmond, 70th Assembly nominee.

Inasmuch as Stevenson is already on record as opposed to the states' position on tidelands, the remark passed to the local men in Los Angeles left an opening for attack.

But Desmond, an advocate of state ownership, said he felt encouraged over Stevenson's remark, and interpreted it as evidence his mind is still open. Kennick, like Desmond, favors the state's position on the tidelands.

Craig Hosmer, Republican Congressional candidate here, called Stevenson's admission "shocking" to local people. He declared: "This display of ignorance definitely proves he is simply following the policies of the Truman administration, which has consistently opposed the just rights of the states and of Long Beach on this question."

Hosmer said that evidently local Democratic candidates had completely failed in their attempt to impress on Stevenson the importance of the situation. This, he said, should serve as a warning.

"The last time a Truman administration Congressman from this district backed the party bosses on the tidelands issue, he was promptly punished—the Navy Shipyard and the Navy Hospital were both closed. We can't afford to let it happen again."

The candidate noted that As-semblymen Herbert Klockslem and W. S. Grant have long fought "big government" on the tideland issue, and said his own stand has always been for state ownership.

KLOCKSLEM SPEAKS UP

Assemblyman Klockslem issued a statement accusing Stevenson of "double talk" on the tidelands question.

"Stevenson says he opposes the return to California of her tidelands because he must abide by the Supreme Court decision. Yet he failed to tell the people that the Supreme Court itself said Congress has the constitutional power to restore state ownership," said Klockslem.

BRADLEY, TOO

And the committee supporting Capt. Willis Bradley for 70th Assemblyman recalled that he introduced the first tidelands bill, which passed Congress but was vetoed by President Truman. The committee said that it is important to have Bradley in Sacramento to keep the tidelands fight alive.

Bradley pointed to the importance of tidelands revenue to Long Beach development and declared that "we must fight and fight with every legal means to return our property to us."

KENNICK OFFICES

Kennick for Congress had quarters has announced opening of a downtown office at 228 E. Fourth St.

Candidate Joseph M. Kennick will greet guests during open house ceremonies today from 2 to 5 p. m. Gerald Desmond, Democratic nominee for 70th District Assemblyman, also will attend the reception.

Army's Navy Comes Home From Camp

The Army has a Navy. Take it from Capt. Arthur M. Rudd, USAR, of 200 Rivo Alto Canal. The officer is among 10 Long Beach men who recently returned from two weeks' training with the Army's navy, at Camp Stoneman.

There are no battleships in this navy, but there are armed freighters, powerful tugs, self-propelled cranes and speedy air-sea rescue launches.

This branch of the Army comes under the Harbor Craft Battalions of the Transportation Corps whose mission it is to operate port facilities, including coast-wise shipping in overseas war theaters.

The Long Beach men who returned recently from the two weeks of active duty reserve training as members of the 492nd Harbor Craft and Marine Maintenance Battalion, are Pfc. Fred Riedman, 728 Cartagena Ave.; Pfc. John M. Calhoun, 74 Rivo Alto Canal; Cpl. James R. Porterfield, 1751 Marshall Pl.; Pfc. Harold C. Empey, 377 Molino Ave.; Pfc. 2 James H. Clark, 2185 Elm Ave.; Pfc. 2 Richard R. Erichsen, 66 Roswell Ave.; Pfc. Patrick J. Backus, 2649 Caspian Ave.; 2nd Lt. Calvin C. Buck, 4529 Banner Dr.; 1st Lt. Franklin S. Simon, 225 Campo Dr.; and Capt. Rudd.

The 492nd Battalion, operating in conjunction with the 332nd Major Port Battalion, another local reserve unit, underwent intensive specialized training including navigation, seamanship and small boat handling, cargo planning and stowage, rigging and marine engine maintenance. At the same time basic Army training such as weapons firing, infantry tactics and night maneuvers, was a part of the course.

Caught With Pants on Fire

A 15-GALLON drum of lacquer thinner being delivered Saturday to 3363 Olive Ave., cracked open when it hit the floor and fluid ran under a gas burner. Result: Riggins Bros. estimated fire damage to machine shop at $7000. And paint deliveryman Harold Friedland, 32, was caught with his pants on fire. This photo shows him hurrying away with charred trousers. — Staff Photo.

It was a comedy of errors amid minor burn. He explained he was rushing for emergency treatment to the nearest fire station, but by that time firemen were at the scene of the flames.

He called an associate, who took him to the hospital.

The drum cracked open. The inflammable liquid ran under a gas burner.

The flame set the salesman's trousers afire.

The salesman divested himself of the flaming attire, ran to his truck shouting: "Call the Fire Department, jumped into the truck, and sped away.

Mrs. Floyd Duncan, in the office of a neighboring shop, put in the call to the Fire Department.

Although the fire was in Signal Hill territory, Long Beach firemen took no chances and sped to the scene. Companies 7, 9 and 14 and Truck 2 joined Chief R. A. Jenkins of Signal Hill, who was on the job with his men and equipment.

Located later at the emergency hospital, the paint salesman, identified as Harold Friedland, 34, was found to have received a

Russ Armed Men
Outnumber Allies

WASHINGTON (AP)—The State Department reported Saturday that Russia's armed forces outnumber western Europe's about two to one, and warned that "hard work and many sacrifices lie ahead" to help America's allies.

The department issued a special 50-page booklet which said Russia has 4,000,000 men under arms as compared to "more than 2,000,000" in the three-year-old North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The department did not indicate how much of the 2,000,000-man NATO force was American. Not mentioned either are the 3,500,000 men in the United States' armed services, the armies of Russia's satellites and Red China and "friendly" military services of such nations as Yugoslavia and Spain.

The State Department's report was designed to answer congressional and private inquiries about the buildup of western Europe.

The department called attention also to these other factors in the Soviet Union's military power:

Millions of combat-hardened reserves; a large and growing Red air force, the atomic bomb, and an industrial plant geared to war production on a vast scale.

The department estimated Moscow has 175 front divisions with 100 of these deployed throughout Soviet-occupied Europe.

On the other hand, the department said, western Europe's defensive strength has increased and morale and unity have risen. But it said full American support must continue; for how long, depends on Russia's action with a total score of 390.

Formation of a Lakewood Center Businessmen's Association was announced Saturday. Peter Nitrini, manager of the Lakewood May Co. store is president of the new group. Other officers are Leon Silverman, partner in Hiram's Market, vice president; Don Rochlen, of Lakewood Center Development Co., secretary; and Ralph Kelley, manager of the Lakewood Butler Bros. store, treasurer.

Purpose of the new organization will be to co-ordinate Lakewood Center operations in merchandising, special promotions and advertising campaigns. A concerted effort will be made to tell the story of the nation's largest suburban shopping development," Nitrini said.

Plan Lakewood Center Promotion

Landlords Call Strike in Chicago

CHICAGO (UP)—A group of Chicago landlords who oppose rent control said today they will take 50,000 apartments off the rental market.

The landlords' "strike" would close about one-tenth of the city's rental dwelling units.

The "strike" was called by a group known as the Citizens' Committee for Rent Decontrol.

Paul Schofield, committee chairman, said the group is protesting a recent extension of rent controls in Chicago to April 30, 1953.

Schofield said:

"If a person comes to us to rent a housing unit, we will say, 'Sure, on April 30, under a lease.'"

The group also voted at a meeting last night to provide only minimum services required by law to tenants in apartments not removed from the rental market.

Schofield blamed controls for Chicago's housing shortage. Without them, he said, housing would become a buyers' market, "and the real beneficiaries would be the tenants."

WHOOSH!

Cradle Rockers Build Rockets

ROCKAWAY, N. J. — (WNNS). There doesn't seem to be any job anymore. A woman won't tackle. Women are even helping to build rockets today.

Furthermore, at Reaction Motors, Inc., the oldest rocket company in the country, women do their jobs so well they don't even stand out as women in an unusual business. The company pays them the high compliment of saying "they seem to have molded into the organization."

Reaction Motors builds liquid propellant rocket engines. And women are employed there as engineers, researchers, technical editors. They work in the photo labs and at the drafting boards.

There's no discrimination in the hiring of women for these jobs. If they have the proper engineering backgrounds, they're hired.

Some come with experience from other rocket plants (there are about eight such of this type in the country). Some women are trained in the company. One girl has just been promoted from secretary to technical editor.

Technical editors are considered most important. Volumes of material are written by the engineers before rockets reach the drawing board stage. It is the highly specialized task of these women to edit that copy.

Currently there are three girls at RMI in research. They're mathematical experts. There's one woman there of approximately 70 such engineers who actually is a rocket engineer—that is, basically responsible for rocket design.

RMI is engaged in the engine and power plant phase of rockets—so there are no supersonic women pilots. But it's a young field: Reaction Motors, the oldest such company in the United States, is only 10 years old.

It is perhaps a little startling to realize that the hand that rocks the cradle also has helped create a machine that holds the world's speed and altitude records for single-stage rocket missiles—a Viking that flew to an altitude of 136 miles and reached a maximum speed of 4100 miles per hour.

Auto Firms Beg, Steal Skilled Help

DETROIT—(UP). Jobs, especially those requiring mechanical skill, are going begging in the automotive industry.

Motor companies, which early this year were forced to lay off scores of thousands of workers, today are scraping the bottom of the manpower barrel for their civilian and defense production plants.

All car and truck companies are not hiring unskilled production workers. Although several thousands of them will be needed by many firms within the next few weeks.

But nearly every automotive manufacturer in this area is out to beg, borrow or steal men qualified in the highly-skilled trades.

Trouble is, so are all industrial employers across the country. The military, and other government agencies, are competing for these scarce machinists, tool and die men, electricians, engineers, designers and draftsmen, too.

The shortage of skilled mechanically-trained personnel is nothing new. But with industry struggling to keep civilian production at nearly normal levels and at the same time embarking on tremendous contracts for tanks, guns and planes, it is growing more acute daily.

Two fundamental reasons for the lack of trained manpower when they are needed most, auto men point out, are the constant technical improvements in industry and the retirement of thousands of foreign-born master mechanics who migrated to America in the early part of the century.

Artesia 4-Lane Road Building

Principal state highway improvement in this area, aside from freeway development, is being done on Artesia St. between Long Beach Blvd. and the San Gabriel River.

Two projects now under way will make Artesia into a four-lane divided highway by next April, according to the State Division of Highways.

Now under construction are two 36-foot roadways, divided by an 18-foot "refuge" strip for motorists to use at intersections. Total cost is $725,602.

When completed, this portion of Artesia St. will be the most improved section of the street. Artesia extends from Hermosa Beach to Santa Ana Canyon.

By next February, improvements also should be under way on the old so-called "country lane" section of Artesia, from Long Beach Blvd. to Alameda St.

East from the San Gabriel River, Artesia St. is a two-lane roadway to Firestone Blvd.

More work is being done on Del Amo Blvd. than on any other Long Beach street of major importance.

Within the next two years, Del Amo will be improved by a six-lane roadway from Cherry Ave. to Long Beach Blvd.

Ultimate plans call for Del Amo to be a cross-town boulevard with its western terminus in Redondo Beach and its eastern end in Orange County. North Long Beach and Lakewood would be closely joined by this new route.

Recently, Del Amo was opened from Lakewood Blvd. to Cherry Ave. by the county. East of Lakewood, the county has improved Del Amo into a six-lane roadway as far as Palo Verde Ave.

Most of the right of way needed west of Cherry Ave. to Long Beach Blvd. has been acquired. The Del Amo underpass beneath the Union Pacific Railroad, just west of Atlantic Ave., has been built. This project, which cost $226,486, was paid for jointly by the city and county.

County plans call for a new bridge across Los Angeles River to replace the present wooden span. The old trestle-type bridge at Compton Creek will be replaced this fiscal year, a sum of $260,000 having been earmarked for this project by the state.

World of Wheels

By ART STEPHAN • AUTO EDITOR

"HOWDY PODNER" — Those are just the words you're going to be greeted with the next several weeks when you step into the local Kaiser-Frazer dealership to look over the models on the floor.

Seems two of the local wheels, Ernie Chavis and Chuck Collins, have come up with a terrific idea to promote showroom traffic and make several couples happy. In their new Las Vegas vacation deal, now under way.

There's nothing to buy, no obligation, say Chavis and Collins. All a Vegas-vacation-minded person has to do is come into the KF showroom at 1235 American and fill out a ticket—which may be the magic carpet for a round-trip, expense-paid jaunt for two to the fabulous desert spa.

The weekly winners will be flown to Vegas by Western Airlines, met at the airport with a shiny Kaiser for their private use while there, will be lodged at one of the big hotels on the strip, and even furnished pocket money, too. Why anybody would need pocket money while in Vegas is beyond me. Yeh, I'm kiddin'.

The plan, while dreamed up by the local KF men, will be promoted by all Southern Cal Kaiser-Frazer dealers in the weeks ahead.

LE SABRE ON VIEW — The General Motors people were hosts Thursday for 250 members of the press, radio and TV men, L. A. area educators and Cal-Tech engineering students.

The occasion of the Beverly Hills Hotel meeting was introduction to West Coast viewers of GM's experimental "Car of Tomorrow"—the sensational Le Sabre, which will be on display at the L. A. fair through Sept. 28th.

The low-slung, gun-metal gray convertible is the brain-child of Harley J. Earl, General Motors' vice president in charge of styling, who was on hand along with Paul Garrett, another GM vice president, to explain the car to the press.

Le Sabre is in every sense of the word a "rolling laboratory on wheels," featuring a 335-horsepower aluminum engine, top that raises automatically with a single drop of rain, body constructed entirely of cast magnesium and sheet aluminum, hydraulic jacks on each wheel, disappearing headlights and a lot of other gadgets not seen on present-day production models.

Designer Earl explained the Le Sabre is used by GM engineers as a years-ahead research model for the adaptation of new and radical engineering and styling ideas.

SAY GOODBYE, THEN GO — Just how much gas is wasted by the practice of starting the engine and then beginning a conversation is hard to calculate, but it certainly represents a tremendous total of lost fuel, says the National Auto Club.

The book of etiquette claims that when a guest has reached the point of holding the knob of the door handle he ought to make the farewell as brief as possible and be on his way. In motoring it's not only a matter of etiquette but a saving of gas to make auf wiedersehen and cranking simultaneous.

TWIN H-POWER POPULAR — Public response to Hudson's new Twin H-Power has been "even greater than we anticipated," according to Joe Ricketts, last half of the Storey-Ricketts Hudson dealership here.

Ricketts revealed more than 10,000 Hudsons equipped with the multiple carburetion unit have been produced since its recent introduction.

"We've been having a lot of requests for Twin H-Power demonstration rides," Ricketts remarked last week. "Our problem is to convince the prospect that this Hudson carburetion development delivers such extra response and pickup on regular gas."

Ricketts went on to say that more than 50 percent of Hudson Hornets and nearly 30 percent of Hudson Wasps now produced are equipped with Twin H-Power.

DESIGNING WOMAN—Many stories to the contrary, here's proof beauty and brains go together. This is blonde Maxine Regan, Chrysler Corporation's only woman car designer, who will demonstrate how a car is born at Chrysler's animated exhibit at Los Angeles County Fair, Sept. 17-28.

POWER PLUS Gas Mileage Steps Up

DETROIT—(UP). Unless present indications miscarry the American motorist will get greatly improved gasoline mileage in most of next year's automobiles.

Fuel quality, substantially advanced during the last year, is due for further improvement. Aside from that, however, much of the engineering work on 1953 model automobiles was designed to increase the miles-per-gallon output of the power plants.

Co-operating, petroleum and automotive industry engineers have been seeking the ideal combination of chemical and mechanical octane for the new model cars. Chemical octane, of course, is what the petroleum industry puts into the fuel; mechanical octane is what the power plant can take out of it.

The power plant in this instance means more than just the engine itself; it means the whole power train, including transmission and rear-axle assembly.

A noteworthy improvement in fuel mileage was achieved by changes made this year in General Motors' Hydra-Matic transmission. A second driving range was added for use under conditions where less pulling power is needed.

Now, it is understood, changes are planned in GM's other transmissions, also with the objective of providing greater fuel economy.

Throughout the industry research has been under way designed to better co-ordinate engine and transmission as the means of achieving greatly improved fuel mileage. Engineering authorities have said their objective in this respect is an overall increase of 50 per cent in the present miles per gallon in normal driving.

That, of course, is not promised for 1953 models, but sizable gains are apparently assured.

Dollars & Sense Food Clubs Worry Grocers

All that good money from the family pocketbook going into buying frozen food at discount through clubs and "plans" has been worrying grocers and chain stores.

They're finally doing something about it. Independent grocers are offering discounts on bulk sales of frozen foods in a number of cities. And chain stores are beginning to get busy, too.

One of these — Safeway in Richmond, Va., is reported to be selling full cases of foods at 10 per cent savings and half cases at five per cent discount. Newspaper ads plugged the chain store's own "food savings plan," in which its labeled foods are offered at discounts.

Then, the A & P in Chicago, it's rumored, plans to sell frozen orange juice in bulk at discounts. In a couple of weeks.

Lots of activity along this line—selling householders cases of frozen foods at discounts—has been reported from the west coast. Two stores in Los Angeles, Von's and Ralph's, are listed as offering such sales.

DIMENSIONAL TV: Sooner than you think, three-dimensional television is on its way, according to Bendix. This kind of reception may be on the market by May, an official estimates. It involves no change in present transmission technique or equipment. The three-dimensional effect results "from an optical illusion." And that's all he says now.

MANAGER RETURNS. — Return of Curtis Nance to Meads Store for Men, 124 Pine Ave., to serve as store manager was announced Saturday by the owner, Joseph H. Jalonack. After association with Meads for nearly a decade, Nance had been occupied in San Diego for 10 months.

Along REALTY ROW

By NEWT TODD... Realty and Building Editor

An immediate overhaul of the Veterans Housing Program to behind their products and those eliminate abuses cited in a recent Congressional report was recommended today by a building industry spokesman.

Allan E. Brockbank, president of the National Association of Home Builders, stated that the industry generally concurs in criticism leveled at the Veterans Administration by a House investigating committee headed by Rep. Olin E. Teague (D-Texas).

The Teague subcommittee charged that many veterans were gyped on homes bought with government help, often as a result of collusion between VA agents and dishonest builders and real estate operators.

While rejecting any implication that the reputable majority of the industry was involved in shady practices, Brockbank said if the GI home program is to continue, it will have to be reorganized to make sure the veteran gets a better deal in housing.

"IT'S TIME TO TAKE stock of VA housing operations," Brockbank said. "What started out as an emergency program for veterans during a critical housing shortage has now been extended into a long range housing program."

VA rules and procedures acceptable during an emergency period should be restudied and revised for long range operations," Brockbank acknowledged some "irregularities" were "bound to occur" in a program as big as this.

GI operation, under which more than 3,000,000 homes valued at $25,000,000,000 have been sold during the past six years. About 150,000 of those homes were bought in the past year.

"We are glad the Teague committee conducted its study, we concur with many of its findings, but we vigorously disagree with any report which, in effect, makes no distinction between the homes of Tuolumne Meadows Lodge where they stayed awhile. They went on about all those people he planned to visit, we didn't expect Hazel Merriam back before Christmas."

Hazel says she saw everyone's relatives back in Kansas and Missouri—even the Trumans!

READY FOR TROUBLE

Jim Plugs in His Smile on Phone Job

No one faces trouble with a smile more than Jim Howell, 11581 Smelter Ave., Santa Ana. Jim is a trouble shooter. In fact, with the Associated Telephone Co. of Long Beach, he specializes in switchboards.

Anyone who has seen the maze of wires, relays, plugs and switches which make up a phone switchboard can guess how much trouble it can harbor.

Yet in the 15 years he has been with Associated Telephone Co., Jim has worked on virtually every big board in Long Beach—and he's always wearing a big smile.

A lot of people don't know Jim's last name, but he's a familiar man at the fire department, police department, city schools and almost all of the local stores and businesses in the area.

Let them telephone work for Jim. From telephone work, most of the 15 years he's been in Long Beach, Jim has been a trouble shooter.

Gabelin Takes Over Destroyer Division 22

SAN DIEGO—Cmdr. Albert L. Gabelin, of Long Beach, relieved Capt. A. Ovrom as commander of Destroyer Division 52 in a ceremony Sat. aboard the Brinkley Bagg, division flagship.

Gabelin served with the Bureau of Naval Personnel in Washington before coming to Destroyer Division 52.

plays think he's one of them; Jim, in fact, sort of thinks so, too.

Talking about the phones in the new wing of the P-T Building, Jim said he installed them "when we moved in here."

Dirt and moisture are his biggest enemies, the telephone technician said. Both play havoc with switchboards and their myriad of wires and connections. There are other, man-made problems, though.

"One time I was called out in the middle of the night because an operator spilled a cup of coffee over her board and shorted it out," he recalled.

Perhaps the best testimonial to Jim's friendliness and ability are the words of one of his friends: "A lot of people don't call the telephone company when they have trouble. They call Jim."

Stranahan, Ward Vie For Western Crown

Grudge Fight Looms Today

CHICAGO — (AP). Frank Stranahan and Harvie Ward swept through the Western Amateur Golf semi-finals Saturday to set up a championship fued prolonged since last June when the two rivals tangled at Prestwick, Scotland.

The 25-year-old Ward, at that time, trounced Frank 6 and 5 in the finals of the British amateur. The Toledo star has been seeking revenge in a major meeting ever since.

The 36-hole title match developed into a natural when Stranahan, the defending champion and seeking his fourth western amateur crown, played a game of constant, brilliant recovery shots to defeat Robert Knowles, Beverly farms, Mass., 4 and 2.

Ward, the consistent Alantan who won the 1949 national intercollegiate crown, made the final hole complete in the other 36 hole semi-final match by eliminating Dale Morey, Martinsville, Ind., 3 and 2.

It will be the fourth match-play competitive bout between Stranahan, 30, and the handsome Ward, 21, who won the 1948 north and south amateur crown. Stranahan beat Ward 2 and 1 in the same finals the next year.

Then last June, Harvie trounced Frank in the British amateur.

Knowles, a Walker cup player and 1951 French champion, frittered away a 3 up lead after the first nine holes in the morning and was only 1-up on the 21st with another birdie by planting a no. 6 iron approach two feet from the cup.

From there on, Frank never let his 38-year-old opponent off the hook as he piled up a 3-up margin after 27 holes while Knowles was wandering from trees to traps.

Bolling Posts First Upset

WASHINGTON, — (UP). The Bolling Air Base "Generals" led by Michigan State's great 1950 back, Al Dorow, upset the Quantico Marines, 14-6, Saturday in the opening game of the football season for both service teams.

An overflow crowd of 10,000 at Arnold Field watched the reinforced Air Force team capitalize on two intercepted Leatherneck passes in the first quarter and turn them into touchdowns.

Dorow was the big hero of the upset. He passed for one touchdown and romped 18 yards to score the second standing up. John Lindsay of Maryland converted both times.

The Marines did not score—or even threaten—until the fourth quarter when a Bolling fumble gave them the ball on the Generals' 34 yard line. Ray Pendergraft, formerly of Moorehead State Teachers, finally took it over from the two. Scoring: Quantico—14, 6-14. Bolling—6, 14-6. Points after touchdowns—Lindsay (2).

World Speed Record Falls

WENDOVER, Utah—(UP). A streamlined automobile, built in a California backyard shop, flashed through the measured mile at 229.77 miles per hour Saturday to set a new international speed mark.

The record might have been higher but for tire failure. The crystalline surface of the Bonneville salt flats course wore the treads off the two rear tires and driver George Hill let his car coast the final half mile.

On his first trip through the test, Hill of Burbank, Calif., drove 235.41 miles per hour. On the return he hit only 224.44 for an average of 229.77.

That performance wiped out the old mark for class C cars of 219.5 MPH set by Bernd Rosemeyer in Germany.

Hill also set a new record for the kilometer, 226 MPH.

Difani to Head State Sportsmen

SANTA CRUZ—(UP). George Difani of Carmichael, former legislative representative of organized sportsmen in California, and field agent for the State Senate Fish and Game Interim Committee, will be president of the Associated Sportsmen of California for the coming year.

Other officers elected are Tom Maloney of Willows, first vice president; Al Seder, Stockton, second vice president; Dr. Forrest Ballard, Alameda, secretary, and Paul Molino, San Pablo, treasurer.

Santa Clara Coach Terms Session 'Fair'

SANTA CLARA—(UP). Coach Dick Gallagher ran his Santa Clara football squad through a tough two-hour scrimmage Saturday and after play was over termed the results "only fair."

Gallagher conceded the defense was better than the offense and put three new men in the backfield. They were Bill Gil left half; Mel Lewis, right half and Duane Louis at quarterback.

Frankly Speaking

Bouquets for Cole, Stevens and Queen

By FRANK T. BLAIR, Sports Editor

Bouquets, please, for three Long Beach residents, Pitcher Mel Queen, First Baseman Chuck Stevens and Shortstop Dick Cole, who have been vital cogs in the pennant-chasing Hollywood club which closes a series with challenging Oakland in a double bill at Gilmore Field today.

Ex-Yankee Queen has pitched some great ball and was 12-9 in recent averages, Cole had played in all of the Stars' games and starred defensively at the important shortstop role. Fred Haney got an unexpected dividend, too, when Dick, never known as an outstanding batter, swatted Coast League pitching consistently and ran neck-and-neck with Carlos Bernier for the club lead in runs batted in.

Stevens has been playing some of the best baseball of his career. He's hitting well, running bases with speed and alertness, and playing his usual smooth game at first base. Chuck not only has been driving in runs in the clutch, but he has started a number of rallies and has taken extra sacks by heads-up base running. He's the Twinks' leading two-base hitter.

Although Chuck prefers to be in there every day, I think Haney's two-pitcher system, with Jack Phillips alternating with Stevens, has kept Chuck on his toes and in better shape physically than he might have been if he'd been in there all the time.

When Phillips was out recently with an injury, Stevens proved, however, that he's no pushover for southpaw pitching. "I can hit those fellows (southpaws) pretty good if I get a chance," says Chuck. He got a hit off Seattle's crack southpaw, Jim Davis, in the Rainier series last week.

Rustle up another bouquet for Long Beach's Bobby Sturgeon, who has played some great ball for the lowly Sacramento Solons since taking over Joe Gordon's second-base spot.

Sturgeon drove in five runs in one game against the Angels. He collected four hits and three RBIs in a twin bill against Oakland last Tuesday, and handled 16 chances without error. In another twin bill against the Oaks Thursday, Bob had three hits and handled 13 chances.

Off his showing at Sacramento since leaving the managerial job on the financially-shaky Ventura club a few weeks, Sturgeon should have no trouble finding employment in the Coast League next season.

THE 1932 TROJAN FOOTBALL TEAM, WHICH WILL BE honored Tuesday night at the annual SC pre-season banquet in Los Angeles, was the late Howard Jones' only unbeaten and untied Trojan outfit. It won 10 games, lost none, scored 201 points, and yielded only two touchdowns, both on forward passes.

Closest games of the season were with Tom Lieb's Loyola Lions, who were beaten narrowly, 6 to 0, in the last quarter, and with Washington's Huskies, who were edged, 9 to 6, on Cal Clemens' field goal. Notre Dame, highly rated that year, was kept in the hole all afternoon by Troy as the Jonesmen played just about perfect football to win, 13 to 0.

Other victims of Troy in 1932 were Utah, Washington State, Oregon, Oregon State, Stanford, California and Pittsburgh in the Rose Bowl, 35 to 0.

Among the Trojan headlines that season were Julie Bescos, Gordon Clark, Cal Clemens, Ward Brenning, John Dye, Bob Erskine, Homer Griffith, Hueston Harper, Orv Mohler, Ford Palmer, Bob McNeish, Aaron Rosenberg, John Selas, Ernie Smith, Ray Spurling, Larry Stevens, Howard Tipton, Irvine Warburton, Bob Getz and Curt Youel.

Those names will bring back many memories to long-time Trojan football fans. Bescos now lives here and keeps in shape playing a stellar brand of golf. Larry Stevens, a great guard, practiced law here. Orv Mohler, one of the most elusive runners in SC grid history, was killed a few years ago in a plane crash.

WALTER CARSON, WHO IN HIS JOB AS CUSTODIAN OF athletic equipment at Long Beach City College recently issued football togs to the Vikings and Alumni players, thinks that the Vike tussle with the old grads Saturday should be a humdinger, with the college kids having a pretty fair chance to avenge some past defeats by the alumni.

"Buck Andreason's boys will have had an extra week of practice this fall when they face the alumni," Carson points out. "With three weeks of drills, instead of two, prior to the alumni game, the Vikes should be in better shape for the opener."

Walter adds that "the Vikings have some big boys this fall and Buck will get the best out of them. The alumni, however, have a younger outfit this year than some previous old-grad squads, and may be tougher than ever. It looks like a pretty tight fit in that opening game."

Spartan Varsity 'Fair' in Scrim

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UP)—The Michigan State College varsity football team scrimmaged the reserves Saturday in a game-length session which ended 32 to 7 in favor of the varsity.

Coach Clarence (Biggie) Munn said the squad looked "fairly good for the first real scrimmage, but there are ragged spots," Munn said he hoped to have the spots smoothed out before the Spartans' opening game with the University of Michigan Sept. 27.

Two players were injured in the all-out practice. Varsity offensive end Doug Bobo injured his back and Guard Henry Bulough sprained an ankle. Trainers said neither injury was believed serious.

Weill Sees Marciano Victory Over Walcott

BY JACK CUDDY

GROSSINGER, N. Y.—(UP). Manager Al Weill, the "master of styles," finally came out positively Saturday and predicted a victory for his Rocky Marciano over Jersey Joe Walcott.

"This is the first time I ever forecast definitely that one of my fighters would win an important bout," declared the bespectacled Al, as he donned a large portion of sausage and eggs in the living room of Marciano's training quarters.

"It has always been my policy to let my fighters decide the issue with their fists," he continued. "But this time I am so positive that Rocky will be the new champion, I'll predict victory."

His forecast was that the block buster from Brockton, Mass., would win "by a knockout or by a decision."

"KAYO, MAYBE?"

"I'm pretty sure it will be a kayo," he said, "but there's still the chance that smart old Walcott will last the distance."

Why is Weill so positive that his 28-year-old challenger will wrest the crown from the 38-year-old champion?

"It's because of their styles," he explained. "Walcott is a guy who always tries to make the fight his own. But Rocky is so persistently aggressive he'll break up pappy's game."

Then the ex-matchmaker for the International Boxing Club disclosed that he had tried desperately to get a June shot at Walcott, who defended instead his against Ezzard Charles at Philadelphia.

"I offered Charles $70,000 or $80,000 to step aside, in spite of his return-out contract with Walcott," Weill admitted. "I offered to put the money in escrow. And Felix Bocchicchio (Walcott's manager) also offered a somewhat similar amount if Charles would permit Marciano to challenge Walcott."

"In other words, I was so sure Rocky could beat Walcott I offered to Charles half the purse we would get, and would guarantee it by money in escrow. At the same time, Bocchicchio was so sure Walcott would draw about $700,000, with Marciano, that he offered half his purse to Charles."

Walcott and Charles drew only $204,000 in their return bout at Philadelphia's stadium, June 5. Jersey Joe kept his title on a 15-round decision.

"WALCOTT LOOKED BAD" Joe in that June fight," Weill emphasized. "but to me, Walcott looked so bad in the last six rounds, that I knew for sure my boy couldn't fail when he finally got his shot at Jersey Joe."

Marciano, who rested on Friday, resumed sparring Saturday and boxed four rounds in the International Boxing Club. He will lay off next Monday and probably finish his boxing a week from tomorrow.

Snead Leads Eastern Field

BALTIMORE—(AP). Sam Snead turned on the steam Saturday to leave the field in the dust at the three-quarter mark of the Eastern Open with a three stroke lead over his closest pursuer.

The golf craftsman from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., birdied his way to a four-under par 68 and 54-hole total of 206, 10 strokes better than par for that distance.

That put Snead in line Sunday to break the record winning score of the past two tourneys, 279 for 72 holes.

Snead broke from second position at the start of the third round, one stroke behind Johnny Bulla of Vernon, Pa. But Bulla faltered in the mid-ninety degree heat and wound up two over par to drop to a fourth place tie at 211 with Jimmy Clark of Laguna Beach, Calif.

Ted Kroll of New Hartford, N. Y., vaulted into the runner-up spot with a 69 for a total of 209. A stroke behind him were Ed Oliver of Lemont, Ill., who matched Snead's 68, and Earl Stewart Jr. of Dallas who had 71 on the third round. Leaders:

A bevy of Alumni gridgers watched from the sidelines as the Vikes continued preparing for the annual battle with the Grads next Saturday night at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Coach Buck Andreason stated after the tussle that the drill had been quite satisfactory but that he was not sure of a starting team for the opener.

Novel Golf Clinic at County Fair

By BOB HALL

Golfers of the Southland have a particular interest in the Los Angeles County Fair in Pomona, now in progress, for it includes a novel golf clinic sponsored by a group of Southern California professionals.

In a 30x60-foot enclosure 40 professionals working in relays of some four at a time will conduct the clinic for visitors from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. daily, except Saturdays and Sundays, when it will be open at 10 a.m.

Around 6 p.m. daily when a majority of the professionals will be on hand, there will be an exhibition of the grip, stance, positioning of the ball and the fundamental movements of the swing. There will also be some exhibition shots in which the pro will use a new type practice ball, in fluorescent colors, that will travel only 30 feet.

During the clinic a booklet, put out by the National Golf Foundation, will be on sale at 25 cents. Purchase of the booklet will entitle the holder to a free analysis of his swing by one of the leading professionals of Southern California. In addition he will be allowed to participate in a novel contest of pitching golf balls into a barrel. The winner of this contest will receive a set of registered golf clubs.

Fred Eaton, well-known Southern professional, and driving range operator, is in charge of the arrangements.

JOSE CORTINAS TO SWIM 300 MILES

Jose Cortinas, under the auspices of the Vic Tanny Gyms, will attempt to swim the Mississippi River from St. Louis to the Gulf of Mexico—a distance of approximately 300 miles. Jose may set a new World's Record on this swim. The swim will take place on September 20th and will last between 60 and 70 hours. Cortinas will demonstrate once again the power and endurance that can be gained by training at Vic Tanny Gyms.

READ what JOSE CORTINAS, courageous conqueror of the Catalina Channel, says of VIC TANNY GYMS

"I started training at Vic Tanny Gyms 3 months before my channel attempt. I acquired the extra strength and endurance that enabled me to make the longest and most arduous swim of my career. I would like to give Vic Tanny a full measure of credit for my success."

signed JOSE CORTINAS

Cortinas actually swam for 28 hours and 55 minutes and covered an estimated 40 miles against incredible odds, heavy seas and currents. This swim will go down as the most amazing demonstration of courage and stamina in the history of swimming.

Fishin' Around

By DONNELL CULPEPPER
Fishin' for Don Culpepper

When the 161-foot sailing yacht Goodwill put out from Newport for the famed fishing grounds at Guadalupe Island, off the coast of Lower California, a new page was written in west coast fishery research.

Claude Kreider of Long Beach, outdoor writer who served as historian and photographer of the expedition. Owner and captain of the vessel, Ralph Larrabee of Newport, member of the Southern California Tuna Club, provided the beautiful vessel and all her facilities to aid the California Department of Fish and Game's new yellowtail tagging program. Biologist in charge of the project, Robert Collier of the department's Terminal Island Marine Laboratory, expects excellent results from the voyage.

One hundred yellowtail were caught, tagged and released, each carrying a plastic disk marker. It is hoped that sportsmen who catch any of the tagged fish will at once send in the tag and pertinent data to Collier at the laboratory.

Little has been known of the life history, migration pattern and other habits of this favorite game fish, and scientists of the Marine Division, headed by Richard Croker, are making every effort to learn more about them and so adopt a policy which may lead to better local fishing.

The Goodwill, carrying 12,600 feet of canvas (her auxiliary Diesel power was seldom needed), sailed Sept. 4. She made the voyage of 292 miles to the island's south anchorage in 30 hours, sailed by Capt. Larrabee, Harold Stewart of Claremont, navigator, and Fred Lorenz of Costa Mesa, sailmaker, who had fitted the ship with her new canvas.

Skipper Takes to Skiff, Gets 47-Pounder

Most of the party were members of the Newport Yacht Club and the Balboa Angling Club. They included:

Al Larrabee, Huntington Park; Earl L. Wilson, Huntington Park; George E. Frawley, Los Angeles; Clarence Stewart, Riverside; James C. Conrad and John McNamara, Los Angeles; Joseph R. Jahraus, Laguna Beach; Harold B. Stewart, Claremont; Bert Wells, San Gabriel.

Largest yellowtail, 47 pounds, was taken by Capt. Larrabee who, when the fish insisted on going around the ship, took to a skiff to fight it to a finish.

Thrills were plenty throughout the fishing. After dark, Clarence Stewart hooked a tremendous fish on heavy tackle, played it for two hours, and found he had a sea bass weighing 267 pounds.

Again, after dark, when the ship had sailed up the 25-mile-long island to the northeast anchorage, another great fish gave Harold Stewart a terrific battle and proved to be a bramble shark, seldom found in these waters, weighing 425 pounds. Collier was able to identify the fish.

Another Bramble Weighed 490 Pounds

Later that eventful evening, Capt. Larrabee fought to a finish the largest fish of the trip, another rare bramble of 490 pounds. Attending to the value of the yellowtail tagging program, a fish tagged June 9 near the mainland much farther south was caught from a boat fishing near the Goodwill, and was reported by radio phone to Biologist Collier. Something thus was learned of the movements of the yellowtail, and the durability of the plastic tags proven.

The big ship returned from the island Thursday. Albacore almost completely absent Thursday, were back in the channel Friday, and it looks like the albacore specials will be running for some time yet.

San Clemente Island offered five fishermen aboard the Spitfire (Pierpoint) some of the season's best fun Friday. Fourteen yellowtail were boated, as well as barracuda and bull bass.

'Fair to Good' Deer Season Is Forecast

SAN FRANCISCO—"Fair to good" is the forecast for hunters who will open the Sierra and northwestern deer season Saturday, according to area reports from more than 40 State Department of Fish and Game wardens.

Shooting hours are from a half-hour before sunrise to a half-hour after sunset and limits are two bucks in the northwestern area and one buck in the Sierra zone.

Wardens' preseason reports range from "excellent" prospects in Kern County to "poor" in Lassen-Modoc. Wardens' predictions, county-by-county:

AMADOR—Good. No winter loss. Try between 2000-3000 feet elevation. BUTTE—Little posted land. Best should be in Baldy Mountain, Chaparral, and Con Hollow. Sugar Lake, Cold Springs and Josaville areas.

CALAVEAS—Normal deer numbers below 5000 feet. Lots of roan deer higher. Hunting not as good as last year.

DEL Norte—Deer in average numbers and good condition. Best should be in the Sierra Nevada, North Fork of Smith River, Garver Lake and Youngs Valley. Garver Lake, Summit Valley and Bald Mountain areas.

FRESNO—Normal numbers of bucks in good condition. Best should be in the National Forest on either side of the Kings River.

NAS Cagers Planning Tour

"Back stronger than ever"—that's the word seeping out of Los Alamitos Naval Air Station regarding the Air Raiders 1952-53 basketball hopes.

Short on depth last year, Lt. Comdr. Dan F. Fitzek will command a real bench this campaign.

The regular five of forwards, Johnny Arndt, George Yardley; center, Al Roges; guards, Hal Uplinger and Rollen Hans all return. The bench will handle Grover Luchsinger (UCLA), Bob Yardley (George's brother), Don Day, Jack Sparks (LA State), Bill Stanley and Ordell Jeglum (LBCC).

George Stanich, former UCLA great, will be available for the service contests.

A schedule of 46 games has been tentatively lined up, including a trip east to battle the AAU champion Caterpillars of Peoria, the Bartlesville Oilers and the Denver Bankers.

The Oilers and Bankers will definitely play return games here although the dates have not been set. A possible site is the new Long Beach City College gym.

Paced by "Jumping George" Yardley, ex-Stanford All-American, the locals were considered one of the top AAU clubs in the country last season.

Compton Nine Plumbers Mix

Orville Murray's Compton Pacesetters, who have campaigned the past several years as a "traveling" team in Southern California Semipro circles, change to a "home" team today, starting a Winter League season as the new hosts at Compton's Cressley Park. Today's rival in a double-header will be the always-potent Rosabell Plumbers of Pasadena.

Long Beach Wranglers invade the Sanford Stadium field in Wilmington (Highway 101 and Sanford) for a double header with the Wilmington Merchants. Both double headers begin at noon.

Other games on the local and nearby slate follow:

At South Gate—1:30, Glendale Pirates vs. South Gate Reds.

Patolita Ahead in Coast Sail Series

SANTA BARBARA (AP)—The Patolita, owned by Col. Charles Deere Wiman of Santa Barbara, hung a second defeat on the Windward, Cyril Collin's sloop from Hillsborough, Calif., to take a commanding lead in their series for the unofficial Pacific Coast M-Class sailing title.

The Patolita, spanking along before a crisp breeze, covered a 14-mile course in 2 hours 8 minutes, finishing 4 minutes and 40 seconds ahead of its rival. The local sloop thus duplicated its win of last Sunday.

A third win will give the Patolita the title.

King Blasts 299 in Legion League

By BEN ZINSER

Bowling Along

Louis King, a new member of the Wilmington post of the American Legion, clicked off a 299 game in the opening session of the Legion League at 101 Bowling Center in Harbor City.

The league is for teams in the south half of the 19th District of the Legion.

King, who packs a 165 average, came up with one Brooklyn and only one "doubtful." All but the last hit were in the 1-3 pocket.

The last ball was a little thin and left the No. 4 pin standing. King finished with a 643 series, high so far for the evening.

Other top scorers included C. L. Willard, 267, Amos Olson 234, Dave Lund 222, Jim Skoppe 220, Jack Groves 222, E. E. Suiter 212, Al Nech 212, Art King 203.

The Wilmington Tigers fired high last night, scoring 683. Second Team Post Club, 604. Total team score of 2491.

Marlin Fishers Chalk Up Record Catch in '52 Season

NEWPORT HARBOR—(UP). Sports fishermen are hitting the Marlin swordfish jackpot in Southern California waters this season with a record number of catches.

Robert Gleason, of the Newport Harbor Sports Fishermen's Association, said fishermen had bagged a total of 242 of the fighting giants so far this year, compared with 66 for the same date last year.

A total of 16 fishermen pulled marlin aboard yesterday for the third highest catch of the year, 16 marlin. The largest catch of the day went to Jack Ellison, Bell, Calif., whose sword fish weighed 190 pounds. The record for the year was snatched by J. D. Lowery, San Marino, whose catch tipped the scales at 308 pounds. The world record marlin weighed 695 pounds and was caught by Al-phonse Hammon here in 1931.

Rockets Meet Glendale Today

Strengthened by the return of a number of local minor leaguers, the Long Beach Rockets will present a fast line-up today at Recreation Park when they clash with the Glendale Thunderbirds in a Southland semipro baseball contest. Game time is 2:15 p. m.

Pitcher Bud Daley, the former Wilson High southpaw star who had a good season with Cedar Rapids in the Three-I League, probably will start on the mound for the Rockets, with Al Zigelman or Vern Highfield catching. Joe Whisenant also may be available for pitching duty.

Don Taylor, Denver infielder, and Joe Duhem, outfielder from the Burlington club of the Carolina League, are recent additions to the Rocket squad. Infielder Whitey Thomson is due in any day and several other local minor leaguers will be donning Rocket uniforms soon.

Other Rocket players slated for action today are: E. Pearson, Ted Herder, George Selfridge, Red Meairs, Frank Estes, Morley Beckman and Ron Tatti.

Rhoads Seek Cycle Crown

Long Beach's cycling Rhoads brothers, Dave and Ronnie, and perhaps several members of the Crebs Cycle Club, too, will vie for the national bike racing track championship over the 12th-mile indoor oval at Oakland Auditorium, Sept. 22-24.

This marks the first time in many years that the national championship has been held on the Pacific Coast. Since their excellent showing in the Olympic trials and in the Olympic Games, the Rhoads boys are rated high on the list of title contenders.

Gilbert Mills, who has just about clinched the Crebs Cycle Club title for 1952—the 30th year that "Musty" Crebs has conducted club races locally—is expected to lead additional Long Beach entries in the big Oakland test.

Kid Playoff Slated Today

Playoff finalists in the Police Department Boys' Baseball League battle today for the Chief's Cup.

The Police Department plays host to league members, parents and sponsors Sept. 28 with a picnic at the Long Beach pistol range.

Moto-Pablo Romero Bout Tops Bowl Card Tuesday

Japan's Great Mr. Moto, noted for his ring cunning and arrogance and feared for his use of the "Japanese sleeper" hold, and presently more arrogant than ever, returns to Wilmington Bowl Tuesday night in the headline match of a six-bout card.

He returns boasting that it took the world champion, Lou Thesz, plus a Thesz referee, Baron Benzy Ginsburg, to defeat him last week and that he'll make short and convincing work of his opponent this week to prove it. He meets one of the sensational Romero brothers of Mexico, Pablo.

Referee Ginsburg this past week disqualified Mr. Moto for the third and deciding fall after repeatedly warning Mr. Moto for alleged use of foul and unfair tactics. Ginsburg declared that Mr. Moto had rubbed ceremonial salt in the eyes of Champion Thesz. Thesz claimed that he had been blinded temporarily and ringsiders chipped in their two-bits worth. Several irate fans were all for giving the big Jap the bum's rush out of the ring and the arena.

The Mr. Moto-Romero three-fall fight is backed by a bar-the-door battle between two ring rowdies, Krippler Karl Davis and masked Golden Terror. The two ruffians had words recently as to who's who in the "tough guy league." Promoter Ernie Steffen figured there'd be no better place to settle it than in the ring.

Sandor Szabo, KECA-TV defending champion, meets two challengers for the $1000 "wrestling jackpot": Texas Tony Morelli, opposer Joe Campbell and Mr. X, taxes on Barney Kowalski.

Grapplers on Video Today

Sandor Szabo, KECA-TV's "Wrestling Jackpot" defending champion; Texas Tony Morelli, Barney Kowalski, the wrestling Romero brothers, and a half dozen other topnotchers are slated to go through their paces on the TV "Sunday Wrestling Workouts" today at Wilmington Bowl.

The program, which gets under way at 5:30 and concludes at 7:30 p. m. is under the supervision of Al Billings. It is free to the public.

SKILL SCUTTLED

Middle Age Bogs in Work Market

By BILL CONWAY

Prosperity and security are only meaningless words to hundreds of Long Beach men and women, many of them capable and skilled workers, who have filed job applications at the California State Employment Service office at 1313 Pine Ave.

Day after day they call at the office with a shred of hope in their hearts, only to be told, "Sorry. Nothing open today."

They are men and women past 45. Many of them held executive jobs. But they have been edged out of their jobs by younger, more aggressive workers and now the future looks bleak indeed.

EMPLOYER LOSES
In the opinion of George Toll, manager of the local office of CSES, the employer is, in the final analysis, the loser.

"In a recent survey of one week's intake of new job applications," Toll said, "approximately 50 per cent of the applicants over 45 years of age were highly skilled workers. In the lower age group only 25 per cent were skilled."

In the over 45 age group 10 per cent were in the professional classification, 15 per cent clerical and sales, 10 per cent service trades, and the remainder semi-skilled.

In the total file of 4000 job applications at the office there are more than 500 applications from skilled workers over 45 years of age.

From this backlog of available workers the August record reveals 125 replacements in the under 21 group; 1014 jobs for those in the 21-45 group; 135 placements in the over 45 group.

There are 1000 job openings at present, Toll said. Employers have filed requisitions for 119 in the under 21 group, 730 in the 21-45 bracket, and 151 in the over 45 classification.

CLERKS WANTED
Most sought in the so-called over-age group, Toll said, are bookkeepers, inventory clerks and file clerks.

The 40-Plus Club, organized by over age workers five years ago, was successful in placing more than 400 skilled workers over 45 years of age during the time the club operated. The 40-Plus Club, however, suspended two months ago.

Toll said the problem of placing the older workers in paying jobs is not merely local but exists in most of the larger cities throughout the nation.

"And," said Toll, "the national economy suffers because employers overlook this valuable group of skilled workers in favor of younger groups with relatively limited experience."

Impossible to Go Wrong This Season in Myriad of Selections Stores Offer

By MAGGIE WORTH

Women love the approaching season for many reasons. Not the least of these is the change from summer casual wear to the trim smartness of fall and winter.

It's been many a moon since we've had the fun of so much to pore over before making selections. It will be practically impossible to go wrong anywhere along the line—you may just miss out on a particular style or color. It's just that simple this year.

Fabrics are more exciting than ever — tweeds, jerseys, wool-patterned rayons and corduroys treated for rain and weather. This latter fabric is shown at one local department store in a colorful full-length coat for casual wear now and into the rainy season.

Most exciting of fall materials is the prize-winning Lorette — a combination of wonderful orlon and wool which is hand washable and needs no pressing. Permanent pleating details many garments made of this material. This fabric is a story in itself and has been described in great detail by the many fashion and news magazines.

LINES ARE SLIM

The slim line prevails with alternate fullness in front and back. Suit lines sometimes suggest the middy with elongated jackets banded at the hipline. Focal point of all garments is the neckline. Double-breasted fastening of suits just under the neckline is a fresh note introduced by Elfreda-Fox. Many dresses are finished with velvet collars and small bows.

Greens, grays and browns are again coming into their own sometimes woven with indistinct undertones. Look for these colors in thin wool sheaths with matching jackets. Look for the very new after-five separates as well as suits. The sweater look remains an important trend and is not confined to sportswear.

While suits generally follow the pencil slim line, evening gowns use yards and yards of billowing material for spectacular skirts.

BLACK IS PROMINENT

Paradoxical trends are also noted in coats. There are many fitted ones but there are just as many, it would seem, which are full, many times with the fullness at the sides rather than front or back.

Black is still the prominent color but there are many exciting contrasts. Color ranges its gamut and one local four-departments department is showing gaily colored garments. One is called pint-size for the junior miss and comes packed in an ice cream bucket. It's now possible to mix or match colors in the complete wardrobe.

Shoes, hats and accessories continue the fascinating story which fashion—fall 1952. Color and fabric co-ordinated with snug comfortable fit. Lily Dache is showing head-bugging hats with tall, tall slim feathers.

No matter what store you choose in Long Beach to serve your needs—modest or elaborate, you will find the complete color, fabric and styling for your fall wardrobe.

Soft and Long

Hair styles for fall, are longer and more softly fashioned with emphasis on gentle waves.

Junior Miss Given Flattering Styles

Young fashions, featured for fall, are designed to make the most of a teen's femininity. For they have a soft, natural look.

Exciting, textured fabrics have a downy feeling. Skirts are neither ultra full nor pencil straight, but a flattering and extremely wearable midway point between the two. Lower waistlines and the midriff molding Empire influence are both important, and can be seen in teen suits, dresses and separates.

The dress, with the wandering waistline, the "middy dress" is forward in the teen fall fashion scene. There are one and two-piece versions, all with gently eased skirts that may be pleated all around or gored to achieve the proper feminine effect. And most are dressed up with big bows and collars without which no true middy dress is complete.

Highlights of Fashion

SOFT LINES . . . Every designer passes this test for the coming season.

FLOWER SHAPES . . . Pure silk follows a flower theme in many collections in necklines and skirts.

FABRIC AND LEATHER . . . Shoes are more delicate and fluid-looking, using leather and fabrics, separately or teamed.

FABRIC PICTURE . . . Jersey, pure silk (highly important), orlon and wool for suits and dresses.

COLORS . . . The range is great and fanciful. Black is basic, alone or combined with primary shades.

HATS . . . Follow the head line quite closely this year. Fewer brims, but perky angles and many, many feathers.

BODICE LINE . . . More feminine and flattering than in years. Look for the Empire bodice in after-5 dresses.

SILHOUETTE . . . Slimmer in line with flare at hipline. Pleats and pleats in jersey, orlon, and even sude, baked in for permanence.

SWEATER LOOK . . . Continues as one of the important trends, dramatized in jersey and other knit fabrics, carried over into evening wear.

Colored Gloves Are Prominent

Combining to make exciting fashion news for gloves, on hand for fall, is a generous use of color and a lavish amount of flattering detailing on every type of glove from the very gala kidskins to the sports-minded wool knit styles.

Colors run the gamut from the new deeper fashion tones to such compelling patterns as checks, polka dots and stripes. There are deep wines, lively blues, dark greens, bright reds, yellow, a complete range of beige tones and dark greys.

Black, one of the most popular tones for fall, is often seen teamed with other deep shades such as grey, blue or brown. And whites, used for dressier glove styles, can be had delicately tinted with overcasts of mauve-pink, ice blue or grey.

Even the simplest of gloves is dressed-up for fall with eye-compelling details like a trim little button or a neat self trim. Tassels, eyelet lacings, jaunty top bows and novel contrast patterns are all used to decorate cuffs.

sequins. The moulded fit over the left hip is in sharp contrast to the panel of multi-color net on the right. At right is a Hattie Carnegie after-5 gown of royal fiery silk overall patterned in black chenille. The skirt springs into graceful fullness over the hips from the draped high waist.

Many Colors for Millinery

The fall color-range of millinery is infinite.

Clear reds and light winey reds; copper, russet and vivid orange; gold, sharp yellow and warm beige tones; deep forest greens and pale greyed mossy shades; vivid peacock, navy and ice blues; cyclamen and reddish purples; charcoal and smoke greys are among the most popular. Black and a bright shade, or bold black-and-white looks newer than solid black, except for very dressy cocktail and evening hats.

Innovations Boost Crepe This Season

Many of the new crepes shown this fall, in addition to their draping and figure flattering qualities, have a firmer hand and a pebbled rough textured surface appeal. Other innovations to look for include ribbed crepes that resemble faille, crepes with a moire effect . . . and those wonderfully eye-catching, deep springy crepes which haven't been seen for many-a-season.

Rayon, with its unique crepe qualities, is particularly adaptable to the innumerable and interesting crepe variations seen this year. Now, in the fashion picture, are the crepes made of "Minifil" yarns, developed by the American Viscose Corporation. These rayon yarns have a minimum number of heavier filaments, producing crepes with a fuller, more luxurious body. Multifilament rayon, with which we are all familiar, simply means many or multi-filaments in the yarn, producing a fine, soft crepe. All of these rayon crepes not only look well on every figure type, but they dry clean beautifully and are naturally resistant to wrinkling.

Crepe is a born wardrobe stretcher . . . the perfect transition fabric . . . because it names its own season, depending upon the way it is handled and accessorized. In this year of 1952, rayon crepe is the fabric for a complete wardrobe of fashions!

Belts Accent Pretty Waistlines

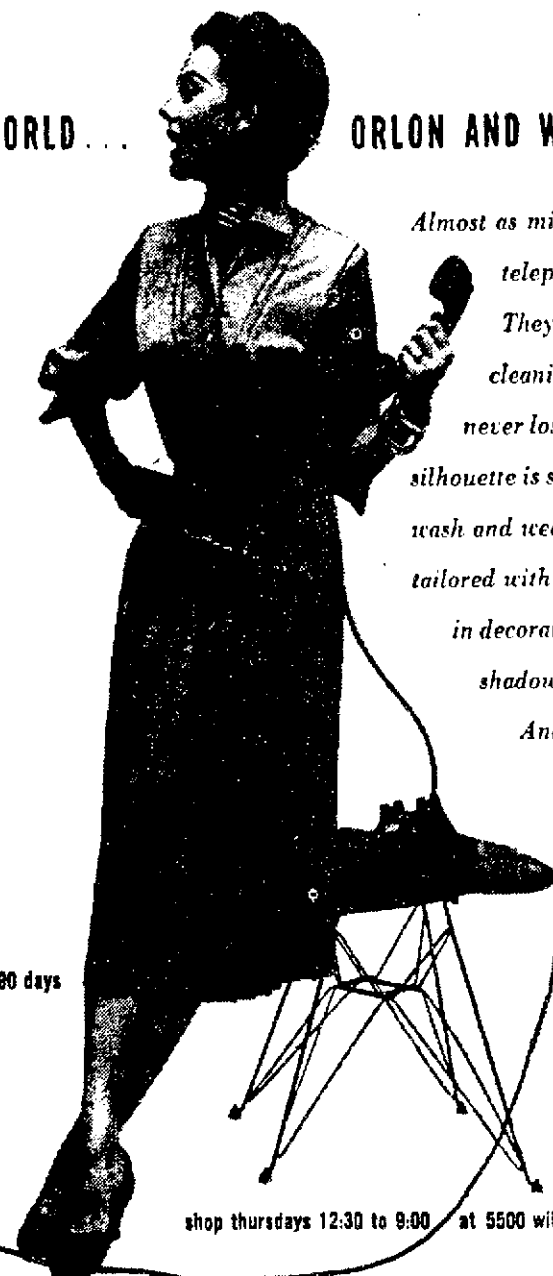

The wider the better, that's the theme of belts new for Fall. For, this season, belts are meant to accent a feminine waist or serve as a heightening effect for Empire silhouettes.

Many of the new, shaped contour belts can be had in sleek leathers available in everything from glamorous gold to a more casual natural leather shade sometimes dressed up with metal.

LATEST WONDER OF THE MODERN WORLD . . .

Almost as miraculous as the telephone...the new wonder fabrics! . . . They wash—unpack with a bounce—keep cleaning bills at bay. Pleats are PERMANENT . . . never lose their sharp, clear edges. Socialites Go From Sublime to Ridiculous at Brilliant Fetes

By BETTY CAREY
Independent Women's Editor

Our vote for heroine of the week goes to Flo Brooks! First, as president of the Auxiliary to Children's Memorial Hospital, she welcomed the throng, 800 strong, to the fabulous fashion show given by the Auxiliary on Wednesday eve at the Balboa Bay Club. Flo, in a dreamy champagne tulle creation sprinkled with sequins, stepped up to the platform, wrinkled up her nose and grinned in her engaging fashion and one immediately understood how she is able to lead any organization with grace and aplomb.

Second, the Lawyers' Wives had their gay "come as a song" party last night, and, as you probably know, who but Flo and husband, John, again threw open the doors of their lovely Orangewood Acres home for the affair as they did last year. All roads led to the Balboa Bay Club it seemed, and warm plaudits are due Nan Phillips, general chairman. Greeting guests at the door were Peggy Akers in black crepe lavishly trimmed with bugle beads, Alice Sievers wearing a dainty rose print pleated chignon, Ruth Taylor in grey shantung taffeta intricately braided (she's the Auxiliary ways and means head), Veljane Cassill, ticket chairman, in a black taffeta off-the-shoulder creation; Johnnie Barnes, beautiful in elegant black satin with tiny glittering hat, and Lillian Crawford in very bouffant lilac net.

Hosting at a table for 40 were Marvella and Bob McNulty and others entertaining large groups were the Frank Rogerses and T. J. Taylors. Saw Jimmy Carrey, founder of the auxiliary, in a dashing print; Donella Rothwell, stunning in white lace, and Julia Cheney also in white. A fetching black gown trimmed with pearl and sequin medallions was chosen by Frances Buffum and Dell Berry was in gold with a vivid red stole.

Chatted with sparkling Ginny West and her husband, Bud, as well as Mickey and John McWhinney who are living on Lido Isle now. Everyone was exclaiming over the alluring and Frieda Prichard, looked like a sophisticated angel, and Junior Leaguers Marilyn Mead and Frieda Prichard, looked poised and quite professional. The clothes were absolutely divine sprinkled with Eisenberg, Mangone, Lily Dache and Adrian labels as they were, and the "Lovely to Look At" theme was carried out in novel fashion. Vaile Young, Genelle Parks and Lenore Shaw were busy, busy, helping the wheels turn smoothly. Young Philip Clock won some nylons and George Hart the Chanel perfume door awards!

Now as to last night's frolic at the Brooks. A dance floor was set up outside and surrounded with small tables laid with giddy plaid cloths. Virginia and Merrill Little both came as Costain books, she as "The Black Rose" with the largest flora at her waist that our jaded eyes have seen recently, while Merrill was "The Money Man" with paper money in impressive denominations sewed all over his clothes. The Lillies hosted at cocktails before the party as did Marge and Ed Demler and Hilda and Warren Eckert. Tortillas bordered Marge's skirt and were centered with music flat notes, and we'll let you guess which Steinbeck book she had chosen. Vera Rogers, the club's president, was done up in a dinner jacket, top hat and a gold-headed cane as Thorne Smith's "Topper" and Frank Rogers was Hemingway's "Old Man of the Sea" in a sailor suit and long white beard. Hilda Eckert was in charge of the brilliant placards representing books that formed the decor, by the way.

Jane Lewis and Pauline

White were "The Harvey Girls" and Ruby and Lewis Kean did a tricky job on "A Bell for Adano," she being a Southern belle and he an elegant Spanish don. The bearded prophet with slate and red was Moses Lewis being the "Book of Moses," no less.

The "Book of Dreams" was a strictly gag outfit worn by the hostess, Flo, combining as it did an old flame colored housecoat worn backwards and a nightmarish Salvador Dali headdress of artificial snakes and false teeth. John's sister, Mary (Mrs. Raleigh) Wilson, was a houseguest of the Brooks, as well as her son, Dr. Jim Wilson, geology professor from the U. of Michigan who's out here checking earthquake damage.

WORKING on table decorations for Saturday's Panhellenic fashion show are Mrs. Harley B. Smith, left, and Mrs. Ralph L. Cummings. "Platforms for Fashions" is the theme to be used and proceeds from the event, which is open to the public, will go toward five scholarships for high school girl graduates.

Luncheon for Visitors

Entertaining for out-of-town guests at a bridge luncheon Thursday at the Lafayette Hotel was Mrs. James H. Hanbery of the Cooper Arms Apartments. Her guests on this occasion were Mrs. Richard Clements of Oklahoma City, who is here visiting her mother, Mrs. Harold Scott, and Mrs. R. M. Peterson of Detroit, Mich.

Assisting Mrs. Hanbery was her mother, Mrs. Anita Dale. Fall flowers and pale yellow chrysanthemums were used as decor.

Those invited were Mmes. Harold Scott, Harold Larner, Raymond Green, Eloi Amar, Roy Suydam, J. K. Thomas, S. S. Conklin, H. F. Schroeder, Edwina Pollock Gladden, William Cree, Willis W. Bradley, Wilbur Lee Candy, W. R. Martin, Harold Blythe, George Dalessi, George Baumgardner and Mrs. Stella Hollowell of Pasadena.

PANHELLENIC board members, Mrs. H. R. Wyllie, seated, Mrs. John Nimocks and Mrs. Fletcher M. Young, view a formal worn by Mrs. William H. Winston Jr., as a preview of the annual Panhellenic dessert and fashion show Sept. 20 at Lakewood Country Club. Mrs. Winston's gown is a honey shade of nylon tulle combined with imported French lace and features basque top with matching stole. Styles are from Vinson's.—(Staff Photo.)

Panhellenic Serves Multitude of Purposes

By MARY LOU ZEHRM
Press-Telegram Women's Editor

The famous American year 1776 saw the birth of the United States of America and of the first American society bearing a Greek-letter name, Phi Beta Kappa. Since that time, college students have banded together forming other three-letter organizations; fraternities for the men and sororities for the women students. Although they originally came into being as literary societies, we find now that more and more lean toward the social with the exception of honorary scholastic groups.

This need for interfraternity organizations, resulted in the formation of Panhellenic, which was a banding together of 31 national groups into membership in National Panhellenic. Its purpose is to maintain on a high plane fraternity life and interfraternity relationships; to co-operate with college authorities in an effort to maintain high social and scholastic standards throughout each college, and to be a forum for the discussion of questions of interest to the college and fraternity world.

In 1914 Mrs. W. L. Stephens, a Kappa Kappa Gamma, and wife of the late W. L. Stephens, a former superintendent of Long Beach schools, formed Long Beach Panhellenic.

During World War I, the group was inactive but since 1922 it has been continuous. The work of the local organization is to furnish five $100 scholarships each year to outstanding high school girl graduates to a college of their choice.

Twenty-two sororities are active in Long Beach, each with a representative on the Panhellenic board.

A few of the outstanding presidents for Long Beach, have been Mmes. A. M. Halbert Jr., Ray Underwood, Leroy Denny, Herbert Waite Jr., Elizabeth Maddox, William Ware, Alexis Jacobowsky, Arthur Green, H. R. Healy, Richard Pearsall and Robert Ritzer.

President this year is Mrs. William S. Stewart, a member of Delta Zeta.

Farewell for Valley Hoffman

Miss Valley S. Hoffman, 601 Terraine Ave., was surprised by a farewell party given in the home of Miss Carol Brox, 501 Santiago Ave. Miss Valley left Friday for Columbia, Mo., where she will register at Stephens College.

All the guests present were recent graduates of Wilson High School and close friends of Miss Hoffman. During the evening games were played and refreshments served at midnight.

The guest list included Misses Arlene Carpenter, Agnes Boudreaux, Evelyn Wilson, Joe Ann Palmer, Barbara Hinderdorf, Alene Wilson, Beth Suedenga, Sherrill Couch.

Early Fall Brunch in Clark's Seaside Home

Midweek in mid-September marks one of the high lights of the early fall season when 100 guests will be entertained at a brunch Wednesday given by Mrs. George Clark and Mrs. Dwight McFadyen in the Clark seaside home in Seal Beach.

Mauve delphinium and spider chrysanthemums will be attractively arranged in the living and dining room, while the lanai, which is decorated in an Hawaiian motif, will be adorned with ginger flowers, banana blossoms and bamboo.

Assisting the two hostesses will be Mrs. Charles C. Stratton and Dorothy Ardis, sisters of Mrs. Clark, and Mmes. Harry Bufum, Marvin Davis, Freeman Putnam, Dwight Robbins, Carl Griffin, Milton McGrew and Bruce Mason. Guests will arrive at various hours during the late morning function.

CHAIRMAN of the scholarship committee, Mrs. Neil W. Phillips Jr., left, and Panhellenic president, Mrs. William N. Stewart, admire some of the door awards which will be featured Saturday afternoon at the annual Panhellenic dessert and fashion show at Lakewood Country Club.

Meet Wednesday Has Scholarship

Auxiliary 71 of the Spanish War Veterans will have a potluck supper at 6 p. m. Wednesday at the Veterans Memorial Bldg. Afterwards there will be a business meeting and election of officers, Phoebe Nicodemus presiding for the last time.

Bill Smitheran, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Smitheran, 5601 Daggett St., left Sunday for the University of Arizona where he will be in his senior year. This is the fourth year he has received a scholarship from the university.

College Beckons to Peninsula Crowd

By PEG STRACHAN

Things are quiet for the most part over on the Palos Verdes Peninsula these days. Everyone is too busy getting the college age crowd back to school and the teenagers back into the swing of high school affairs, to do much formal entertaining or take any trips.

Having their first fling at college life will be Jack Heard, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Heard of Rolling Hills (Occidental), Karl Detzer, son of the Stephen D. Detzers of Palos Verdes (Reed), Gary Goss, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leland L. Goss, of Rolling Hills (Colorado), Nancy Bates-Lane, daughter of the A. W. Lanes (Colorado), Prudy Jackson, daughter of Hubert Jacksons of Palos Verdes (Colorado), Sally Hix, daughter of the Clifton A. Hixes, of Palos Verdes (USC), Ralph Ailman, son of the Ralph B. Ailmans of Palos Verdes (USC), and Doug Schuler, son of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Schuler of Palos Verdes (USC).

Returning for their second year will be Caroline Hill, daughter of the James Hills of Palos Verdes (Whittier), Ken Ward, son of the Elbert E. Wards of Palos Verdes (USC), and Linda Jenkins, daughter of the Vance Jenkins of Palos Verdes (Colorado).

Mrs. Harry Harper is leaving for a week's visit in Berkeley, making the trip with her son David, who is returning to the university there.

The Young Republicans had a party for Bob Finch Monday evening at the Portuguese Bend Club and people turned out in droves. On the committee were Mrs. Grant Beckstrand and Kenneth Sampson.

A business group meeting for dinner at the Linn Wilsons in Palos Verdes will enjoy dancing on the tennis court after their barbecue potluck dinner. This is an annual affair. Bidden to the party are Messrs. and Mrs. William Barber, Elton Barnett, Paul Doyle, William Fane, Gene Friess, Fred Hartley, James Hill, W. W. Hird, Walt Jameson, Lou Knudsen, James Sidford, John Towler, Tony Tullers and Mrs. Vance Jenkins.

Mrs. David Root of Palos Verdes is occupied these days with redecorating her recreation room. She's spent hours hunting just the right materials and furniture.

The Miles Blaines of Palos Verdes are doing over their attractive home in old Mexican style.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale E. Huber of Palos Verdes will be at their cabin at Big Bear this week end.

Mrs. John Brigham Merrell II

John Merrell II Weds Miss Mott in England

A wedding of international interest, performed in Holy Trinity Church, Brompton, London, England, is that of Shirley Ann Mott of Virginia and John Brigham Merrell II, member of a pioneer Long Beach family. Rev. H. S. Godwin officiated at the formal ceremony and John Dinsmore of County Antrim, Northern Ireland, gave his granddaughter in marriage.

The attractive bride, gowned in ivory satin styled with cathedral-length train and full-length veil of illusion net, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Mott of Charlottesville, Va. Attending her were Misses Susan Lorely and Christine Lambert, both of London, gowned in eyelet organza over yellow. Maid of honor was Miss Pamela Rogers, cousin of the bride. Peter Augustus Davis of Long Beach was Merrell's best man and ushers were Richard J. Stratton and Derek John Buchanan, of London. Reception was at the Hyde Park Hotel.

Californians attending the service were the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Ruth Craig Merrell of Long Beach; his aunt, Mrs. James Gourlay Craig; Mrs. Harry Harrison of Long Beach; former resident, Mrs. Pauline Scanlon Kolb and son Jerome of Los Angeles; France, and Mr. and Mrs. E. Clark Richardson of Beverly Hills.

The new Mrs. Merrell is a graduate of Queen's College, London. Prior to her return to San Francisco a year ago, she spent four years in South America, dividing her time between Quito and Rio de Janeiro. Her paternal grandmother is Mrs. Herbert Mott of London.

Merrell, the grandson of Mrs. John F. Craig, and the late Mr. Craig, pioneer shipbuilder of Southern California, has been residing in San Francisco the past three years and is a graduate of UC at Berkeley. He attended Polytechnic High School and Webb Preparatory School of Claremont and was studying at Pomona College when called to service. He is a member of Alpha Zeta, honorary agricultural society.

Returning Home

Mr. and Mrs. Bruno Tucci will return to their home in Los Angeles Tuesday after vacationing in New York City, by way of Washington, D. C., New Orleans, and San Antonio, Texas. Mrs. Tucci is the former Gladys Potter, 1028 E. Sixth St.

WILD WAVES ARE SAYING

A Lantern-Lit Garden Scene, Mystery Behind Drawn Blinds

By IOLA MASTERSON

Gallons of potato salad, tons of baked ham, scads of tossed salad—egad! what a spot for an Alka-Seltzer salesman! Fortunately, in the absence of one, none was needed for last Sunday's happy-go-lucky crowd of well fed Junior League provisionals, their husbands, and the provisionals' training committee members and their husbands when the committee was hostess at a patio picnic for the neophytes and their mates.

Virginia and Franklin Waters' Japanese lantern-lit garden was the scene for the happy affair on which Pro Chairman Marge Clark, Vice Chairman Margaret Sully and all the others worked so hard, yet so blithely. Other committee members present and accounted for were Ann and Tom McCarty, Pat and Jim Craig, Marian and Craig Hosmer, Madame President Helene Drown and jovial Jack. The honored guests included such attractive personages as Fran and Walt Greenwood, Marge and Duncan Mahone, Shirley and Chuck Planting, and Zona and Norm Savidge.

Don Alderman's friends can relax now. After 15 years of marlin fishing Don boated his first one last week end; 144 pounds worth, no less, hooked east of Catalina from the boat. Two Bills, and landed in 28 minutes flat. Al Stevenson, fellow fisherman of the day, looked on with a mixed expression of envy and glee during the titanic struggle.

And speaking of fishing, last we heard Dr. Len Cowley had racked up a total of 8 albacore representing about 200 pounds, for the season.

Dick Kimball's head has been in the clouds and his heart in Modesto since the arrival of his first grandchild there. Magic words to bring a smile to Dick's face are, "Charles Robert."

They arrive at Doc Ed Beebe's house under cover of darkness, such University Club members as Don Sullivan, Dick Potter, Paul Hull, Ernie Lockwood, Tom Russell, Dr. Frank Blair and Bill Barbee, all carrying strangely shaped cases. Then from behind drawn blinds, there is heard the most mysterious of twerlings and twotellings, sending hills up and down the spines of those who hear. Finally all noise subsides and the men, carrying their cases, depart in silence. The club's annual meeting will take place October 7 and may account for the weird antics. Cecil Willis is program chairman.

Martha and Art Hall seem to be loving the living at their new home in Balboa.

Shades of Kris Kringle, a Christmas month party has been planned. Peggy Ferry told me that when the Opti-Mrs. had their meeting at Lorraine Moore's they planned a beautiful Holiday Festival and tagged it for December 2. Along with President Birdie Finch, 35 members including Ruth Smith, Carol Bolin, Mary Lou Sheridan and Mary Brooks, all in colorful summer cottons and while munching a hot weather buffet luncheon, made plans for the cold weather affair.

There's something good to be seen at the Laguna Beach Art Gallery because Ben Messick is currently having a showing which includes many of his famous circus themed oils. Perhaps best known of all on display is Ben's portrait of Barnum and Bailey's inimitable clown, Emmett Kelly.

It was almost 10 a. m. straight up when Dorothy Updike, in a delectable gold and maroon print dress, rang the doorbell at Frances Zierott's home last Tuesday. The coffee was ready and so were other board meeting members of Theta alums including Virginia Barber and Nancy Zantiny.

A gang of young teachers and new teachers of town have been invited by the Bachelors Club to a get-acquainted party next Friday night (those boys are no fools!) at the home of Don Sparks. Ken Knox is arranging the affair which the fellows hope will help the attractive schoolmarm's forget the trials and tribulations of the first hectic week of classrooms.

Marie and John Ferguson have a sparkle in their eyes and an air of urgency about them that suggests moving day to their new home way out on Pacific isn't so far off.

Carolyn and H. W. Funke should be just nicely started on their two-month tour of Europe. They sailed August 29 aboard the Corona. Among anticipated highlights of the trip will be a visit with relatives in Western Germany.

Club Calendar Features Talk by Epley on GOP Convention

By RUTH REECE
Press-Telegram Club Editor

Say! Why not come down to Town Hall Tuesday for a "double feature" day?

It's the September all-day meeting of the Long Beach Council of Republican Women, and those attending are assured of interesting programs at both morning and afternoon sessions, while the luncheon interlude provides an opportunity for much chit-chat among members and their many guests. If planning to remain for the day, take a sandwich and purchase delicious hot coffee at the snack bar maintained by club members.

Malcolm Epley, executive editor, political editor, and columnist of the Press-Telegram Beach Combing, will speak in the morning, giving some side-lights on the recent GOP convention. The afternoon program will feature the color film of the Fallbrook Story, with Robert Irwin, public relations director of the Long Beach Harbor Department, as commentator.

Mrs. Gladys O'Donnell will preside at both sessions and Mrs. Logan H. Goodnight will present the program.

Woman's Auxiliary to Goodwill Industries of Long Beach and the harbor area will resume its meetings Tuesday in Cassell Chapel in the plant at Fifth St. and Golden Ave. Mrs. E. J. Bulgin, president, will open the meeting at 11 a. m., when Mrs. J. C. Ferguson, counselor, will report on the summer work.

Mrs. G. Thoburn Davis, first vice president, will present the first of a series of programs on handicaps, what is being done and the opportunities of service by Goodwill Industries, an organization which gives employment to handicapped persons by turning discards into wages. Mrs. Charles Park, volunteer braille transcriber for the Library of Congress, is the featured speaker and will demonstrate her work. George Lee, blind pianist, will also be presented. Women of the East Long Beach Methodist Church, under the leadership of Miss Pamela Clark, president, and Mrs. H. E. Wall, service chairman, are hostesses for the luncheon. Around-the-Clock Smartness Reflected in Fashions for This Season

PRINCESS LINE—A John Tuman original emphasizes the princess silhouette in black velvet accented by baroque jeweled embroidery. The high empire bustline is made more flattering by wide straps at the shoulder. At Vinson's House of Fashion. Sharon Proppe models.

Dress 'Down' in Daytime, 'Up' in Evening, Says Ceil

"Dress down in the daytime, dress up in the evening" is Ceil Chapman's plan for an autumn wardrobe.

Her fall 1952 collection signifies the dress down spirit in a series of neatly covered, detailed little dresses, designed to be the daytime "uniform" for an army of beauties who can be just as efficient in silk crepe or faille as in ground-gripper woolsens, but who do admit that taffetas and crinolines didn't quite blend into the office routine.

DATE DRESS—A Lenz original in Juliet velvet is displayed at Dinel's. The square neck and gathered skirt make it appealing. Comes in black and red stripes and black and blue.

Slender, highnecked, long sleeved and almost prim with their little round collars and turn-back cuffs, the day dresses of crepe, tissue faille, peau de sole or Italian slubbed silk have such "fine hand work" as smocked yokes on bodice and skirt or tiny pin tucks shaping in the top of bodice and sleeve.

The skirts are deceptively apt to look uncompromisingly narrow, but Miss Chapman is not the designer to suggest a hobble skirt for American gals.

Deep foldover backs, pleats or seductive slashes keep skirts mobile, and the shell draped skirt is a new Chapman contribution to the coming wrapped and tapered silhouette with a soft (and softening) hipline.

For the clock-watcher in all of us, Ceil Chapman makes a group of dresses that can work a while, play a while on demand. They sometime have full skirts (not over crinolines any longer though) but many have wrapped narrow skirts and all have jacket tops over bare and sometimes strapless bodices.

When she designs for evening, Ceil Chapman sees clothes in a happy mood: inspired by beautiful things in the world around us, no matter what dark plots humanity is hatching. Sea shells lend their elongated curves and folds to skirt shapes.

Sub-Teens Newest Fashions Are Styled for Versatility

Miss Sub-Teen is adopting the Middy Silhouette for her very own, this fall. For dresses, suits and coats, created for this young lady, all reflect this excitingly new fashion feature, with many designs also offering her a wealth of versatility.

Take middy dresses, for example. They are designed in styles for party going or going back to school. One party dress emphasizes the middy line with a long, slim torso that ends in a self-fabric band around the hips.

Typical of the school day middy dresses is the one with a two-piece outlook. It has a big bow and collared blouse-like top and a trimly pleated skirt. Still another middy dress type comes with an extra overblouse, that has the exact appearance of a middy.

The Sub-Teen's suits often achieve a middy silhouette with a tiny Spencer jacket topping a skirt that's smooth to the hips before it flares out. In other instances, suits have long boxy jackets, styled with a minimum of details, that team with tapered skirts to provide a middy silhouette.

Although the Sub-Teen's coats also take on middy lines, they are offered, as well, in a number of other pretty designs.

One example of the middy coat, created for younger girls, is molded from the shoulders to well below the waist where the middy silhouette is accented by an all-around band. The skirt of the coat is youthfully flared.

Other coats, in newly popular fitted styles, might have two belts, one for nipping-in each side of the waist. They might have buttons that curve with a grown-up air, and in any of these instances, the lining might be a brightly colored contrast to the outside of the coat.

STANDOUT—A dress which speaks for itself, this Fred Greenberg creation is now shown at Schick's. It lends itself admirably to rich accessories and adornment.

Designer Uses Flower Theme

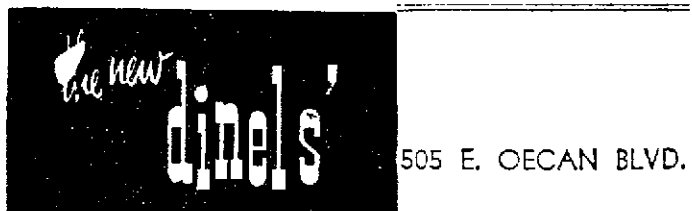

The afternoon and cocktail dresses and evening separates for which Samuel Winston has long been noted continue his tradition of beautiful pure silk fabrics and imported lace cut to flatter the figure and given the most elegant of decorations in lace, embroidery or beads.

The Fall 1952 collection takes its theme from flowers and flower forms: Flower shapes are seen in skirts and necklines, and vines and blossoms are the motifs of lovely appliques and jeweled embroidery.

Decorated sleeves, laden with tassels, passementerie or jet embroidery is a delightful new note on many afternoon and dinner dresses of silk faille or poul de soie. Shaped tight to the arm and reaching below the sleeves look all the more dramatic by contrast with a low square neckline.

Black Suede Pump Rates High for Fall

Pumps, the people's choice for fall '52. Pumps with detail, with contrasting color trims. Pumps with embroidered vamps and cutouts, with draping and tucking, with contrasting fabric and leather trims.

Pumps with low heels, mid-way heels, high heels, with open or closed toes, with open or closed backs. Each new style an exciting fashion story to correlate with the complete costume this fall.

With the trend to the "little black dress," this fall, the black suede pump, according to the National Shoe Institute, takes first place in the color parade.

RICH DETAILS

The pump also assumes fashion importance because of the rich deep-textured coats and suits in the many cross-dyed wools with color on a black base. Suede pumps are handsomely decorated with jet and rhinestone beading, touches of patent, faille, velvet, satin and calf trims, fabric braids and appliques, mesh inlays, buttons and bows.

Black shoes are also news when combined with bright colors such as red or black with green. The autumn harvest colors, from the palest beige to deep coppery tones, go with the new fall costumes and these ombre shades are also smartly combined with black.

The warm vibrant shade of Town Brown will step into fall along with important blues, deep ruby red and bright lively accents of green. Grey is a growing color, especially when combined with black. Grey flannel and tweedy textures are gaining in prominence.

NEW LINES

The shoe silhouette is a changing picture. Scalloped lines frame the foot, sling heels have the new higher halter type sling. Today's openings appear unexpectedly at the little toe or toward the side of the foot. Open shank pumps, these with closed toes and backs but open at the sides, create a lighter look.

Comfort goes with fashion as well as hacon and eggs these days. Newest innovations include the soft shoe tailored to fit and feel more like an old glove than a brand new shoe.

Keeping pace in popularity with pumps for fall, are open handed shoes in a variety of strap styles as well as elasticized bands, slings and pull-over type shoes which keep the foot comfortably and conveniently in just the right place.

LUSH FABRIC—The fashion importance of soft fabrics and strategic detail is exemplified in this new Stoll cocktail dress. Lyon's luxurious noncrush black velvet makes this dress, the essence of simplicity. Wide grosgrain ribbon edges the cardigan neckline and extends down center front to hem. Push up three-quarter sleeves complete the dramatic picture. At Buffums' Fashion Shop, Third Floor.

Deeper Shades for Hosiery

There's a clear tang to hosiery shades featured for fall. These take their cue from footwear offered for the new season in deeper shades, like ruby red, emerald green, the brown tones and black that are complementary to fashion's worn above.

To blend with the many deeper shades on hand, there are such new hosiery casts as illusion tones that match with black; exciting browns and a tawny beige created to go with ginger and spice tones; brown taupes and deep neutrals with main casts that go with new grape purples.

Visit Home

Anna Etheridge social club of the Daughters of Union Veterans will go to West Los Angeles tomorrow at 9:30 a. m. to visit the D.U.V. home where two of their members live.

Crepe Dress Back in Style

The crepe dress is back in fashion for fall, after a period of eclipse. It signals the new emphasis on the softened silhouette and on soft textures.

Crepe dresses often appear in familiar black, but also are seen in rich colors. Usually styled for afternoon wear, they make wonderful theater and dance frocks.

Hannah Troy does a crepe dress with fascia, or cummerbund, waistline in imperial red. Maurice Rentner has designed a dressed-up black crepe, slim and sculptured in two pieces. The back-opened bolero, with a pearl and bead embroidered neckline, tops a simple strapless short evening dress.

Double news for fall in crepe and slim silhouette is created by Nettie Rosenstein. Platinum French crepe is made with pleats from shoulder to hemline and cut steel buttons march down the front of the frock.

Modern Way of Life Key to Coloring

Color is slated to play a major role in fall 1952 fashions, according to William Skinner & Sons. Their collection of silk and synthetic fabrics for the coming season takes "Colors for Modern Living" as the theme.

"We believe fashion today is modern, keyed to the quickened lives we lead," says Kay Corin, Skinner's fashion director. "While a waistline may take inspiration from the Empire or the middy silhouette of another year, the interpretation is always of today. Fashion colors for fall are modern too, inspired by today's living. There are colors subtle and smart, vivid and to-the-point, exotic and sophisticated."

Skinner's Colors for Modern Living offer wide scope for individual choice. The beige-to-brown range and the yellowed greens look new and smart. The blues, as Airway, a slate tone, and Chanel, a teal, are tops in fashion. Cinema and Poodle, two wearable medium grays, are colors every woman wants as basics in her wardrobe. Light clear reds vie with rosy, winey hues as the favorite bright color.

Mrs. Robert Lawrence Cooney

Audrey Cereghino Is Now Mrs. R. L. Cooney

Miss Audrey Ann Cereghino, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Cereghino, 739 W. 19th St., chose the First Congregational Church for the setting of her wedding Saturday, Sept. 6, when she became the bride of Robert Lawrence Cooney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo T. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a Miriam original of candlelight satin with Peter Pan collar, fitted bodice, and cathedral train. Veil and tunic were trimmed with gros point de Venise. A veil of silk illusion fell from a crown of orange blossoms. The bride's bouquet was a cascade of white spider chrysanthemums with satin and tulle ribbons.

Pleasing Expressions Chief Beauty Aids

By HELEN JAMESON

There are more ways than one of high lighting the feminine face. You can do it with rouge, a whisk of lipstick, eye shadows of intriguing color. But if you would have real radiance, turn on the eye-shine, life your lip ends, cultivate the expression of an animated, friendly, intelligent person. That does it!

A girl can sport the chic hairdo, display a complexion that is as near perfection as nature and artifice can make it, wear smart clothes, but that does not mean that she makes the grade as a good looker. She spoils the picture if she is sullen or if she carries a cold, steely look in her eyes.

Let's take a survey of these misguided women who fail to realize that what goes on inside the head is reflected in the face. There is the bad-weather woman, for instance. Her map indicates clouds. She is self-pitying, feels that every hand is raised against her. She is given to whining, and a whining woman is an abomination.

Let us consider the snob, with her nose in the air, talking down to sales persons, climbing the social ladder. Her countenance is brittle and calculating.

There are women who have fighting faces, and they'll be fighting wrinkles long before they are due. Always a chip on the shoulder. Always the party of the opposition, disagreeing with the opinions of other people. When you see this one coming, run like everything!

There is many a lemonated woman who might change the current of her life if she cultivated a sweeter disposition and wore a sweeter expression on her face. Even though a woman feels bitter, she shouldn't look it. It isn't fair to the members of her family, or those with whom she comes in contact.

Those who are courageous, who carry their banners high, who are free of fears and affections, display these qualities in an expression of serenity and strength. You realize that almost at a glance. The zealous woman, wholly alive, carries a radiance of natural animation. She is up and coming, on her toes, and looks it. Smiles provide an uplift, keep the muscles strong. Let fibers droop and sag and there will be beauty griefs to battle.

Facial expression affects the muscles of the human portrait. Smiles provide an uplift, keep the muscles strong. Let fibers droop and sag and there will be beauty griefs to battle.

A Breakfast, a Banquet, and Dinners on Agenda

By ANNE GILCHRIST

Trusting that a leisurely, home-cooked breakfast of ham and eggs on a quiet autumn Sunday morning would appeal to many people, the Women's Traffic Club of Long Beach-Los Angeles Harbor has planned just such a breakfast for Sunday, Sept. 21, and the proceeds will go to one of the charities they support.

The public is invited to make their way any time from 8:30 a. m. until noon to the home of Eunice Crawford (she is with West Coast Packing Co.) at 26214 Eshelman Ave. in Long Beach.

This breakfast, and a rummage sale to take place Oct. 4, were the two most timely and important matters discussed when women of the Traffic Club held regular monthly dinner meeting in the Panel Room at Brower's last week.

Progressive Business Women of the YWCA completed plans for an attractive installation banquet when they held board meeting Monday. The installation of incoming president Mildred Da Sar and her officers will take place next Friday evening at the Assistance League Clubhouse, Fourth and Roswell, beginning at 6:30. Retiring President Edna Peters, installation officer Dorothy Molinari, program chairman Lillian Hendrickson and Josephine Goshorn, who is in charge of the dinner, will be mainly responsible for arrangements.

During the social hour which is to precede dinner, Harriet Wood, harpist, will provide a melodic background. Mrs. Molinari, well known local vocalist, will sing several selections in addition to her duties as installation officer. Guest speaker of the evening will be Wellington G. Pierce who will talk on the subject, "The Adequate Adult."

Executives' Secretaries will gather tomorrow night for regular business meeting and Dutch treat dinner at Allen Center, U. S. Navy Base, Terminal Island, with the cocktail hour preceding dinner scheduled for 6:15. "VI" Dovey made arrangements for the civilian secretaries to enjoy the hospitality of the elite Navy Club.

Long Beach Medical Assistants thoroughly enjoyed their most successful installation dinner meeting, held last Monday evening at the Victor Hugo, at which popular Dorothy Wilson (with Mrs. Swinney and Jones) accepted the gavel from outgoing president Mary Berkeley. Marian Darlington Pratt, famous whistler for motion pictures and stage, her husband, Don Pratt, cornetist, and Ruth Nichols, pianist, provided a delightful program. Miss Darlington augmented the musical portion by an informal talk concerning her experiences in the many movies in which she has whistled. It is her whistles which are heard in the latest Bob Hope picture and she will also be heard in Walt Disney's "Sleeping Beauty" when it is released.

First board meeting with the new officers takes place tomorrow night at President Dorothy's home, 1453 Anaheim Pl. They will meet with all committee chairmen for dinner and organization planning for the new club year.

Month's vacation began with the Labor Day weekend for Alta Larson (secretary to Bruce Mason). Part of this time she is spending in Twin Falls, Idaho, visiting her married daughter.

Mildred Sauer (County Clerk's office) is on a motoring vacation trip to Colorado. Home in two weeks.

Other end of summer vacationers have been Linda and Roy Helgeson who spent enjoyable days at Rosarita Beach in Baja California.

Mrs. Harvey Cooper

Cecile Hess Is Bride of H. G. Cooper

Miss Cecile Jeanne Hess, daughter of Miss H. Violet Hess, 3740 Elm Ave., became the bride of Harvey Gilbert Cooper in Booth Chapel of the First Congregational Church.

Given in marriage by her grandfather, Earl E. Hess, the bride wore a bouffant wedding gown of nylon dotted Swiss over a full underskirt of net and taffeta silk. She carried a bouquet of stephanotis with a detachable white orchid corsage.

Mrs. Robert Lobdel attended the bride as matron of honor. C. Peter Wilger served the bridegroom as best man and ushers were John Thornton and William Lovitt. A buffet luncheon followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's mother. A graduate of Polytechnic High School, where she was a member of Tajma Sorority, the former Miss Hess also was graduated from Pomona College. She plans to attend the graduate school of social welfare at UCLA, where she will work for a master's degree. Her husband was graduated from the University of Chicago school of law.

The newlyweds will be at home in Hollywood.

Child Needs Care of Feet

Give some thought to the fit of the children's stockings. They should have about half an inch of space beyond the end of the longest toe. This allows for growing. Stockings which are too short cramp the toes, while long stockings will bunch and may cause blisters. Nine out of 10 babies have perfect feet when they are born, yet, according to statistics, eight out of every 10 adults have foot troubles. Watch and care for your children's feet NOW so they will be perfectly formed and healthy in later years.

Versatility Is Forte of Shirley Madison

By JOAN CARTER

"Those who want to diet should give recitals." Is this the foreshadowing of a slimmer, more musical populace? Maybe yes, maybe no. At any rate, Miss Shirley A. Madison, Long Beach resident as of three months, has relayed the suggestion, relating that she herself lost fifteen pounds in the eight and nine-hour-a-day practices necessary to prepare for her senior recital at her alma mater, Oberlin Conservatory of Music.

These long practices were the usual in a framework of rugged musical competition. Out of 150 entering as freshmen approximately 40 graduated yearly. Scores memorized in the summer were polished until they shone in the formal and final voice and piano presentations in June. Miss Madison tried official waiting table in an extracurricular vein, but found it to be too much. The students were expected to live music.

"It's what I love. I'd rather teach piano than anything else."

And by coincidence, that's what she is teaching. She began her music with piano lessons at the age of five and also took 8 years of violin. When it came to a choice between the two instruments, Miss Madison chose piano, and gave her first recital at 12 years. In 1930 as a piano major she received her Bachelor of Music Degree from Oberlin. She also holds a Central Teachers Certificate, Minnesota private schools.

She studied piano with Joseph T. Hungate and organ with Clair Cecchi and Leo Holden. Her three years' work in theory included courses in harmony, counterpoint, ear training, keyboard, terminology, form and analysis. She also studied piano normal one year with Neva Swanson, and counts as extra curricular activities her associations with the conservatory orchestra, a cappella choir, and the musical union.

Before she arrived last month in Miss Madison had been out California way once three years ago. She seems favorably inclined toward Southern California: "People out here are friendly and helpful... more receptive to something different, willing to try new things... more adults like music... try it..."

Tennis and golf are her leisure activities. Miss Madison is a member of the Long Beach Women's Music Club and the American Guild of Organists, and is planning to join AAUW and the Philharmonic. Considering a teaching position in Hawaii, Miss Madison decided to stay in this country, "preferring not to get into a school system... wishing more of a career of her own... in the independence of a studio." Recently affiliated with the Jane Stanley Piano Studios, the

Song, Laughter and Gaiety at Yacht Club

By ALMA OVERHOLT

The lure of an island, be it South Seas or Catalina, set in an azure sea under a silvery moon is irresistible enchantment conjuring visions of palm fronds, exotic blossoms, luau, the throb of strummed instruments and song, laughter and gaiety, lovely maidens in graceful dances, frazzled straw hats and colorful leis tossed about one's neck in loving token of friendship. And just such was the scene that the Catalina Island Yacht Club had been transformed into for its biggest "shindig" of the year and fitting climax to what will probably go down in its history as its biggest and merriest yachting season, spearheaded by Comdr. Edmund Harrison and his lady Frances.

To make sure that everyone was in the proper mood for the festivities, Ed and Frances stood on the club's gangplank to receive members and guests. Frances tossed a lei around each one's neck and Ed jammed a pineapple hat upon the head, whether beautifully coiffed or bald, to complete the effect.

Assisting the commodore and his lady in the Herculean task of decorating and feeding of the multitude with tropical viands were Ed and Rose Delaney, Fred and Marge Furtch, Jack and Grace Cairns, Martin and June Pollard, Alice and Ed Foster, Margaret and Mel Noe, Martin and Gwen Krakeur, Katy and Wayne Harrison, Ollie and Vi Jensvold, Merle and Pauline Afflerbaugh, who by the way are the high man and wife team in the number of marlin caught so far this season. Hosting the cocktail party on the clubhouse deck preceding the luau were Staff Commodore Willard and Juanita Thurston, Gil and Judy Barberis, the Charles Hawks, the Raymond Posts, and the M. J. Mays. Dorothy Useler demonstrated a graceful dance from the Hawaiian Islands, accompanied by the Eddie Bush trio. Dorothy and husband, Frank, are new members of the Catalina Yacht Club and cruised over aboard their new yacht the Pancho. Staff Comdr. Dick and Susan Loyne arrived aboard their yacht the Phantom.

Yacht club President Hal and Betty Gartner had a sad story to tell of a marlin swordfish hooked and almost up to the boat to gaff when an unknown cruiser crossed their stern and cut the line. Witnesses of what breaks a sportsman's heart were their son Kenny and bride, Patricia, back from their honeymoon at Lake Tahoe. Just returned from a four-month tour of Europe is Jane Giddings Carmichael enjoying her old love, Avalon Bay, with her parents, Paul and Harriet Giddings, from the veranda of their island summer home. Holly House, known to every tourist as a landmark of Catalina Island, Jane has many interesting experiences to relate and instead of "kodaking," she sketched her way through Europe and brought her fascinating sketchbook to the yacht club party for her friends to enjoy. Jane says she would not trade Catalina for Capri and all the European Riviera and couldn't rush back fast enough to get in the tail-end of the summer at what is still her favorite spa.

Greeted after several years absence were Staff Comdr. Arthur Sanger and sister, Agnes Mondon, whose yacht, the Dreamer, in years gone by was the rendezvous for yachting folk from San Francisco to San Diego. Their more recent cruises are on terra firma via land yacht. Art had every one agog with a five-dollar gold piece he recently picked up in the Placerville country near Colfax. Agnes had kidded him that he should find a gold nugget if he looked hard enough when the toe of his shoe turned over the coin. It bears the date 1837 and has the 13 stars of our 13 first states.

Fred and Gerry Collinge were seen having fun at both the yacht and the Tuna Clubs, as was their beautiful young daughter Maureen. They are at the island aboard their new yacht, Hermosa. Milton and Ruth Cashey cruised over aboard their Cellito to join in the fun. The Harry Marshalls and daughter, Pat who have been away all summer arrived aboard their Grand Slam. Their guests aboard were the Paul Farmers.

At the Tuna Club there was an exciting party, tense with thrills of tales of sport fishing and records broken, hosted by Jonah and Helen Jones, Dr. George and Subelle Chuck, Mickey and Chili Jones, Harold and Kay Parks, Art and Martha Hall and Jim and Helen Wood. Jonah and Helen introduced their guest aboard and at the club, Herman Ridder. Ellis and Doetta Arkush are staying at Catalina aboard their yacht, Gosling, until late October to enjoy the sword-fishing. Their most recent guests aboard are Edgar and Dorothy Rowe of San Francisco. Ellis is being showered with honors for his feat of taking a 174-pound marlin on the incredibly gossamer three-six line.

Redford, Robert N. Rothenbach and John E. Roggeveen. Mrs. Yaisli, president of Ebell Juniors, will welcome guests. Presiding at the sterling silver punch bowls will be Mrs. Wilbur Lee Candy, president of Ebell Club; Mrs. Harold Larson Jr., past president of Ebell Juniors; Mrs. Rothenbach, adviser; Mrs. Redford, counselor; Mrs. Harold O. Gray, chairman of Junior Matrons; and Mrs. E. R. Ingles, Group I-T chairman. Assisting as hostesses will be the board of directors, Mmes. Carl Brooks, Wilbur Seils, Robert A. Delfs, Paul G. School Togs High in Style

It's fun to go to school in the kind of teen-age clothes you find available today. High style is the keynote — inexpensively priced and just right for your Junior figure.

To make life a lot pleasanter, many of the back-to-school outfits are all-washable. Corduroy jumpers, vests, skirts and dresses are classic soap-and-water numbers.

A "grown-up" suit now comes in cotton that looks like tweed, worsted, or men's suiting—and washes like a summer frock.

Blouses are blossoming in the synthetic fiber field, in acetate, orlon-nylon blends, and many other combinations. They all hand-wash easily, and need practically no ironing at very low heat.

The all-washable pleated skirt is here in an orlon blend.

Outmoded Ideas Defeat All Reducing Programs

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Even though you are not well informed about nutrition and eat in a hit-and-miss manner which cannot be called scientific, you will usually get a fair amount of the nutritional essentials if you eat a variety of foods.

Your health may not be as good as it could have been and you will probably age sooner than you need have done but you are not apt to be a victim of any deficiency diseases. However when you cut your food intake low as you do when dieting, lack of information about nutrition becomes downright dangerous. In a restricted diet you do not have the opportunity to stumble upon essential foods.

It is amazing how women cling to some of the worn out ideas of reducing. They leave sugar out of their coffee but eat gravy. They wouldn't touch a potato on a bet but load their salads with mayonnaise or consume fried foods. Judging by the letters I receive and the conversations I overhear in public places and at social gatherings, I cannot repeat too often the essential foods when reducing. Here they are again: At least a pint of skimmed milk or buttermilk.

At least one helping of lean meat or fish or fowl. Many of the best reducing diets prescribe two servings of meat daily.

One large glass of tomato or orange juice.

A baked potato frequently. Two green or yellow vegetables or one vegetable and a green salad.

Three pieces of whole wheat bread or the equivalent in cereal.

Some fresh fruit. At least 5 eggs a week.

THOSE TO AVOID

Cream. Candy and soda fountain mixtures and soda pop.

Rich desserts such as pastry or cake. Substitute fresh fruit.

Fried foods. Boil, bake, or broil meats. Boil, bake or poach your eggs.

Salad oils and dressings. Lemon juice, with a touch of onion or garlic can be used on salads.

Nuts and canapés, and between-meal snacks of all sorts. Eat fresh fruit, drink fruit juice or buttermilk between meals when you feel hungry.

Take smaller helpings and leave off seconds. Get up from the table feeling as though you could enjoy a little more. Never allow yourself to eat until you feel the least bit stuffed. With the few rules given today you can successfully reduce without counting calories.

However, if you like to keep track of the number of calories in your daily food intake, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 36, "Calorie Chart," to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Bridal Gowns Reflecting Current Fashion Trends

A wedding is more than the anticipation and the living of one day; it is a memory and a milestone to be cherished forever. Designers have created collections for fall and winter to sustain this memory.

Topflight bridal designers agree that the "real wedding dress" belongs in the life of every woman; that only once can she look that regally beautiful and she should not cheat herself of the opportunity.

Bridal fashions reveal the growing importance of nylon and the dominant importance of pure silk satin and lace. White and ivory remain the first favorites for first wedding gowns in all degrees of formality, but several designers stress the becoming individuality of blush pink, "old lace" and mauve rose.

Most modern brides want to look like the princess in a fairy tale but be strictly up-to-date about it, the designers find, so a clear picture of current fashion trends is reflected in the soft poetic outlines of every gown. Beautifully embellished bodices, the long torso line, masterfully manipulated polonaise drapery or puffed skirts, flounces, tiers, bustles, and accordion fan pleating were some of the trends spotlighting a galaxy of beauty.

Fabrics range from the most formal luxurious silk satins and taffetas to the most romantic combinations of diaphanous nylon net and tulle drifting over taffeta. Brocade effects were enhanced by the flattery of delicate imported laces appliqued over satin.

Whatever the fabric, regal lengths shown for formal bridal fashions with sweeping trains cascading to classic beauty.

Nostalgia as a portrait, these traditional gowns are lavishly skirted and crinolined. Magnificently simple lines are sometimes accented by a draped midriff, by hip panniers, or handbags, and front panelings frosted with ruffles. Sleeves vary from brief puffs to long buttoned-at-the-wrist lengths. Among the collections are equally flattering informal types of bridal gowns. Strapless or with the least possible sleeves, they also were created for the story book bride. Long gowns without trains bell out at the skirt in crisp bouffancy. A gown with a detachable train and brief jackets ranging from bolero to capelets is also shown.

Shower Problem

You are invited to several showers for a girl who is actually no more to you than a mere acquaintance, and you feel you cannot afford to buy her several shower presents plus a wedding present.

WRONG: Feel that since you are invited to the showers you must go and take a present to each one.

RIGHT: If you wish, refuse the shower invitations graciously. (Only close friends should be invited to showers.)

Visitors Find Mexico Now Dressing Up

MEXICO CITY—Don't pack that extra pair of blue jeans for your trip to Mexico, dear—better put in your fanciest cocktail dress instead.

This may be the dressiest winter in Mexico since Edwardian days. Henri de Chatillon, one of the city's flossiest dressmakers, unveiled his fall and winter ideas recently and you never saw such frou-frou.

Even if you don't like frou-frou, don't plan to dress too informally in Mexico. Jeans, shorts and a flowing shirt-tail are all right in a beach resort. But you'll be stared at if you wear slacks or shorts in the larger cities and towns.

The tourist commission recently warned its visitors about revealing their legs. It pointed out they won't be allowed in any historic churches for sight-seeing unless they are wearing skirts. Almost anything in cotton, as long as it has a skirt and something over the shoulders, is good for most places in the day time. A little something in light wool will see you through the cool evenings.

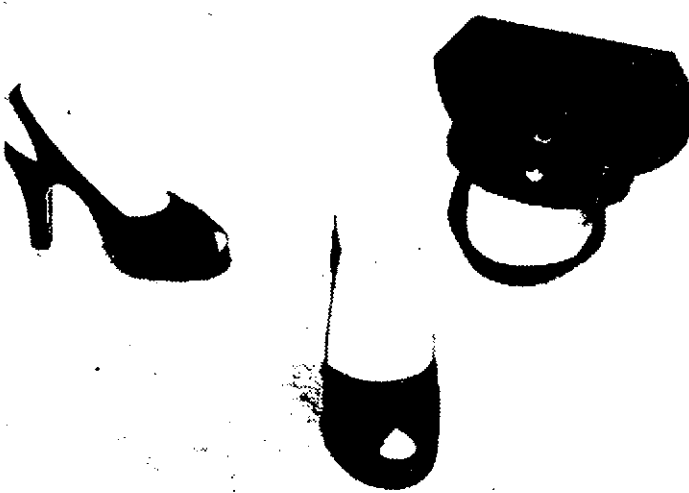

Henri is more French in his ideas than Mexican and his show was the outcome of his summer trip to Paris. But the other good designers here are showing the same trends, even though they may use simpler fabrics and more Mexican lines.

LONGER SKIRTS

Briefly, the trends are these: Skirts are longer; for some very formal evening clothes they are floor length. Necklines, unable to go any lower with propriety, are either stationary or higher by the diameter of a pore or two.

Everything which could be made of stiff fabrics is, and everything has pockets on the front of the hip, even evening dresses. Henri showed a distinct partiality for panels on the left front and right rear of skirts. Coats generally had standing collars and the front buttons close together.

Hats, always fancy in Mexico, were mostly velvet with feathers. Generally they were plastered on the side of the head. One with white feathers unfurled had a wing spread of 18 inches—that was the red velvet one. Another had the wings furled—white feathers on gray velvet. There was a gob's hat of black velvet with gold beads around the upturned rim.

SOFTLY CONTOURED—The revival of silk crepe and trend toward sheer woollens has had a distinct influence on shoe designing. This Quali-craft black suede has draped vamp and jet nailheads encircling the instep. Matching bag and sling pumps are sold at Leed's.

Celebration on Ruby Year for Day Nurseries

By LILIAN HANSLIP

When Long Beach was young, one working mother who had been taking her small child to work with her on her bicycle was overjoyed when a day nursery was opened in the old Associated Charities building at 728 American Ave. Her little girl was among the three children enrolled there.

From that small beginning the Long Beach Day Nursery has grown up—it now has three branches caring for 175 to 200 children of working mothers—and Thursday, Sept. 25, it observes its 40th birthday with an open house at the West Nursery, 1548 Chestnut Ave.

Feature of the occasion Thursday will be the cutting of the huge birthday cake by Mrs. Fred Bixby, Day Nursery founder, who still is a member of the board of directors. Refreshments will be served by other members of the board serving as hostesses. Mrs. Harold M. Hines is chairman of the committee in charge of the open house observance.

In the Daily Telegram of Nov. 4, 1912, this story appeared: "The Day Nursery of the Associated Charities opened for business this morning at 9 o'clock. It was stated that three children had been left there for the day."

One of the three women who brought little ones to the Day Nursery was greatly pleased with the opening of our institution," said Miss Alice Graydon, secretary, Associated Charities. She has been working for sometime and has been compelled to take her small child with her on her bicycle each morning.

It was Miss Graydon who saw the need for day care for children whose mothers had to leave the home to make a living for the family. She enlisted the support of Mrs. Bixby, who set the wheels in motion for establishment of a Day Nursery in part of the building occupied by the AC at 738 American Ave.

Children are eligible for care in the nursery if the child is supported solely by the mother; if the father is in the service and the mother is working; if one parent is working and the other is ill, or if economic conditions force both parents to work.

The activity is financed in part by the parents, who pay a percentage of the cost, based on ability to pay; partly by the Community Chest and partly by gifts. Besides cash donations these gifts are in wide variety, ranging from postcards to quilts.

Mrs. Greer Thompson is president of the board of directors. Mrs. Nell Loder is executive secretary of the three day nurseries: The East Long Beach Nursery at 2035 Spaulding St.; North Long Beach at 495 E. Plymouth St. and the host nursery at 1548 Chestnut Ave.

Reception for Englands

England, who have just returned from their honeymoon in Northern California and Oregon. The bride is the former Miss Gloria E. Kite, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Kite, 3317 Orange Ave. She is a graduate of Wilson High School. The bridegroom is from Eureka, Calif., and just finished serving in the U. S. Navy. The young couple will live in Long Beach.

New Fall Coats for Young and Old Younger Set

CAPE SLEEVE—This 28-inch Stewart silver blue mink has all the comfort of a cape with the deep cape sleeve treatment. Modeled by Frances Cowley, it is shown at Frank A. Hill & Son at 3316 E. Broadway.

SMART GIRL—The clever young girl will choose a warm fleece coat for fall and winter like this one in red at Frances for Children. Modeled by Donna Walker, the coat has interlining for extra warmth. Reglan sleeves and notched collar are style features as well as the double-breasted front.

Footwear Is Neat, Softer

Fashion has a correlated costume plan that will go from head to toe, on a junior this fall. Her general appearance will be neat and feminine, and this applies to her softly tailored suits and coats, her close head-hugging hats and her lighter, softer shoes.

As every young girl knows, each succeeding season has brought forth more and more interesting shoe styles on lower heels. Much has been said about the Cuban, the Louis and the Midway variations. This fall will be no exception to the rule, for the choice in lower heel heights is unusually great in color, fabric and silhouette.

Newest is the hooded heel. This heel is built on a wedge and covered to look like one piece with the back of the shoe.

CLASSIC LOAFERS

For casual wear, the loafer shoe of the year will be the white, or dark toned bucks on cushion crepe soles. Shoes will be smartly accented with highly-polished cobras in high-lustre black, deep red or blue green and these will go with the poodle and lush pile fabrics for fall, according to the National Shoe Institute.

Red as a bright contrast on navy and black shoes, on wedge heels, as tassel laces or smart whip-stitched accents is proof that two tones are better than one. Important are the two and sometimes three tones added as contrasting or harmonizing mud-guard trim.

In addition to the popular grey and beige flannel pumps, juniors will now also find new novelty flannel flats or tweed pumps with perhaps an applied kid design on the vamp.

GALA PUMPS

For dress up, black suede strapped sandals or black satin pumps are sparked with all-over gold design, gold kid heel and mudguard. Draped failles are dotted with flashing stones and little colored velvet scoop shells or touches of velvet on suede will attend many a gala evening event.

And for lounging, there will be checked corduroy flats, amusing gingham and terry cloth scuffs.

Suit Jackets Are Longer, Ending Just Above Hipline

Suits for fall, featuring a note of casual elegance, can be seen in a variety of silhouettes, ranging from the fur-trimmed fall and winter type of suit to the ultra lady-like Empire style.

For, this season, jackets are longer, ending just above or just at the mid-hip with slight padding, in some, providing gentle curve emphasis. Shoulders are a trifle wider than in past seasons.

New skirts give a slim effect but all are eased by gores, a soft wrap style or pleats. Skirt pleating effects include all-around accordion pleats, confined to each side of the skirt or low-placed box pleats.

Most exciting fall suit fashion news is the fall and winter suit. This style usually includes a skirt and jacket or brief coat top in a matching snug coating fabric. Many of these new, heavier suits, have elegant fur trims, that may be removable to make cleaning easier, like a collar, muff or SECOND SKIN—The revolutionary sarong girdle brings new freedom of movement with super tummy control. It's the criss-cross front plus the long back which gives an unbroken long line with nipped-in waist. At Kimberlin's Corset Shop.

Casual or Gay Knits at Hand

Knitted gloves and mitts, presented for fall and winter '52, are no longer relegated to sports occasions, but are now styled for both casual and dress-up wear.

New fashion textures are featured on many new knitted styles. And there are colorful details galore that include everything from cute sayings woven right into the mitts to decorative motifs of rhinestones and pearls on gloves.

One knitted pair of mitts, for example, has "Warm Heart" and "Cold Hands" woven into the back of each mitt with bright red hearts around the wrist. A pair of knitted gloves is ultra glamorous with metallic gold cuffs and glittering rows of rhinestones on the black back of each glove.

WINTER COMFORT—Some women cling to the closed toe and heel, especially for cooler weather. This pair is a good example of Foot Savers shown exclusively at Quality Boot Shop, 40 Pine Ave. Long soft lines with stitching or nailhead trim are sparked by bows or soft folds of leather. They come in brown, blue, black and red.

Crude Use of Language Deplored in Teen-Agers

By ANGELO PATRI

English is a beautiful language, rich, colorful, expressive, all that can be desired. There is no thought, however exalted, however harsh or bitter, however lovely, that cannot be put into clear, clean English.

School children, including high school students, take great pleasure in using slang, forbidden words and forms. It seems at times that the more their teachers tried to have them see the beauty of clean English speech, the more they enjoyed using slang, crude forms and even worse.

That is a habit of youth, carried from generation to generation, that has troubled teachers of English through the years. There is only one way to combat it and that is to keep teaching good English, keep putting the best written words before them, speaking in praise of fine English, using it in their hearing.

Many high school students dislike the English course and small blame to them, for too often the English courses begin and end with the history of English literature, dates and periods of this and that. Such information is drab, dead, dull, without interest to active, eager boys and girls. It seems to me that it would be far more valuable to such students if they were allowed to have the current reviews of books in their hands, read them, talk about the writers, their work and how they do it. Christopher Morley, our contemporary, seems to me far more important in the teaching of English than Beowulf.

Speech is the expression of the individual's self. "Speak, that I may know you," is veritable truth. The young person who has no words to express his pleasure beyond "gee," "some looker," "swell," "outa this world," indicates a poverty of mind that is pitiful. Likewise the one whose only expression for something he disapproves of is "lousy." That term is a fitting description of his language power, and as deplorable. The one who must fall back on words unfit for the ears of decent people closes the doors of such people against him. The unfortunate one who calls upon the Dictionary every other sentence, or sprinkles his brief thoughts with references to the nether region, is to be pitied and shunned.

The schools could do better than they do in this teaching of English. We could spare the history of English literature and devote the time and energy to a mastery of clear, clean, forceful English speech and writing and all of the time keep the teaching closer to the children's interests and needs.

And better patterns in everyday speech at home and abroad would go a long way to improve matters.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

TO JUDGE or not to judge might be a choice with many, but to judge is the daily profession of Chef of the Week Judge Frank C. Charvat. In this instance he is judging the merits of the noodles which are to go into his Turkey and Noodle Scallop. (Photo by Jasper Nutter.)

Barrister Takes Time to Judge Own Cooking

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

"To judge is to see clearly, to care for what is just and therefore to be impartial" . . . such is the thinking of Long Beach's youngest Municipal Court judge and the fifth in that local court.

Born in Omaha, Neb., that was home to Chef of the Week Judge Frank C. Charvat throughout his entire education including Creighton University from which he graduated with his AB and LLB degrees. It was there, too, that he set-up his first law office and had his first lesson in the "court of human relations."

Two clients, a man of 20 and a woman of 60, wanted a will drawn up. He, thinking it was mother and son, began questioning her as to her wishes. Well . . . she was the "little woman" and he, it was he who was "willing" the dough. He's still learning these lessons from daily "small quarrels" court assignments over which he now presides.

His 15-year residence in Long Beach has been consistently and lawfully upward. From private practice he became deputy city attorney, a position which he held for seven years. In 1948 he was appointed Superior Court Commissioner, and for three years handled "all orders to show cause."

Terrifically warm of heart he is very sensitive to the feelings of the "underdog." An inveterate reader, he's fascinated by any book which delves into the field of law, but indulges in biographies and history for relaxation. His love of books is so potent, in fact, that a shopping tour for a pair of shoes might instead turn into the purchase of a book, were he not duly chaperoned. As to his lighter side, he spent several summers as acting manager of a chautauqua circuit and campaigning for his alma mater's endowment fund.

While the "judge" has little time for cooking, he is a mighty good judge of foods and he likes, especially well, this turkey noodle scallop. Here's how he puts it together:

TURKEY AND NOODLE SCALLOP

- 1 (6 oz.) package noodles
- 1 1/2 cups diced cooked turkey
- 2 cups gravy
- 1/2 cups buttered crumbs

Boil noodles until tender in salted water. Drain. Arrange alternate layers of noodles, turkey and sauce in greased baking dish. Cover with buttered crumbs and bake in moderate oven (350° F.) until sauce starts to bubble through the layer of crumbs on top, about 20 minutes. If dish is prepared in advance of final baking, more time should be allowed for heating through. Serves 4 to 6.

Home After Honeymoon

After a honeymoon trip to Catalina Island the Robersons are now at home at 4043 E. Attending the bride were Fourth St.

Color Accents Foundations

Foundation garments are taking to color this fall and come ready to blend or contrast directly with fashions worn above.

In following the trends set by outer apparel, foundations are also offering extra high waistlines for molded midriff fashions and are paying special attention, in many instances, to hipline molding in order to provide a smoother curve for new torso-clinging middies. There are also an increasing number of foundation designs available that offer a maximum of weight.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilford N. Brox, 501 Santiago Ave., announce the engagement of their daughter, Betty Ann, to Joseph W. Page Jr., son of Mrs. Gene Page, 130 Syracuse Walk.

Both the bride-elect and her fiancé are graduates of Wilson High School, LBCC and the University of California at Berkeley. While attending LBCC the bride-elect was a member of Entre Nous, and her fiancé was affiliated with Junior Exchange. At UC he was a member of Delta Sigma Phi.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Candlelight vows exchanged Aug. 30 at the Southwest Church of Christ, Los Angeles united in marriage Miss Margaret Adeline Wright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold L. Wright of Downey, and Ben York Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben York of Pleasanton. In the presence of three hundred guests, the double ring ceremony was performed by Frank Hanna of the Church of Christ in Ventura.

Given in marriage by her father, minister of Downey Imperial Church of Christ, the bride wore a gown of Chantilly lace designed with pointed neckline, a yoke of illusion net, and a white satin cathedral train. Her illusion veil was caught by an orange blossom tiara. The bouquet carried by the bride was composed of two dozen Talsman roses centered by a yellow-throated white orchid.

Maid of honor was Miss Midge Hobson of Pepperdine College. Bridesmaids included Miss Beverly Bartlett of Downey; Miss Barbara York, sister of the bridegroom.

Best man was Frank King of Shasta, college friend from UC at Davis. Ushers were Frank Wilkin, Griffin Pitts, Eugene Stowers and Jack Wright, brother of the bride, all from Downey, and Merritt Adamson of Los Angeles. Serving as ring bearer was Ronald Roy Voorhees of Downey.

Middies Top Blouse News This Season

The middy style has captured the blouse fashion scene for fall and appears true to traditional form with torso-hugging lines, a V-neck sometimes accented by a jaunty bow and large black collar.

However, in many instances, new fashion notes have been introduced to accentuate the close-fitting middy line and give it a fresh for '52 outlook. Necklines appear in stand-away cuff designs called "harnesses." Turtle necks, usually knit for a sweater effect, are either folded over to resemble a double collar or stand straight up around the neck. They may be very low or exaggeratedly high.

TAPERED SLEEVES

Sleeves, for new middy blouses, are often wide at the top then tapered at the wrist, and appear with and without cuffs. Push-up sleeves, that sometimes extend well below the wrist when pulled down, are also popular for new middy creations.

Also new for fall blouses are the classic shirts with a reminiscent air of grandpa's day about them.

LIKE GRANDPA'S

Typical example of the new "grandpa" shirt has long French cuffed sleeves, a tucked bosom and buttoned collarband neckline. It appears in pure silk that can be worn for both casual or dress-up occasions.

The Gibson Girl blouse, with its full-blown sleeves and high, frilly neckline, is expected to retain its popularity in fall blouse fashions, as are classic boy shirts with trimly tailored button-down collars, and pure silk printed blouses that often accompany costume dresses or suits.

Jerseys, cottons in a wide variety of weaves, pure silks and the many new science-devised fabrics are all predicted to be popular for fall blouses, as are an abundance of sporty knit trims.

TOWN SUIT—Richly severe, this suit needs only a soft scarf and pin to make it a complete town costume through the months to come. It is shown at Schick's.

Shape, Fabric and Purpose Three Keys for Fashions

Adele Simpson says: "Shape, fabric and purpose are the three fundamental fashion principles. They must be the designer's guide. Fashion for fashion's sake is apt to be wasted effort." The Simpson shape this fall is slender, with a soft tilt to shoulders and neckline. Often the hem is eye-catching. Sometimes there is a wrap-around of color at the midriff.

Fabric, to Adele Simpson, is a miracle of lightness, even when it looks wintry. Textures range from downy brushed zibeline coatings and town tweeds to chiffon wools—from slipper satin and barathas to petal weight silk taffetas, peau d'ange and tulle.

Purpose, as expressed in the Simpson collection, gives us the "winter suit." (It was Mrs. Simpson who introduced the "year-round suit" a couple of years ago.) It is lightweight and nonbulky but warm and snug. And it is made of sleek suitings and marvelously textured city tweeds. A notable one is a sophisticated black sparkle tweed with a "boulevardier" air.

DAYTIME COSTUME

Another example of purpose in the Simpson lexicon is the two or three-piece daytime costume. It combines a dress and co-ordinated short coat, or a dress and jacket, or blouse, jacket and skirt that can double as a dress. Mrs. Simpson calls the new contour of her tailored suits and dresses the English drape. The jacket is a narrow and only slightly body-fitting, and the skirt is narrow but easy. Many of these suits have pretty silk blouses of colored taffeta.

The Simpson evening costume must always have some place to go. With her eye on the chic woman's social calendar, Mrs. Simpson propounds a slenderly curvaceous dinner-and-dance suit in pure silk brocade the color of emeralds, sapphires, rubies or jet; a theater coat dress of the same fabric; stay-at-home costumes with full brocade or satin skirts and clinging silk jersey V-necked tops coupled by wide gold kid belts, and a dark, but not black, cocktail dress that looks covered up or come-lither.

For big evenings, Mrs. Simpson offers two choices: a dramatic sheath of silk brocade or lace (including the new fur lace) with a great chou of taffeta trailing out at one side, or a bouffant ball gown of instep or floor length in silk satin and net.

For the most part, trimming is notable by its absence in the Simpson collection. But there are gay lingerie touches, especially cancan ruffles, peep-shows of colored tulle ruffles under full puffed hems of shaped silk dresses.

Knit Dresses Gain Favor

Keep your eyes on the knit dresses this season, for it's a bifocal story. Knit costumes are tweedy skirts with sweater-like blouses, they're easy-to-don coat-dress fashions or cocktail dresses with matching jackets.

Knit dresses are farsighted fashions that span summer-to-fall wardrobing. The knit dress, that soldier of fashion, which travels with all the ease of a world traveler, is being shown in nonsag styles. Some dresses, with the two-piece look, are actually fashioned like any cloth dress, cut sewn for that trim, but never tight line.

A new and particularly versatile fashion is the wool chenille sheath with its own jeweled Spencer. Both for street and cocktail wear (or the Spencer can be worn alone as a cotton dress coverup), this outfit imparts the slender, slip-of-a-dress look. It is a year rounder in fashion.

As the back to college season begins it becomes apparent that knit dresses are increasingly important.

Recite Vows in Garden Grove

A reception honoring the new Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Johnson, of Garden Grove whose marriage was solemnized last week in rites read by the Rev. T. Eugene Coffin of the Alamos Friends church, was held Sunday, in the home of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Johnson, Garden Grove.

Mrs. Johnson, the former Thelma Lee Wiley, is the daughter of James Wiley of Orange and Mrs. Marguerite Wiley of Santa Ana. Serving her sister as maid of honor was Miss Alma Wiley and best man was Donald Hartman of Santa Ana.

Following a short wedding trip to Salt Lake City, the couple are now at home at 32132 Garden Grove Blvd. Both young persons are graduates of Garden Grove High School.

New Lingerie Is Designed With Torso-Hugging Trend

The middy silhouette makes fashion news for lingerie and sleepwear, this fall, just as it does for new outer fashions. Slips, petticoats and gowns are all keynoted by this torso-hugging trend that places emphasis on dramatic lines rather than lavish detailing.

Newest slips and petticoats are designed to complement the clothes above. Snug-fitting middy lines, to just below the hips, fall into softly full skirts that may have feminine gores, godets or be cut in a circular manner to achieve this effect. In some instances the hemlines of slips and petticoats are stiffened to provide crisp stand-out beneath wider skirted fashions above.

Fabrics for new season slips and petticoats include everything from tissue taffeta rustling tulle to combinations of nylon tricot and woven nylon.

SIMPLICITY IS KEY

It's the flattering simplicity of line that counts in gowns featured for fall. Newest are the dress-length gowns, offered in a variety of the same waistlines as those being shown for daytime clothes. New low waists, high rising Empire waists and gentle, natural waistlines are all on hand.

Some of the dress-length gowns are even featured in fitted styles that are usually fashioned of gaily printed flannelette, while perky push-up sleeves, featured with warmer fabric gowns like brushed rayon and flannelette, also offer an exciting new fashion touch.

The subtle touches of trim, on both dress and floor-length gowns, can be seen in delicate ruffings of shirred lace, embroidered nylon sheer and self-fabric details.

Pajamas, designed to look exactly like sportswear, are the newest innovations for fall. These might have bright plaid shirt-like tops or snug-fitting cardigan tops. Some of the trousers have tapered legs.

Typical example of how pa-mas follow the pattern of active life fashions is a bright red pajama set with a real ski print trim on the top which is styled to resemble a parka. The set is also accompanied by a pointed night cap in a print matching that of the top.

More pajama fashion news appears in the many three-piece sets available. These include pajamas that come with a hip-length flared coat or a pert duster that might be snugly quilted or in the same fabric as the pajamas beneath.

Other pajamas, offered for the new season, come with double duty tops that can be worn as blouses. One instance of this style has a flannelette man-tailored hunting shirt in a bold plaid. And yet another has a top of broadcloth, styled just like a man's shirt complete with button-down collar and cuffs.

Fabrics, predicted to be popular for fall lingerie, include nylon tricot, nylon satin and crepe, cotton in a variety of light and heavyweight weaves, and rayon challis in both demure and bold splashy prints.

THE FORMER Miss Dorothy Rose Vivirito, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Vivirito, 3230 Oregon Ave., became the bride of Thomas Joseph Kilcoyne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kilcoyne of Downey, in Holy Innocents Catholic Church Sept. 1 at 7:30 p. m. The bride, a graduate of Wilson High School and LBCC, was affiliated with Entre Nous and Alpha Delta Chi. The bridegroom was graduated from Compton High School and LBCC. The young couple honeymooned at Lake Arrowhead and are at home at 5545 Orange Ave.

'Note' From Korean Runs 40 Feet Long

By JANE LINDEMUTH

When Seaman Pat Kelley writes home to the missus, he does it up right! Pretty Mrs. Kelley, the former Jean King of Garden Grove, has received what is reputed to be the longest personal letter ever written. It's 40 feet long.

After reading the 28,158 words in the massive letter, Kelley's Jeanie should be pretty well up to date on her husband's activities. Kelley estimates he hit the typewriter keys 140,000 times during the month it took to finish the epistle. He figures that his letter would have measured 180 feet in length.

The reason for the month-long missive was explained by Jeanie. "I had the opportunity to go with my family on a month's vacation through 16 different states. Knowing that Pat would have a hard time keeping up with me with his usual letter-a-day, I told him that I'd continue to write once each 24 hours—and he promised, instead of mailing letters to each of the various states, that he'd have a long letter awaiting me on my return home."

"When he returned, I was the first to rummage through the mail. And there was nothing for me—except one bulging manila envelope like servicemen's families received all the time with printed matter from the War Department. But when I opened it, Jeanie's eyes sparkled, 'well—Pat had kept his promise.'"

Kelley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Pat Kelley, Santa Ana, is attached to the Administrative Department of Patrol Squadron No. 731 now serving in the Far East.

Jeanie has no big thrill in store Monday. That's the date of the Kelley's first wedding anniversary and to celebrate the occasion, Pat will telephone Jeanie from Hiroshima, Japan.

But the biggest thrill of all will be the day when Pat comes home—now set tentatively for Dec. 15.

GAG BECOMES FAD

Hats of Iron for Women' No Joke—It's a Business

By FRANCES TUCKER

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M.—(AP) Bob Hagy makes women's hats that husbands ought to like too, because they wear like iron. They should. They are iron.

This business or iron hats started as a joke and turned into a thriving business.

In 1950 Hagy told Miss Madalynne Kelly, a friend, he was going to make her an iron hat for Christmas. He did. And she, ever willing to go along with a gag, wore it to a cocktail party.

Well, cocktail parties being what they are and women being what they are — every woman at that party wanted an iron hat. So Bob was in business. Overnight he was a designer of women's hats.

The 52-year-old Hagy is an ornamental iron designer by vocation, employed by the Gilbert Iron Works in Albuquerque.

His boss, Walter B. Gilbert, helped him design that first hat for Miss Kelly, picking out dainty flowers and leaves for it. The first one was a coronet type. Now Hagy makes almost any style — beanies, turbans, bridal hats, hats with iron feathers — anything a woman could imagine.

WEIGH LITTLE

Although iron, the hats are lighter than most women's hats. The daintiest one, which consists of small iron bands decorated with wrought iron flowers, weighs only one ounce, the heaviest model Hagy makes — a latticed coronet type — weighs four ounces.

One girl in Brooklyn asked him to design a helmet-type hat for her. Movie actress Greer Garson wanted one with a Celtic touch, because she is Celtic on her mother's side, and another with a Nordic tinge, because her Garson ancestors were in one of the waves of the Viking invasion.

Iron hats are no more expensive than most women's hats, and not nearly so costly as other originals. The price for a Hagy-hammered hat usually runs from $7.50 to $12.50. In addition to being relatively cheap, the iron hats are practical. They can easily be changed to go with any costume by wrapping the iron bands with any shade of ribbon, leaving only the flowers or leaves the original color. Or they can be painted any shade desired — the best grade of automobile paint is used for that.

To make the hats, Hagy uses a very thin sheet of iron. Then he starts hammering away. Some of his hats have more than 300 hammer strokes.

MINK ELEGANCE—Sacony's banian-weight flannel suit is elegant enough for the finest furs. The jacket is delicately embroidered in fleur-de-lis pattern and detailed with faille lapels and pockets. The skirt is a slim tube of solid color. Many women will wear such fine suits without blouses, buttoned high and set off with a handsome jewel or fluff of silk at the neckline. All Try for 'Siren' Look in Film

By WAYNE CLARK

Hollywood hears much talk, and most of it sensible, about how to acquire the new "Siren Look" this fall. Probably no community has so many women who are acknowledged authorities on the matter. And probably no group of authorities have ever agreed so entirely on anything. To look like a siren, say the leading sirens of Hollywood, you must do three things. First, you must insist in fashions with an uncluttered silhouette. Second, you must dress simply but with definite elegance. Third, you must study and wear the most romantic of accessories. These are the rules, and all the knowing Hollywood stars who make them, hastily add that any woman can use them. For today a siren isn't a determined heart-breaker who is born once a generation — rather she's a woman with an approach to fashion that flatters everyone she knows.

Ariene Dahl believes that every woman who goes out to dinner should appear at the table looking like a siren. Here's what she does when she has just a half hour between leaving her studio and appearing for her date. She bathes and makes up in fifteen minutes, and slips into a simple black sheath dress that flares suddenly at the knees. Then she clips on a single red rose with a long diamond pin, and winds a black net mantilla over her hair. The rose—the black mantilla—the slim dress—these easy things add up to siren.

Betty Hutton loves nothing more than changing from the gay hoyden to the languorous blonde siren. At formal parties she dresses to stress her sophisticated beauty. White brocade and white moire are her favorite gala gown fabrics, and with them she wears her magnificent diamond choker and white furs.

Dorothy Lamour is nearly everyone's notion of the born siren, and so it comes as a surprise to most that Dorothy herself says she works hard to keep her siren look. Lace, she has found, is one of the key fabrics of the siren. Dorothy always has two lace dinner gowns — one in black and another in red. She also has a collection of lace stoles and mantillas that she wears over her head or across her shoulders with a sword pin to hold them in place.

Soft Material Seen in Suits

Suits look like suits again in the new fall collection of California designers. And not so much, as in the past few seasons, like dresses. Lines remain soft and feminine, not mannish but more tailored. Woolen and worsted fabrics, used in wide variety, add to the trim, true suit look.

In fabrics, the trend is toward a softer hand in materials, which may look thick or thin but will almost invariably feel light in weight. Flannels are shown in new dyes, such as blues, reds, greens, purples, browns and even black, in addition to the light and Oxford grays so well liked this spring.

There is a new shagreen woven without the usual fleck of white, and nubby and spongy weaves, notably in light weight suiting tweeds. Jersey is popular in new versions like novelty checks, stripes, plaids and heathers for travel costumes of harmonizing coat and suit.

California designers approve jackets from 25 to 26 inches in length, soft shoulders gently padded, straight skirts with pleat or center vent in the back hemline, and slender line pleated skirts.

Necklines tend to go higher than last season, whether finished with brief shawl collar, a novelty rever and collar treatment, or a built-up neckline with no collar at all. Four, five and six-button closings are frequent.

Hipline stiffening has been minimized greatly and is often left out altogether, although the gently rounded hipline is still sponsored.

Right Selection of Cosmetics Important for New Fashions

New fashions for fall can present an incomplete, even a jarring inharmonious picture, if the cosmetics worn with them have not been selected as carefully as the clothes themselves. This means that make-up shades should be those originated especially to blend with the new season's colors.

Since foundations, to be most effective, should be selected to enhance only natural complexion coloring, it is the lipstick that will do the biggest job of offering a good fashion, as well as a self-flattering contrast to the costume.

Here are a few suggestions of lipstick shades to choose for contrasting, or blending with new fall fashion colors.

Fashion's new deep shades in the blue, green, or grey family all call for a clear blue-red lipstick color. Dark reds, medium blues, blue green and the many golden browns, on hand this season, will be effective with a dark red lipstick.

Yellows, orange-reds and browns in costume colors usually call for a coral lipstick shade, while the bright reds, mustard tones, greens and russet shades might be contrasted with a clear orange-red lipstick.

A true red lipstick could be selected for teaming with dark reds, blue, dark greys, beige and brown costumes. And a rosy blue lipstick could be used

Men's Shoes Follow New Casual Mode

The comfortable and "natural" outlook featured in men's clothing new for fall will also be reflected in the shoes presented for this season.

According to the National Shoe Institute, shoes to correlate will be in richer, brighter and lighter tones of leather with the styling following the same restrained, trim trend of new fall suits.

Even the grained leathers are finer in detail than the previously popular bold Scotch grains. In addition to black, American Burgundy, Cherry-tones, Club and Cedar Brown, Admiral Blue and British Tan will be good colors for smooth leathers.

ADMIRAL BLUE

Brushed leather shoes are coming more and more into their own for wear with suits, as well as the loafer styles and Admiral Blue is predicted by the Institute, to be the leading shade.

Reptile trims will be seen in all styles. Monk strap military type shoes are expected to be popular with the younger men and campus crowds, will be wearing white buck shoes with red rubber soles.

Slip-ons, laceless oxfords, U-wings, tobacco pouch and tassels moccasin are some of the terms now being used in the men's fashion field. And the demand for lighter weight, lighter looking, more comfortable shoes, claims the National Shoe Institute, is growing steadily.

LACELESS OXFORDS

The slip-on shoe has been associated with the casual as the elasticized finger gore first appeared in this type of shoe. Then came the new version which incorporated all the advantages of this gored shoe, combined with the smart style features of a town and business shoe, the laceless oxford.

U wings refer to conservative U shaped lines on the vamp of the shoe which is usually found in a street style. The tobacco pouch has stitching around the vamp and heel similar to its namesake, while the tasseled moccasin is the restyled classic Norwegian moccasin with an added tassels lace. This shoe is being accepted more and more for suit wear along with leisure wear and is also featured in black patent for formal evening dress.

For Cat Nappers

Unique new inflatable pillows that fit snugly around the neck are now available for convalescents, travelers, for reading in bed, riding on a bus, boat, train, plane or auto and just catnapping at home. Made of flexible plastic embossed with a soft taffeta texture, they can be folded to purse-carrying size.

FORMAL CINCH BRA—Warner's Merry Widow cinch bra is ideal for the increasingly popular full-skirted formal evening gowns. It moulds the bosom and helps to create a well-defined waistline. Available at Bufiles' Foundations Department.

Beads Twinkle With Texture

Texture for texture, color for color and line for line, this is the jewelry story for fall.

The softened textures of fabrics featured for the new season, for example, can now be dressed up with jewelry that also has a textured appearance. Typical of the textures are grooved beads and filigreed and hammered surfaces.

Providing a suitable accent for the rich colors seen everywhere in the fall fashion picture are the many blue, topaz, bright sapphire and gold shades available in jewelry.

High lighting the color picture is the return of black jewelry, either alone or in combination with colored beads, to offset the many all black and touched with black fall costumes. Jet beads and gleaming smooth beads will be on hand, sometimes dramatically alone, often coupled with tiny rhinestones, faceted gold beads or rich looking baroque pearls.

For fashion's newest silhouettes there are bracelets galore to emphasize a pushed-up sleeve and elaborate bib necklines to dramatize lowered necklines.

'Little Black Dress' Revived for Autumn

The "little black dress" is with us again. Another generation saw every wardrobe holding one good black dress—crepe, silk or fine wool—ready for nearly any occasion, excepting of course the formal.

Jane Derby, who has won many fashion awards, revived crepe de chine two years ago and this year she chose silk crepe both softly tailored and finely pleated into a slender, elegant column of grace. The Derby design shown here is a Provocative is just the right adjective for this or any other Ceil Chapman gown. Sometimes she takes silk crepe or jersey and drapes it in flat horizontal folds, sweater-tight from neck to hem. Here she

Hats Move Back on Head

American milliners have endorsed the back-on-the-head pose, in addition to the profile look, in hats.

The youthful angle of the hat worn well back on the head was introduced in the spring by Dior with his well-known little cap with back bow treatment. There are many variations of the theme this fall, with the majority of milliners sponsoring the hat that sits from one to two inches back of the hairline.

Some designers like a snug cap with corded edge. Others offer a hat with more substance, high lighting wide, turned back cuffs and dramatic back bows and loops.

Even in profile silhouettes the pushed back look is popular. In profile turbans, for instance, the interest is scattered in three spots — at the front because of the back pose, at the side through draping, uses tissue faille, simply and softly detailed with a nylon net yoke. The skirt is shirred and draped at the center.

Simple feminine elegance characterizes all of Mollie Parris' work. She uses and needs a minimum of trimming. This one is in pure silk crepe. Long slim sleeves are continued to form the exciting low neckline piped in black velvet. The skirt is simply cut and softly pleated. All models wear jewelry by La Tausca and hats by Mr. John.

More Ease for Leisure Men's Wear

More and more the shackles of outmoded custom are being removed from the clothes men wear. Comfort, convenience and practicality are now the important points to be considered when planning wardrobes for fall. Fresh colors and patterns are also in increased demand.

All of this is especially true in and patterns leading the way to sportswear, with new fabrics a more comfortable leisure-time. Last year's Tattersall check vests, though still most popular, are now appearing in sporting figure challis, all silk repps and with suede fronts.

Sport jackets, a classic for leisure wear this year, emphasize improved tailoring, new fabrics combining wool with rabbit's hair, alpaca or other good "mixers." Checks, both subdued and bold, plaids and bold patterns are among the leaders, all featuring richer color treatments.

For the man who prefers to stand in the front rank of fashion, there is the belted jacket, or Norfolk jacket. This English squire style, once so popular here in America, seems to be once more on the ascendancy.

Outerwear, too, is on the upsurge with the variety of fabrics and styles attending new interest. Man-made fibers in tandem with naturals can be regulated to meet any specific need desired. The addition of water repellency and zip-in lining added to the popularity increase by permitting use in almost all kinds of weather.

Leading the way is the storm, or stadium coat, with its informal good looks and down-to-earth practicality. These are found in a variety of fabrics from smooth gabardine to nubby wools, waist length jackets and surcoats, holding leading roles, also offer wide choices. One new model, in fact, provides a removable fur collar for change with the weather.

With this wide selection available, there should be no difficulty this year in choosing leisure and sports wear. Comfort and color, convenience and practicality are almost guaranteed.

and at the back because of the new depth.

Designers are placing emphasis on a deep hat, no matter what its pose. Brimless caps and shells are regarded as flattering and youthful. Big, soft, face-shadowing hats, and many swaggy clothes divide fashion favor with small styles.

Some glorified casuals in felt have rippled softness. In these the deep crown is the newest look, in combination with generous brims or in pouch bag crowns. Manipulation of the felt for these hats is typical of the trend toward the draped shape. It is used constantly in the fall hats and often gives a turban look.

Leather Shaping Trend in Fall Shoe Collection

This season the material of women's shoes, fine leather, has a brand new importance in shaping design trends. New aniline dyes—like a fine coating of wax on wood allowing the grain to show through—preserve the natural character of the leather and create soft and glowing lines.

Like the great "booties" of Italy and France, American shoe designers depend on textured leathers for elegant shoes, rather than trimming. The pump remains the ranking silhouette for fall, but it's a new, slender pump on a slim, delicate heel. Draping, pleating, contrasting leather underlays, punchings and careful piping emphasize the silhouette and give the sleek, lady-like touch to shoes that go so well with soft dressmaker detailing of fall ready-to-wear. We like the look of leather manipulated like fabric in a black glazed kidskin pump with two semi-circular collars of finely stitched kid.

A smart continental importation is the banded look in street shoes and for after-five. Two suede leather bands, secured by a slender sling around the heel for good fit, hug the forepart of the foot in a low covered heel shoe—proof that pretty shoes are now obtainable on walking height heels. For more formal wear, we like the sling black shoe on a very high "skinny" heel. A narrow scalloped band curves high over the instep from quarter to shank, and another secures the foot over the vamp leaving a wide open toe area. Cutouts underlaid with contrasting leather are "built-in" decoration.

The shoes that go with softly tailored tweed suits this fall have a complementary elegance. One medium tapered heel in polished Benedictine calfskin has a low V-throat with leather string bow placed slightly above the throat line, forming a vamp cutout.

The old heavy type spectator has given way to a slim suit shoe, in tooled leather, whose tapered wall toe is echoed in a square throat line and shaved leather rectangular heel. Poised on a slim, flexible leather sole, it's unadorned and striking in ruby red.

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

It is uncomfortable to be sick but I think we sometimes forget how expensive it is. Doctor bills, hospital bills, nursing bills, and just bills for medicine, can knock the poor old budget into bits.

The total is staggering. If you add to that the money lost while away from work, and those hidden losses which come from doing a poor quality of work and from not expanding your career as you would have done had you been really vibrantly well.

However, the saddest loss is not financial but a loss of values in daily life. It is very difficult to be gay, to be tolerant, understanding, gracious, or enthusiastic, when one is a victim of a lowered state of health. You just do not have the energy to do many things for others you would have done had you felt differently physically.

More and more we are discovering that many diseases have their foundation in years of unhygienic living, and that chronic minor troubles and fatigue come from the same cause. The rules of health are so simple that we are apt to forget them so long as we feel reasonably well. Yet these daily tokens to vibrant living add up to such a big and important total.

Under Par? Vitality Loss Certain Toll

Good nutrition, some exercise — outdoor and mat exercises fitted to your physical ability — enough sleep. Have some times for relaxation; short rest periods during the day to break the feeling of rush and hurry and pressure.

Strive for happy mental attitudes and make a real effort to break the worry habit and live in a more relaxed way.

Good posture and correct weight should be top requirements because of the tremendous effect on health.

Simple, aren't they? Why not take them seriously?

If you would like to have my leaflet No. 61, "Watchwords of Science for Youth After 40," send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Josephine Lowman in care of the Press-Telegram.

Higher Heels Are Featured in New York

NEW YORK—The new shoe silhouette for fall and winter as seen here, is high cut, combined with instep and heel interest. It's a silhouette expressed in slender, lady-like elegance, the shoe poised in a narrow, delicate, needle-like heel.

The T-strap is newly important, newly flattering to the foot. It's done in suede, black velvet, bronze kid and the gold-tooled Florentine leathers that are inspired by the Italian Renaissance.

New, too, is the high-cut, openback shoe in many different versions. It's coupled with closed toe, and shown in sandals and slings in black suede or lace.

The soft, unlined shoe is big this year. This is the shoe that's glove-soft, light and airy on the foot, totally lacking in lining or stiffening. It's poised on the new narrow heel or on the handsome Louis heel in the regular or baby height.

The band sandal and the stripping sandal are both good this fall. Toe openings permit all five toes to be seen, and sometimes this wide opening is paired with the new T-strap.

Black leads off the color list, of course, but it's followed by the blond to brown tones and by red, seen importantly in ready-to-wear for fall and winter.

Hand-loomed — From the fall separates collection at Jo-Kaye's comes this new fall ensemble in hand-loomed zephyr yarn top with white wool fringe and jet brilliants. Contoured skirt is English flannel. Carnation pink, champagne or black, all with jet.

MINIATURE WORKMAN—Rugged denim "workclothes" just like the grownup men they admire so much are now on the market at Leff's Baby Shop. The co-ordinated clothes are considered safe, sensible and educational by many parents. They also look neat, trim and authentic.

FALL COATS DESIGNED TO FLATTER EVERYONE

Coats, for fall, are designed to flatter every figure and every way of living. Silhouettes are newly subdued with extra fashion excitement centered at the sleeves and necklines. And textured fabrics have been softened and refined to create a truly lady-like air.

Most newsworthy, perhaps, of the coats created for the new season, is the tulip silhouette. This features fullness, achieved by pleats or gores, which starts below the hipline. It is particularly effective, when its easy fitting lines are topped by a circlet of fur at the neckline.

The barrel, or convex silhouette, is another coat type featured for fall wear. Narrow at the shoulders, this coat gradually flares out and then tapers to a close hugging line by the time it reaches the hemline.

Also expected to be among the top coat favorites for fall are fitted styles that may either take shape as snug, slim wraps or effect great femininity with a nipped-in waist and wide, flaring skirt.

The wandering waistline so popular in the fall '52 fashion picture is represented in coats in a variety of flattering ways. Foremost of these is the Martingale belt which, when placed below the waistline of a coat back, achieves a middy outlook, and when placed high above the waistline of the coat back, takes its cue from Paris designs.

Shoulders, in many instances, are wider than those offered in past years. They may drop into a full-blown sleeve tapered and simple at the wrist, or ease into a gentle bloused sleeve accented by a trim little turn back cuff at the wrist. Other sleeves bell out from the elbow. Some offer a flared cape effect, either at the wrist or just above. And others nip in, then flare out with a brief cuff treatment.

Collars are completely nonexistent or dramatically large in size. Typical of the collarless neckline is the high-but-toned cardigan effect, while popular for over-size collars are wide shoulder-to-shoulder mantle collars, which in many instances provide major style appeal for the entire coat.

FALL ELEGANCE

Details on the simple, yet elegant styles presented for fall add to the femininity of the coats. Fringes, in self colors, are used to outline collars, cuffs and closings.

Fur trims, often removable, are used generously, sometimes as huge cuffs which are the outstanding eye-compelling feature of the coat. Both long and short hair fur trims may also be seen as little girl collars, long, slim shawl collars or short shawl collars and as neckline circlets.

Exciting coat fabrics, predicted to be popular for fall, are gentled, brushed, poodle cloths, fabrics softened with fur hairs, color mixture tweeds, alpaca piles that give fur-like effects, and cashmeres, camel's hair and precious vicuna.

Coat colors are expected to include the entire family of green, ranging from bright Kelly shades to olive shades and deep bronzes; reds will cover the shade gamut from red-red to heady wine tones; browns will include the palest of beiges to the rich earthy tones, and black, used either as an all-over motif, or in combination with other colors, as is the case for many of the new tweeds.

Both the high-waisted look seen in women's fashions and the low-waisted effects underlined through middy styles are translated into little girls' back-to-school clothes. The very short spencer jacket combines prettily with high-waisted and princess-line dresses.

Then there are all the reversible fashions, weskits that are a solid color on one side and a plaid or check on the other; the same for skirts which may be worn either side out.

It resembles tweeds. It looks like flannel. And, in plaids or checks, you might think you see a woven wool fabric.

Newest, perhaps, are dresses, jumpers and even suits for little boys in Flannel-Roy, which looks like gray flannel yet is actually sturdy corduroy. This is a fabric that many mothers will want to see, since it combines warmth with the easy-to-care-for practicality of corduroy which is washable.

And another attractive feature is price. Compared with the cost of wool clothes, corduroys are good buys — something to consider the way the family budget is strained nowadays.

Tweed, which is so popular in women's fashions, shows up in small girls' wearables of handsomely-styled corduroys. These show a deep tweedy texture. They appear in separates, jumpers and in dresses—some of these in high fashion lines that are suitable, nonetheless, for girls. One example in a tweedy corduroy has solid color little collar and cuffs on short sleeves, the bodice comes below the hipline in middy effect, with a full skirt.

Of course, corduroy which looks like itself is highly popular, too, in children's fall clothes. Adult styles are copied down into small sizes include the jacket-and-dress outfit. One includes a fitted jacket with mandarin neckline and short-cuffed sleeves, shown with a scalloped-neck jumper. This may be worn as a sleeveless party dress and, when it is colder, with the jacket as a warm suit.

Another fabric that looks like what it isn't—cotton tweed—now appears in children's dresses from tiny sizes 3 to 6, to bigger 7 to 14s. These textured cottons have been made up in a variety of styles, among them whirly flared skirts, jumpers and weskit outfits.

But most popular of all for early school days are the new dark-tone cotton plaids. They mostly have little collars, brief puff sleeves and full skirts. White pique collars or piping offer light touches.

As for solid color cottons, dark shades—particularly gray—are promoted for fall. Increasingly important in cottons for the fall, however, are denims, in plaids as well as solid colors.

Tweed, which is so popular in women's fashions, shows up in small girls' wearables of handsomely-styled corduroys. These show a deep tweedy texture. They appear in separates, jumpers and in dresses—some of these in high fashion lines that are suitable, nonetheless, for girls. One example in a tweedy corduroy has solid color little collar and cuffs on short sleeves, the bodice comes below the hipline in middy effect, with a full skirt.

Of course, corduroy which looks like itself is highly popular, too, in children's fall clothes. Adult styles are copied down into small sizes include the jacket-and-dress outfit. One includes a fitted jacket with mandarin neckline and short-cuffed sleeves, shown with a scalloped-neck jumper. This may be worn as a sleeveless party dress and, when it is colder, with the jacket as a warm suit.

Another fabric that looks like what it isn't—cotton tweed—now appears in children's dresses from tiny sizes 3 to 6, to bigger 7 to 14s. These textured cottons have been made up in a variety of styles, among them whirly flared skirts, jumpers and weskit outfits.

But most popular of all for early school days are the new dark-tone cotton plaids. They mostly have little collars, brief puff sleeves and full skirts. White pique collars or piping offer light touches.

As for solid color cottons, dark shades—particularly gray—are promoted for fall. Increasingly important in cottons for the fall, however, are denims, in plaids as well as solid colors.

Both the high-waisted look seen in women's fashions and the low-waisted effects underlined through middy styles are translated into little girls' back-to-school clothes. The very short spencer jacket combines prettily with high-waisted and princess-line dresses.

Then there are all the reversible fashions, weskits that are a solid color on one side and a plaid or check on the other; the same for skirts which may be worn either side out.

Corduroy for Fall Looks Like Many Other Fabrics in New School Clothes

Corduroy looks like anything but itself in youngsters' school clothes.

It resembles tweeds. It looks like flannel. And, in plaids or checks, you might think you see a woven wool fabric.

Newest, perhaps, are dresses, jumpers and even suits for little boys in Flannel-Roy, which looks like gray flannel yet is actually sturdy corduroy. This is a fabric that many mothers will want to see, since it combines warmth with the easy-to-care-for practicality of corduroy which is washable.

And another attractive feature is price. Compared with the cost of wool clothes, corduroys are good buys — something to consider the way the family budget is strained nowadays.

After-Dark Glamour in Fabric and Soft Lines

Strap Pumps for Sub-Deb

Little girls' shoes this season reflect much of the lightness and grace of women's footwear, achieved via lighter and more supple leathers. A significant trend in the sub-deb shoes is the popularity of low-cut shell strap pumps, which have all but replaced classic Mary Janes. Black patent ankle straps still abound, but shell pumps, in a gay variety of colors and combinations of leather, are fashion's answer to youth's demand for styling. Emulating the fashion set by their college-bound brothers, shoes for little boys are rugged and masculine, with bluchers and moccasin types predominant. Sturdy leather soles and prominent welting scores with the male lollipop set. Monk strap shoes are popular with youngsters — especially those with cowboy and space cadet motifs embossed on the vamps.

Snow Timers

Snowsuits featured for the nursery crowd, for the coming cold weather season, have many new style treatments. One comes with a grown-up stole. Some have jackets that can be reversed. Another, one-piece style, offers a jumper effect with embroidery trim, while a snowsuit for a very young child has handy attached mitts and boots.

ILLUSION BODICE—For teatime, after-5 or cocktail hour this Beaumelle original brings glamor and enchantment. Featured at Lillians, it uses nylon net over black satin underskirt. The bodice is trimmed with silver thread.

Hats High, Not Bulky

"Hats with height but not high, hats with bulk but not bulky" is the cryptic description Lily Dache gives her fall millinery collection. With the kind of abracadabra that the designer is famous for, she takes satin, suede, down fur felts and folds and puffs them into noticeable shapes that sit lightly and are youthful. Crowns are slightly pointed, brims are cut in a point at one side or in several points that shoot up or sit in a decorative profile line.

The turban and the fez are two ideas Dache brought back from her North African tour. Packable hats that collapse in folds and go into a suitcase as neatly as an evening bag are a great point in the collection. Of suede, velvet, satin or wool jersey, they come in rich colors to go with dark street or travel clothes.

Evening hats are designed to dazzle. These are little toques and pillboxes solidly encrusted with ruby, sapphire, emerald or diamond embroidery.

Film Biz Booms as TV Blight Dims

By Betty De Wees

HOLLYWOOD has weathered the television storm.

This is the considered opinion of Hollywood studio executives. Suddenly a let's-go-back-to-the-movies trend has developed. Good films are attracting crowds to the theaters just as they did in the days before kinescopes and Sid Caesar. Hollywood is investing millions in big-budget shows like 20th Century-Fox Technicolor "Snows of Kilimanjaro," produced by Darryl F. Zanuck, and "The Robe."

Such current hits as "Ivanhoe," "The Greatest Show on Earth" and "The Big Sky" are confirming the judgment of producers who predicted that the public would turn out for powerful pictures.

Studio old-timers didn't join in the panic when television first hit the nation's box office. They remembered that the same thing happened when radio first became popular, and that the new form of entertainment eventually helped movies instead of hurting them. They say TV will benefit filmland too, by building new talent and personalities for Hollywood, by increasing average, over the same period in 1951, film executives said.

EVEN THE televising of big sports events doesn't impair the business done by popular pictures. The American League baseball pennant race has been close all season, and is being widely telecast, yet theater grosses climb.

In the Pacific Coast League, Los Angeles and Hollywood recently fought out a bitter eight-game series that established a record at the turnstiles, and which was watched on television by hundreds of thousands of fans. At the same time 20th Century-Fox's "Don't Bother to Knock" and "We're Not Married" were scoring at Los Angeles first-run theaters, and so were "Jumpin' Jacks" and "Lovely to Look At." Competition didn't seem to dent the take on good films.

Southland theaters even had a successful night while Lou Thesz and Baron Leone were wrestling nearby for the world's championship and attracting a gate of $103,000.

VARIETY, recognized as one of the most objective publications in show business, reports that theater grosses are up so substantially that they are beginning to be compared with the standing room only

Sierra Trip—Trout, Too—on $12

By Jack Teele

WE DIDN'T travel in a luxurious, air-conditioned transport, didn't eat filet mignon and didn't sleep on mattresses that were "like sleeping on a cloud"—but we had a vacation that included some fine Sierra fishing and unbelievable scenery for slightly less than $12 apiece for three.

Yep, that's what we said, $12, and if you still have a little time coming on your vacation and lots of optimism, you can do the same thing.

It was funny how the trip formed. We were all short of cash, all lacking in time for a long trip and, most important of all, lacking in adequate transportation.

The three of us, high school buddies of several years ago, wanted to take a fishing trip to the Mammoth Lakes region. Hank Sagehorn, a Marine at Camp Pendleton had the longest vacation coming—10 days leave. Ronnie Salter and I had part-time summer jobs and could manage only three days away from work. That settled the length of the trip, it would have to be from Friday night to Tuesday night and include 600 miles of travel.

For transportation we had a choice between Hank's 1939 Plymouth with tires as thin as penny balloons, and our own 1938 Ford, with a clutch that slips when we climb the grade at the Long Beach Traffic Circle. We settled for a combination "Plyford," using my tires and battery and Hank's motor and chassis. We fixed such minor ills as no lights and a leaky radiator ourselves.

Fishing equipment, pack racks, and cooking utensils we begged, borrowed and improvised. We did spend $3.57 for bait, flies, leaders and other necessities for trout fishing.

Our food for seven meals, which included dehydrated mashed potatoes, canned beans and peas, coffee, pancake flour, bread, candy bars and the like, took a total of $4.57 from our $36 kitty, compiled by a $12 assessment on each man.

We decided to start the trip early Saturday morning (2 a. m. to be exact) so as to cross the Mojave Desert at night.

ALL WENT WELL with only two flat tires and an occasional blown fuse (we didn't do too good a job on the lights) marring the trip to Little Lake, the halfway point. At Little Lake we decided to fix the leaking left rear tire. Somehow the jack slipped, something snapped and we found we had only one gear in the car—reverse.

Since driving backwards for the remaining 150 miles didn't seem too sharp an idea, we had to turn mechanic and fix the transmission. Two hours of trial and error finally did the job and we were once again on our way.

Although the "Plyford" spouted like Old Faithful on the last 50-mile lap from Bishop to Mammoth, we arrived at the clearing at the foot of the Muir Trail where we parked the car at 4:15 p. m. Saturday.

We hadn't slept since Thursday night, but we planned to hike the 14 miles from the car to Purple Lake before stopping. Although the hiking was tough we couldn't tap the kitty for pack mules.

We overestimated ourselves! A combination of heavy packs, sore backs and a dark, moonless night Ko'd us at Duck Lake at 8:30 p. m. Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Haeske of Arcadia, who had been hiking over the Muir trail for seven days, saved our lives with some hot tea and a cheery fire.

We made Purple Lake about noon Sunday, set up our camp and caught three rainbow trout each for our dinner. With fried trout, mashed potatoes, beans and coffee we didn't think much about filet mignon.

Our second and last day of fishing provided the top fishing thrills. We hiked four miles back of Purple to a chain of lakes which are called the Pike Lakes by

Time was short but fish were plentiful! The author is shown with trout he caught on a low-cost Sierra trip.

Hollywood is taking on new life after surviving the blight of TV, and stars like Susan Hayward, in forceful films like "Snows of Kilimanjaro," are among the reasons. Really good films dispel box office blues.

Young and sultry-voiced Hildegard Neff of European fame is a newcomer who is helping to boost box office revenues. She'll be seen in the 20th Century-Fox new "Snows of Kilimanjaro," Darryl F. Zanuck's technicolor production of the famous Ernest Hemingway story. Hildegard does well in this new assignment.

the public's appreciation for the finest in drama and comedy, and by stimulating the studios to produce better and better films.

Proof of the resurgence of the movies is found in the fact that attendance actually went up during the Republican and Democratic national conventions. Despite the coverage of these important events on television, the national box office was up 15 per cent, on the

Like a sparkling gem, Palos Verdes Hills have many facets of beauty, as the pictures here show. Above, Pt. Fermin, looking toward the breakwater.

Beauty in Palos Verdes Hills

Wayfarers Chapel is a glass church of remarkable modernism, gaining dramatic accent by its location on a promontory overlooking the sea.

Beautiful homes are the rule on the scenic sites of the Palos Verdes hills. Above, Villetta (small villa), home of Mrs. Kelvin Vanderlip.

Near the Plaza of Palos Verdes Estates is the new St. Francis Episcopal Church, a structure of unusual architecture. Inset, a couple enjoys the beauty of a field of geraniums in bloom.

Portuguese Bend Club is a play spot beside the sea, boasting of a private pier and swimming pool. Members may indulge in strenuous outdoor fun or just relax amid modern club comforts.

Brighten Your Winter Garden With COLORFUL Sweet Peas

Beauty and fragrance of sweet peas can be brought to the off-season garden by planting the winter variety.

By Bob Gilmore

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA is perhaps the only area in the United States where growing sweet peas for winter bloom is considered an ordinary routine. Elsewhere this feat is looked upon as a miracle of the horticultural world. The time to start sowing seed is right now; by planting at intervals of every few weeks, a succession of bloom for weeks at a time is assured.

There is no real secret concerned with growing sweet peas in the middle of winter in this area. A deep soil, plenty of plant food and the right selection of seed are the bare essentials. But the seed is all-important.

Ordinary or summer-flowering sweet peas will not prosper during the fall, winter or early spring. Even if planted now very few flowers will show up. The vines, of course, may make a prodigious growth and the roots will grope deep into the soil. But blooms will be scant.

Winter-flowering peas, often identified as early-flowering, have the capacity for blooming when the days are cold and when gray skies with little sunshine are the order of the day. The winter-flowering strains have proved exceedingly valuable in the florist trade and many local cut flower growers plant this type exclusively.

Soils in which sweet peas are to be planted should be thoroughly prepared in advance. Turn the existing soil over to a depth of about 18 inches. Sweet peas like a deep, well prepared soil.

The seed bed should be kept damp until planting time. Plant the seed about one-inch deep, from three to four inches apart in a shallow trench, two to three inches deep. If prize-winning flowers are desired the plants should be thinned out to perhaps seven or eight inches. But for profusion of bloom... usually most desired... a closer spacing will prove advisable. As the seedlings grow, the depression should gradually be filled in until almost even with the surface. Leave just a slight depression to catch the water.

trellis. Garden supply stores now stock a trellis... it looks like a fishnet... made especially for training sweet peas. It is nominal in price and can be used over and over again. The material being treated to stand up against extreme weather conditions.

Sweet peas should be irrigated and not sprinkled. They are fairly heavy drinkers. The vines may attain a height of eight or 10 feet and plenty of moisture is required to sustain this tremendous mass of vegetation. Yellowing of the foliage is often caused by lack of adequate water.

Sweet peas have, comparatively speaking, voracious appetites. Liquid fertilizer or a well-balanced commercial food should be applied about once every 14 days when the buds start to appear.

Winter-flowering sweet peas are sturdy in growth and need support on a trellis of wire or network of cord.

Prevent Pest Damage

By Walter Finch

HERE ARE SOME pest control facts which may be filed for reference when insects attack your garden.

Insects injure plants in the following ways:

1. Cut off stems of young plants at the soil surface—cutworms, slugs.
2. Chew holes or pieces out of leaves and other parts of plants—chewing insects, beetles, caterpillars, worms, snails, slugs and grasshoppers.
3. Suck the plant juices from the stems and leaves—sucking insects such as aphids, thrips, leaf hoppers and squash bugs.
4. Transmit disease organism to plants—leafhoppers, aphids, thrips, cucumber beetles, and other insects.
5. Bore into or within stems—stalk and vine borers.

Here are the chief remedies and preventives:

1. Use snail bait liberally around the garden throughout the year. Sprinkle some along the rows when planting to attract and kill cutworms.

2. Dust the plant or spray with a liquid spray containing one of the following stomach poisons to kill chewing insects: Lindane, rotenone, or cryolite.

3. Control sucking insects with Lindane, nicotine-sulphate, pyrethrum or rotenone. Consult with your local seedsman for his recommendation.

4. Prevent certain disease by keeping insects under control, space plants liberally to allow air circulation, practice garden sanitation and weed control, and add copper or sulphur to the sprays used against insects.

5. Control of borers is difficult and depends mainly on removal of borers upon discovery.

DUST OR SPRAY the foliage and stems of your plants at the first sign of insects or set up a regular program of pest control, applying a multi-purpose insecticide every ten days or two weeks.

Search for and remove by hand such large pests as tomato hornworms, adult squash bugs, harlequin beetles and other insects difficult to control with sprays.

Read the directions carefully on the bottle or package of spray material you buy and follow the directions diligently.

Fifty-foot spike blooms on L. B. century plant.

TWENTY-SIX YEARS AGO a century plant was put in the ground at 7 S. Santa Clara Ave., a more or less gentle hint to youngsters not to scramble over the fence.

It has grown slowly as century plants do, its sharp spikes kept carefully trimmed by the owner, Mrs. Ivilla Decker to keep them from harming passersby.

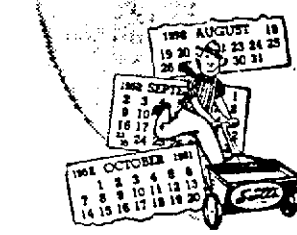

Last spring a shoot came straight up out of the middle of the plant and grew... and grew... and GREW. Then it blossomed, a novel arrangement of small, creamy-white flowers.

Spike and flowers were well over the roof of the two-story building. A good guess is that it is more than 50 feet high.

Experts say century plant is the popular name of the American aloe (agave americana). It blossoms so rarely that according to an old saying it blooms only once in a century, hence its name.

Tips on Gardening

GARDENING TIPS for the week... Delphinium seeds do not keep their germination for a very long period. So you must obtain fresh seed or results will be disappointing. As a matter of fact, the germination of delphinium drops quickly after the first six months. Placing the seeds in a refrigerator for a few weeks before planting is believed to encourage maximum results.

Soil Aid

FROM two to five tons of agricultural limestone may be used per acre on clay soil to give it a granular structure. This makes the soil easier to work, and allows air to penetrate more readily.

As much organic material as possible should also be used.

50 Feet and Four Apartments

Winston Updegraff, owners of this modern apartment, occupy the upper level which has many novel features.

By Margaret Pitcairn Strachan

THE WINSTON R. UPDEGRAFFS of Los Angeles have enjoyed spending week ends in Laguna Beach and, for many years, they did so by what they called "roughing it." Now, they say, they rough it in Los Angeles and spend their spare time in luxurious style in Laguna.

The turnabout was achieved with the assistance of Don Williamson, Laguna Beach architect, who performed wonders with the 50-foot lot that the Updegraffs own and upon which they have erected a building to house four apartments, one of which is their own. The building is located at 635 Ramona Ave., Laguna Beach.

Williamson took advantage of the hillside location and planned the building on five separate levels with all except two rooms having an ocean view. The Updegraffs' own apartment is on the top level, with garage space under part of their quarters. There were tremendous eucalyptus trees on the lot and the building was so placed that these could be retained — even one in the center of the lot was saved by being the center of the small courtyard with its trunk rising right through the roof!

The house contains 4000 square feet—of floor space—each of the three apartments which the Updegraffs rent has one bedroom, while their own has two bedrooms. The living and dining rooms and kitchen are on a lower level than the two bedrooms which have drawdrapes for one wall. When the drapes are open, the view is straight out across the lower rooms through the ceiling-height windows beyond to the ocean.

Window draperies in the living and dining rooms are set low so that the sky is revealed in glass areas above them and since the afternoon sun is a problem at this Laguna site, it is shut out. Glare is reduced but at the same time a feeling of spaciousness is given. In the bedrooms, the windows, which are on the sides of the house, are high in the walls and the view from them is of eucalyptus trees and sky.

The Winston R. Updegraffs built a 4-apartment building on a 50-foot lot at Laguna Beach, retaining the upper apartment for themselves. Right, living room, showing fireplace serving two rooms and partition containing the compact kitchen which can be seen in photo below. (Note: Furniture has been rearranged to take photos.)

Beyond wall of ash and glass is master bedroom. China cabinets are concealed in wall at sides of the hutch.

Button Idea

If you're fortunate enough to have a few heirloom buttons or unusual decorative ones, why not bring them out and make use of them? First, wash them with warm soapy water and a soft brush; work suds into carvings and intricate designs. Then put the buttons on a dress or suit and have two of them made into earrings. Chances are they'll turn out to be the jewelry that draws the most compliments.

When Things Are Put Away

Under this stairway in main hall is a luggage closet with doors which appear to be only panels when shut.

—Photos by M. S. Melvin

A large lazy susan serves the corner cabinet in this kitchen. Note number of items that can be put away.

By Elizabeth Knight

EVERY HOUSEWIFE appreciates large, roomy closets in a house or apartment. When house hunting, that is one of the points kept in mind, and when building a new home a woman realizes that this is her chance to see that she gets not only large enough closets, but also plenty of them.

In the new home of Dr. and Mrs. Orville F. Cole, 268 Granada Ave., the closets are something a woman might dream about! Mrs. Cole had definite ideas as to what she wanted. She felt that a house should be easy to take care of and for this reason she gave careful thought to every detail. In the Cole kitchen the cabinets are so arranged that the everyday china and glassware is in a closet close to the breakfast room. After the dishes are washed they are arranged in the cabinet and when the time for the next meal arrives they are taken out from the breakfast room side—because the closet opens from both rooms, saving many steps.

Pantry storage here is of birch with a red table top of formica. A panel opens through to recreation room.

The same idea is carried out in the pantry. Glasses or dishes for a children's party are neatly put away in the pantry closet and this same closet opens from the opposite side—which is in the recreation room, saving more steps.

Many modern kitchens are equipped with lazy susans, saving the space formerly wasted in corners where cabinets joined. Probably Mrs. Cole has the largest-sized lazy susan possible!

The area under the Cole's stairway has been turned into a luggage closet. Also the entire wall at one end of the recreation room is made up of closets for games, camera equipment, card tables and so on. When paneled wood is used in a room this is a simple and effective idea.

IF A HOUSE has not enough space for a separate service room and the washing machine, drier, tubs, or other necessary household appliances must be in the kitchen, an idea for concealing them can be employed. Mrs. Eugene Jones, 5900 Bayshore Walk, solved this problem in a clever way in her own kitchen. She purchased a set of old shutters and used them to close off the alcove containing her washer and trash burner.

The old adage of "A place for everything and everything in its place," was never more true than it is today!

South Seas Treasures

Jack Kovitz with models of South Sea island outriggers. He is shown holding chicken feather fans given him for saving a baby's life on Gardiner Island.

By Vera Williams

STEPPING into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Kovitz, 829 1/2 Pacific Ave., is a little like taking a trip to the South Seas.

Kovitz, now on inactive duty after 22 years as a Navy chief pharmacist mate, has a collection of South Seas curios of museum quality.

He has tokelau buckets made from tokelau trees which he says grow nowhere except Tokelau Islands near New Zealand; handsome black and white tapa cloth; models of Samoan war clubs; models of Samoan and Tokelau outriggers; a jaeger bird's tail; kava bowls for kava, the native drink; a fine mat 62 by 67 inches such as natives use at funerals and weddings; a variety of cat eyes and sea shells.

The mat, which he says represents several years of work by an accomplished weaver, he expects to send to the American Museum in New York. The tokelau buckets, with close-fitting lids are said to be watertight.

The Navy man is especially proud of a model of a Tokelau outrigger 57 inches long, with five oars. He has seen 30-foot outriggers.

With considerable satisfaction, he shows three fans made of chicken feathers and tells how they were given him for saving the life of a baby on Gardiner Island. The frantic parents, an Australian father and Gilbert Island native mother, sent word to the Navy ship that their child was having convulsions.

"The skipper told me to go and do what I could," the chief pharmacist mate tells the story. "I wasn't used to dosing babies but I gathered up the supplies I thought we might need. The radio man and I went with the natives in their outrigger over mighty rough water. I gave the baby medicine and prescribed a diet and the last I knew the baby was doing fine. The father sent me the chicken feather fans to say 'thank you.'"

"Did any of you big boys ever sit in a warm lap on a cold winter night and get your back scratched?"

Tasty Punch Is 'Special'

By Mildred K. Flanary

WEDDINGS are surrounded with more tradition and sentiment than any other event in a lifetime... whether they be in June, September or December. Years of changing customs have gone into the fleeting but important celebration of the wedding day.

Food plays an important role in the proceedings, and traditions relating to the bridal dinner, reception and such are preserved with great care, whether it be a large church affair or a small home wedding.

From the queries coming into this department regarding what to serve we would say that the trend is definitely toward informality... a breakfast at the bride's home, a reception or a supper served buffet style.

A menu suitable for a home wedding breakfast might follow the one suggested below.

Fresh strawberry and pineapple cup
Mushroom and ham patties Viennese
Green peas Hot rolls
Wine jelly Coffee
Wedding cake
Wine punch or Champagne
 The mushroom and ham patties Viennese are made this way:

Mushroom and Ham Patties Viennese

2 (8 oz.) cans mushroom stems and pieces
 6 tablespoons butter or margarine
 1 teaspoon minced onion
 6 tablespoons flour
 2 cups thick sour cream
 1/4 cup California sherry wine
 1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese
 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
 Salt and pepper to taste
 2 cups diced, cooked ham
 10 patty shells

Drain mushrooms, reserving liquid. Melt butter; add onion and drained mushrooms; saute, stirring frequently, for 5 minutes. Sprinkle flour over mushrooms; stir well. Add 1 cup of the reserved mushroom liquid and the sour cream; cook, stirring constantly, until sauce boils and thickens. Add wine, cheese, parsley, salt and pepper. Stir in ham. Heat gently, just until piping hot. Meantime, reheat patty shells by placing in a moderate oven (350° F.) for 5 minutes or so. Fill shells with the piping hot mushroom-ham mixture. Serve at once.

Note: Mushroom-ham mixture may be prepared ahead of time, set aside and then re-

Golden Wine Punch

1 (4/5 qt.) bottle California Sauterne or other white table wine, chilled
 3 cups canned pineapple juice, chilled
 1 cup orange juice
 1/2 cup lemon juice
 1 cup cold strong tea
 1 cup sugar
 1/2 teaspoon powdered ginger
 1 (1 qt.) bottle sparkling water, chilled

In a punch bowl combine the wine, pineapple juice, orange juice, lemon juice, and tea. Mix sugar and ginger; add to punch; stir until dissolved. Add a block of ice or a tray of ice cubes, then pour in sparkling water. Serve at once. Yield: Approximately 35 3-oz. servings.

Sufficient punch for 35 three-ounce servings may be made by using these directions. Clip and file them.

heated in a double boiler or over very low heat before serving. Serves 10.

If you prefer a wedding reception, we suggest for beverage, golden wine punch, and for food that goes nicely with it, open-faced chicken-and-ham sandwiches and cheese croustades. That you may have the recipe for golden wine punch always on file, you'll find it all ready for clipping and elsewhere on this page. Following is the recipe for the cheese croustades:

Cheese Croustades

Remove crust from day-old unsliced sandwich bread. Cut 24 slices, 1 1/2 inches thick; cut each slice in 4 squares. With sharp-pointed scissors, hollow out each square to make a little bread "box." Brush on all sides with melted butter or margarine. Place on a baking sheet. Bake in a moderately hot oven (400° F.) about 10 minutes, or just until delicately golden.

Prepare cheese filling as follows:

1 pound process American or cheddar cheese, sliced
 1/4 cup California sherry wine
 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
 Melt cheese in a double boiler. Stir in wine and seasonings. Let cool slightly.

Fill the hollow of each croustade with some of the cheese mixture. Before serving, bake the filled croustades in a moderate oven (350° F.) for about 10 minutes, or just until heated through. Serve hot. Makes 4 dozen croustades.

Regardless of how informal the occasion may be, the foods served must be dainty to look upon, yet tasty to eat, and for a buffet supper, we suggest this round sandwich loaf. It's as elegant as a cake. Especially nice are the round loaves of potato bread, and it does lend that different flavor. Sliced as a cake, it's easily served and easy for guests to handle. Here's how to put it together:

Round Sandwich Loaf

1 pound round loaf of bread
 2 small cans tuna fish
 1/2 cup minced onion
 1 cup mayonnaise
 1/2 cup drained pickle relish
 1/2 cup softened butter
 2 jars pimiento cheese spread
 4 hard cooked eggs, chopped
 1 pound cream cheese
 1/2 cup milk
 Food coloring

Remove bottom crust from loaf of bread. Cut bread crosswise into 6 round slices about 1/2 inch thick. Cut off crusty edges from each slice with scissors. Mix tuna with onion and 1/2 cup of the mayonnaise. Spread 1/2 of this mixture on bottom slice of bread. Top with second slice. Mix pickle relish with softened butter and spread on second slice. Top with third slice. Spread with pimiento cheese. Add fourth bread slice. Mix eggs with remaining 1/2 cup mayonnaise. Spread on bread. Add fifth bread slice, and spread with remaining tuna mixture. Add final bread slice. Soften cream cheese with milk and spread on outside of sandwich. Tint any leftover cream cheese with food coloring and garnish as desired. Chill in refrigerator three hours or overnight. Makes about 15 to 20 servings.

A good punch never seems to go out of style for wedding receptions. And the one suggested here, served over ice in the punch bowl on which is floated bright red cherries, pineapple chunks and strips of lemon peel, is perfect to serve with the buffet.

Wedding Punch

6 cups chilled apricot whole fruit nectar
 3 cups chilled strong black tea
 1/2 cup lemon juice
 1/2 cup sugar
 Few drops clove extract*
 Few grains salt

Combine all ingredients and blend well. Serve very cold. Makes about 2 1/2 quarts. *If clove extract not available, a few whole cloves may be steeped with the tea.

Of course, no wedding would be complete without a cake and today there is both the bride's cake as well as the groom's. The bride's is white, the groom's is the dark fruit variety, and here are the recipes for each:

White Wedding Cake

3 cups sifted enriched flour
 3 teaspoons baking powder
 1 teaspoon salt
 1 cup shortening
 2 cups beet or cane sugar
 1 cup milk
 1 1/2 teaspoons flavoring extract
 6 egg whites

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Cream together shortening and sugar until light and fluffy. Add flour and milk alternately to creamed mixture. Add flavoring extract. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Mix to a smooth batter. Pour into paper-lined nine-inch layer cake pans. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) 35 minutes. When cool, spread a filling between the layers. Frost as desired and decorate. Yield: 2 nine-inch layers.

days of 1945 and 1946. The upturn is largely attributed to the fact that Hollywood is turning out some of the finest films in its history.

Where pessimism prevailed a year ago, optimism is the keynote today. Hollywood believes it is embarking on an era of prosperity and outstanding pictures, with such top productions awaiting release as "Snows of Kilimanjaro," starring Gregory Peck, Ava Gardner, Susan Hayward and Hildgarde Neft, M-G-M's "The Merry Widow" with Lana Turner and Fernando Lamas, and "Monkey Business," the 20th Century-Fox comedy directed by Howard Hawks and starring Cary Grant, Ginger Rogers, Marilyn Monroe and Charles Coburn.

Hollywood has passed another crisis—by producing pictures that people insist on seeing.

Wanted: One Museum

By Ruth Reece

IMAGINE being showered with many valuable gifts and then having no place to put them!

That is the predicament of the city of Long Beach today in regard to a museum of natural history—many fine collections on hand but no adequate housing for them. Stacked in unopened boxes and cases, collecting dust, they fill dark corners, overflow in small closets, spill over on the floor in unused rooms on the fourth floor of Municipal Auditorium.

If properly displayed in glass cases, these specimens, which have been gathered by students of natural history over many years, would attract visitors from far and near.

Sponsoring the establishment and proper maintenance of a museum of natural history is the Agassiz Nature Club of Long Beach which also advocates a municipal aquarium, a marine biological laboratory, bird and wild flower sanctuaries, and nature trails in the city, dreams which doubtless some day will come true.

In 1934, the Agassiz Nature Club purchased the Robert Tremper collection of shells and other sea life, and this intriguing collection, as well as the cabinets and display cases in which it is kept, form the nucleus for the proposed museum.

The city of Long Beach granted permission for the club to place the Tremper shells in the Auditorium, and when citizens learned of the exhibit on display they responded with enthusiasm. Leaders of youth groups and teachers brought their students to see the shells which include most of the west coast species. Members of the Shell Club also use the exhibit to advantage.

GIFTS, large and small, began to pour in. Some of the larger collections came from estates of Long Beach residents; the city of Long Beach donated six wall cases; and H. N. Lowe contributed six table cases and 500 species of shells with which to fill them.

"Public interest in a museum for Long Beach was aroused and it began to look as if the city would have a building," Mrs. Jean Wilkins, junior past president and curator of Agassiz Nature Club, recalled. "But then came World War II and all our hopes were put aside for the duration."

The growth of Long Beach during the past 10 years has increased the need for such a museum, not only to house and display the interesting collections now on hand, but also to encourage similar gifts from other collectors.

Use of the present collection for study is available by appointment with Mrs. Jean Wilkins, 5939 Gundry Ave.

the packers but which have no name on the maps. We had only four hours of fishing time at the Pikes, for we had the hike back to camp and then to the car before nightfall. Those four hours were a fisherman's dream.

NONE of us is an expert with a fly rod, but we did do some fly fishing, along with salmon eggs, and it provided the best results.

Hank hooked seven, three rainbows and four golden, all over 12 inches. Ronnie hooked two big golden and a rainbow and then spent the rest of his time trying to persuade a "whale that looked like a trout" that salmon eggs were delicious. It was a battle of brains and the trout emerged victorious and still awaits a conqueror. Our own efforts resulted in two medium rainbows and a nice golden. We had 13 fish in four hours fishing.

Biggest thrill came when Hank hooked into a 14-inch rainbow that did an adagio dance all over the lake before submitting.

We overstayed our time limit at the Pikes and had to hike the final mile to the car by flashlight. The trip home was practically dull—only a five-hour stop to get the radiator boiled out ($15 from our still strong kitty) and one flat tire.

In addition to the fishing we managed time to take four rolls of colored film of the most fantastically beautiful scenery in the world.

We also had time to "bat the breeze" with other fishermen. The principal of Montebello High School went through our campsite Sunday night with a nine-pound golden which he had taken at Virginia Lake. Reports on the fishing were all good and we wished we had had about two more weeks to spend. For gas, oil, food and equipment we had spent under $12 each, but we wouldn't sell those three days for a million.

Disaster was near when car acted up at Little Lake but Ronnie Salter and Hank Caghehorn got it running again.

Hoover Discusses Great Depression

THE MEMOIRS OF HERBERT HOOVER. Vol. III: The Great Depression, 1929-1941. New York: The Macmillan Co. $5.00

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Independent-Press-Telegram Book Editor

THIS VOLUME is the long-awaited one, the ordered account of a prelude to disaster, its causes and its effects, and its outcome. There is no reader so bitter but who will have to grant that there is a tremendous flow of logic in Mr. Hoover's political testament. The author is quick to state that the New Deal brought needed reforms and some constructive actions. But these were often merely completed efforts that began during Mr. Hoover's administration. Other reforms had in their very principles the seeds of their own destruction being denied the free expression of initiative, employment and opportunity.

forced measures to hold a weakening line, among them the British rash resumption of the old pre-war value of the pound sterling, a fictitious value and one bound to bring disaster. As a direct result of this madness, the United States was asked to inflate European credits, and the deadly pattern was laid. Enlightenment on a number of clouded issues appear in this volume. In the past few have spoken for Mr. Hoover and have failed to render to him the credits due. In this account comes the description of the constructive steps he took in an attempt to stop the disaster. And in the final section Mr. Hoover brings some of the New Dealers themselves to reinforce statements which will round out a three-volume story of a national political experience that had world-shaking significance.

Silly Case of Satire

By Joseph Joel Keith

ROBERT C. RUARK'S new crazy-house treat, "Grenadine's Spaw," published by Doubleday, is that book of books that will keep readers in stitches. Not recommended for hospitalized readers, for the stitches will pop out.

GRENADINE ETCHING, certainly the most amazing woman in this or any world, including the space kingdoms, has the most unusual brood, namely Peter, Jeter, Abercrombie, Uranium and Opal Electra—the latter the child she barely remembered bringing forth; and the father was simply of the multitude. Then there was Grenadine's talented son, a colonel in charge of incendiary bombs who began his apprenticeship by setting fire to his mother's maids.

ABERCROMBIE ETCHING wrote a book which was rejected by 127 publishers. When he discovered the four-letter word, and wrote another novel, it climbed immediately to the top of the best seller list.

JETER ETCHING, the amorous one, beginning at the age of 6, lured away from homes and husbands the headmaster's wife, the baker's wife, the mayor's wife, and others. For reasons of his own Jeter joined the Girl Scouts. He was remembered by ladies of Pittsburgh, Detroit, Denver, Natchez, Mobile and Burbank—all with stars in their eyes.

OPAL ELECTRA left Alabama early in life, having killed her cruel father with a poker. "Folks down there don't take kindly to young girls who beat out their father's brains with a poker," the satirist explains. "They figger it shows a lack of filial piety."

BUT ROBERT C. RUARK'S Grenadine dominates the story, for whenever her name is mentioned banks fail, crowned heads bow, and all sorts of personages form a background for this star of life, including Eleanor Roosevelt, Mary Margaret McBride and Perle Mesta, and so on.

Restless Journey

A HUNGRY MAN DREAMS, by Margaret Lee Runbeck. 371 pp. Boston: Houghton Mifflin Co. $3.75.

By Gerald Lagard

BACK OF JUBAL OUR was his sentimental father and his gentle and dreaming mother. And back of all of them was Our Beer, a symbol of a gentle and civilized way of life that was moderation. And in all St. Louis no man was more revered for his acts of kindness than Henry Our. But with Prohibition came scorn and hatred and heartbreak for Henry, and the loss of material things that had gone with wealth. So what was left to Jubal was a conflicting set of ethics and wishes, and a wistful sense of something beyond him that beckoned.

And the novel is the account of Jubal's searching—through World War I and his captivity in a German submarine, and his restless journey among people of a sort that sometimes puzzled him, and sometimes delighted him. And he found his way to becoming a minister without a church, for he seemed to bring a great belief to everyone but himself. His own belief had still to come. And it was the lovely dancer Gay Savanne whom he married who at last showed him his way. For he had found within him a great gift for comedy that brought him into show business on the radio networks. And as material things pressed him from every side, Gay began to find the man she had loved and married no longer with her. But Jubal continued to bring laughter to the public, and he thought that was a religion in itself.

The ending resolves itself into a simple statement of faith, one that is filling and worth waiting for. And the reader will wait patiently for Jubal to see his way, for somewhere in the book he gently explains. "It's never seemed sound to me that God couldn't keep His temper. If He can't, who can?"

Meiers, who has taught three years at City College, is a painter and has exhibited in galleries and museums in California and throughout the United States.

"The fair arts exhibit, entitled 'Clay,' is one of the most interesting and educational the fair ever has displayed," says Meiers. "The idea behind 'Clay' is to show Southern Californians and other fair visitors what man has created in the way of fine arts and utilitarian objects from this common material through the ages."

Record Album
Miss Wicks Concerto
MUSIC LOVERS — and especially those in Long Beach who have known her since she was a child — rejoice in the release of the Sibelius Violin Concerto played by Camilla Wicks of this city in a fine album of long-playing records.

The concerto, played by Miss Wicks with the Symphony Orchestra of Radio-Stockholm with Sixteen Ehrlich conducting, is considered one of the outstanding releases by Capitol Records.

Violin Concerto in D Minor by Jan Sibelius, first performed in 1906, in the past 20 years has become a standard composition for violin virtuosi. In 1946, when only 17 years old, Miss Wicks made her New York orchestral debut with this concerto, playing it in a performance with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra under the baton of Artur Rodzinski. As a very young artist, she performed the concerto in Helsinki, Finland, with such notable success that she was invited by the composer to be a guest in his home. Since then she has appeared in Helsinki three consecutive seasons, and on every occasion has performed the Sibelius Violin Concerto.

Miss Wicks has completed four highly successful European concert tours and has won the esteem of critics and conductors for her unassuming demeanor, her serious approach and her thorough understanding of music.

Her repertoire constantly is growing and recently Sweden's Hilding Rosenbert composed a concerto for her which she may record next year.

Her brilliant readings of the gigantic Beethoven and Brahms D Major Concertos and works of Lalo, Prokofiev, Honneger, Bruch and Tartini—to name a few—have established her a classical, romantic and modern player, the possessor of singular versatility.

A picture of your new home adds interesting touch to an announcement to friends of your new address.

By The Shutterbug

WHEN WE MOVE, one of the things that we usually find hard to get around to doing is notifying our friends of our change of address. Somehow there never seems to be time for writing all those notes.

So, if you've acquired a new home—whether it's really new or just new to you—here's an idea for you. Take a picture of the house. In fact, it's better to take several—shoot a whole roll of film. Then pick out the one you like best and take it to your photo finisher. He can use the same type of mask form from which your picture Christmas cards are made. But instead of the traditional holiday picture, he'll print in your snapshot of the new home. He can also imprint your name and address in the space usually reserved for the greeting. Or, if you'd like to personalize the message, have him leave the card blank and you can write the good news in a few words beneath or beside the picture, as the case may be.

Or, you may simply have your picture enlarged a bit, printed on double weight paper, and have your message printed right on it as was done in the announcement which illustrates today's column. The picture happened to lend itself particularly well to this treatment because of the tall trees in the foreground. The message fills up a space which might look awkward otherwise.

If you aren't pressed for time and feel you'd like to write notes to some of the people to whom you're announcing a new address, you might simply take your snapshot and paste it on the first page of a piece of folded notepaper. Then you could write the new address and whatever else you wish on the inside.

Your friends will be happy for the opportunity to "see" the new home and you'll find this a pleasant way to inform them that you've moved.

THE NEXT MEETING of the Long Beach Camera Guild will be Wednesday, Sept. 17 at 8 p. m. in Municipal Art Center, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd. The program for the evening will be a color slide competition. Visitors are cordially invited. At the last meeting of the Guild, monochrome print competition resulted in the following winners: First, John Reichardt; second, Elva Hayward; third, John Scheurer; honorable mention, John Reichardt and John Scheurer. Judge for the competition was W. E. Wright, teacher at Art Center, Los Angeles.

COMPTON CAMERA CLUB will meet Thursday at 8 p. m. at 1021 E. Compton Blvd., Compton. . . . San Pedro Camera Club will meet Friday at 8 p. m. in Anderson Memorial Bldg., Eighth and Mesa Sts., San Pedro.

What Our Constitution Means

JUST 165 YEARS AGO—on Sept. 17, 1787—delegates to our Constitutional Convention proudly signed their names to a remarkable new document, the Constitution of the United States, "the finest expression of the determination of a free people to govern themselves and protect their liberty."

If you haven't read it since school days, our annual Constitution Day, Sept. 17, is a good time for all Americans to recall its wise provisions. It's especially important now, for it gives us unique rights in a world, where people in many lands have lost freedom of the press, religion, speech and of peaceful assembly. Their homes can be searched, their goods seized. They cannot vote, regardless of race or color, nor can they ask for a speedy trial by jury; but all these are guaranteed us by our Constitution. It was on May 12, 1787, that the Constitutional Convention assembled at Independence Hall in Philadelphia, with delegates from all states except Rhode Island, George Washington, a deputy from Virginia, presided over the sessions. The members studied carefully various codes of law—those of Great Britain, her colonies, our state constitutions, and the Articles of Confederation. According to one authority, Max Farrand, "It is of interest that the New York Constitution of 1777 seems to have been used more extensively than any other."

When the work was completed, and the members came to agreement on the final draft after four months of secret deliberation, they added their signatures. The document at that time consisted of the famous preamble, "We the people . . ." and seven Articles. Among the signers were Alexander Hamilton, Gouverneur Morris, James Wilson, John Dickinson, James Madison, and Benjamin Franklin. The latter had a unique honor among our forefathers; for he was the only American to sign four important papers: The Declaration of Independence, the Alliance with France, the Treaty of Peace with England, and the Constitution.

STRANGE TO SAY, of the 65 delegates from the 12 states, 10 did not attend; and of those present on that momentous day, Sept. 17, 1787, 16 "declined or failed to sign."

Under the rules of the Constitution itself, the instrument was to be ratified by nine states before it could go into effect. On Dec. 7, 1787, Delaware had the honor of being the first to ratify. Others followed in this order: Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Georgia, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Maryland, South Carolina, New Hampshire, Virginia, New York, North Carolina, and Rhode Island. Only three—Delaware, New Jersey, and Georgia—were unanimous in their votes for adoption.

When, on June 21, 1788, the ninth state, New Hampshire, ratified the Constitution, there were enough to make it legal. However, the government did not declare the document in effect until the first Wednesday in March, 1789.

Even though adopted, there had been much opposition to the document, both in Congress and among citizens generally. Many considered that it was not "sufficiently explicit as to individual and state rights." Therefore it was agreed to add some "safeguarding amendments." On Sept. 25, 1789, when the First Congress met in New York, 12 measures, the "Bill of Rights" were submitted. Two in regard to apportionment and pay of representatives were not accepted. By December of 1791 the other 10 had been ratified by 11 states; and they now form an important section of the document.

SINCE then, 12 other amendments have been added to the Constitution; the latest, the 22, regarding the term of a President, became part of the instrument when Nevada, the 36th state, ratified it on Feb. 26 of this year.

Luckily, the Constitution was made difficult to change as the legislatures of three-fourths of the states—or special conventions—must approve each addition. In spite of this there have been more than 4000 attempts to amend the document. Most of these have dealt with the Presidency; others were concerned with giving people more voice in national affairs. Few have been directed at the Supreme Court, which is a check on the acts of "the President, Congress, the states, the counties, the municipalities, and the lower courts, preserving the fundamental tenets of our American system of government."

It's good the Constitution isn't easy to change, when we recall some of the measures that have been suggested: The complete abolition of the states, and the division of our country into four sections; changing its name to the "United States of the World"; limiting the size of fortunes; prohibition of duelling, divorces, and polygamy; taxing of exports; giving the President a life term; allowing the President to veto state laws; and permitting citizens to overrule the Supreme Court.

Other proposed amendments concerned marriage; prohibiting a minister of the gospel from holding a political office; the taking away from any American, who accepted honors from a foreign ruler or country, his right to vote; permitting the government to take away private property in time of war, without repayment—all these suggestions and countless others failed to become part of the highest law of our land.

Signing of the Constitution, from a painting by J. B. Stearns done in 1850. The signing took place on Sept. 17, 1787, just 165 years ago next Wednesday.

AFTER the Constitution was ratified, it was taken to New York, then the seat of government, next to Philadelphia, when that city served as the capital, and finally to Washington. Until 1921 it was kept in a safe in the State Department, when President Harding ordered it deposited in the Library of Congress.

Constitution Day, Sept. 17, has been observed more often in Philadelphia than in any other place. For this city has its famous Independence Hall where both the Declaration and the Constitution was framed. The centennial celebration of the signing of the Constitution was a notable event in Philadelphia, in September, 1887. President Cleveland, his Cabinet, many governors and the diplomatic corps reviewed a long parade; the President delivered an address which ended "May others who follow us rejoice in our fidelity and in our jealous love of constitutional liberty."

Today in most states and in many cities Constitution Day is observed with special programs. And now it's more of a privilege than ever before to live under this time-tested set of laws, the American Constitution, which the British Prime Minister, William Gladstone, once declared "the most wonderful work ever struck off at a given time by the brain and purpose of man."

Tremendous Trifles

Prison Founded a Colony

By Lewis Belmore Sage

THE LAST of the 13 colonies to be settled was Georgia. In 1933, Georgia's first city, Savannah, was founded. It happened because an English general had a friend who had been sent to a debtor's prison.

This man died in one of the debtor's prisons that were a dark blot upon the England of the time. It was not the first time that the squalor of these prisons had taken its toll, but the results of this man's death were far-reaching. He had a friend who was both a humanitarian and an influential man. He was Gen. James Edward Oglethorpe, whose name is even today revered in the state of Georgia.

The death of his friend surprised and shocked Oglethorpe. He investigated the English debtor's prisons and was horrified at what he found. Many were confined there who had been unable to pay their debts.

through no fault of their own. Here they lived wretched and degrading lives that usually broke their spirit and their health and rendered them unfit for any further useful life. Many did not even live to be released.

The generous and sympathetic nature of Oglethorpe was moved to try to better the condition of the unfortunate debtors. He conceived the plan of establishing a self-supporting colony of the poor unfortunates in America. To this end he devoted his time and energy, winning the co-operation of English officials and soliciting funds to finance the initial costs of the colony. The sincerity of his plea won from King George a charter for a new colony to be administered by Oglethorpe for the benefit of the poor and the persecuted. In honor of the king, it was to be called Georgia.

In 1732, the great adventure began. Oglethorpe sailed with 120 "worthy and deserving poor" to begin new lives of self-respect in the wilderness of America. Savannah was founded, and the hard-working, industrious colonists, freed from the horrors of an English debtor's prison, amply justified the faith of their leader and benefactor.

It was a unique humanitarian venture that started when a man died in debtor's prison!

Pet PARADE

MUCH HARD WORK went into the perfecting of the present day Boston terrier. His type probably started from a cross of English bulldog and the white English terrier, followed by considerable scientific breeding, line-breeding and inbreeding. Today the Boston is a fine dog with clean cut head, lustrous brindle or black coloring with pure white markings, gentle dark eyes, and a body resembling more that of the terrier than the bulldog.

As a rule this dog has a kind and sweet disposition. However, he is lively, determined, and has courage beyond his diminutive size and fighting power. He should not be encouraged to fight for he might get hurt.

Being small and short-coated, the Boston makes an ideal pet for the person who likes to travel and take his dog along with him.

ALWAYS PREPARE any puppy for a trip if he has never traveled before or if you know he is inclined to get car-sick. Do not feed him from six to eight hours before the ride, and air him just before you start. About 10 minutes before departing, give him a three to five-grain sodium bromide capsule. Place it far back in his mouth and hold muzzle and lower jaw together but only partly closed so he can swallow. If you clamp his mouth shut, he will not be able to receive the capsule into his stomach.

Let the pup travel in a cardboard box, at least until you are certain he won't spit up frothy saliva or vomit. Don't scold him if he does, however. Starting and stopping, swaying, watching flying scenery and hearing strange noises makes many pets ill. Let him out for exercise now and then and give only two or three teaspoons of water every three or four hours unless the weather is unduly hot.

COCKERS and other dogs with long ears are endangered in the late summer by barbed particles of dry grass which may enter their ears, and, in some cases, their eyes.

Watch your dog carefully. When he shakes his head frequently and seems to want to scratch his ears more than is normal, take a good look. If you suspect that a piece of the barbed grass is lodged in his ears put a little luke-warm olive oil in the ears. Better still, take him to a veterinarian.

Wertz Home Attracts Crowds

THREE hundred and fifty potential home buyers have passed through the Contemporary Early American home located at 220 Tivoli Dr., Naples, being presented by Donald E. Wertz, builder and general contractor, in the first week of open house.

The co-ordinated molding of Early American charm and modern functionalism and utility in a compact 960-sq.-ft. design have met with an eager and popular acceptance by small family units of moderate means.

Anaheim Building Permits Tripled

RAPID GROWTH of Anaheim as the "City of Good Living" was reflected yesterday in the announcement that building permits for single-family dwellings issued during the first eight months of this year were triple in total valuation the aggregate for the same period of 1951.

Figures reported by the Anaheim Chamber of Commerce, in its home promotion program, listed permits for 406 homes at a total value of $4,182,300 from January through August of this year, compared with 136 at $1,346,250 for the same period a year ago.

A considerable increase was shown also in comparison of permits issued for construction of duplex residences.

For the first eight months of 1952, duplex permits in Anaheim totaled 10 at an aggregate valuation of $114,000. In the same period of last year, there were only half as many—5 permits valued at a total of $56,500.

There was a decline in construction of three-unit residential buildings, the chamber disclosed, in keeping with the growing character of the community as a city of single-family homes, nestling among orange groves and the trim factory structures of Orange County's industrial center.

Permits for three-family homes during the first eight months of 1952 dwindled to three at a total valuation of $37,000, compared with four valued at $76,000 in the corresponding period of 1951.

The chamber's housing committee is sponsoring a community-wide campaign to aid visitors and home-seekers in Anaheim.

Information on jobs, facilities and home developments has been compiled and is being systematically disseminated by the civic leaders to bring workers, jobs and homes together.

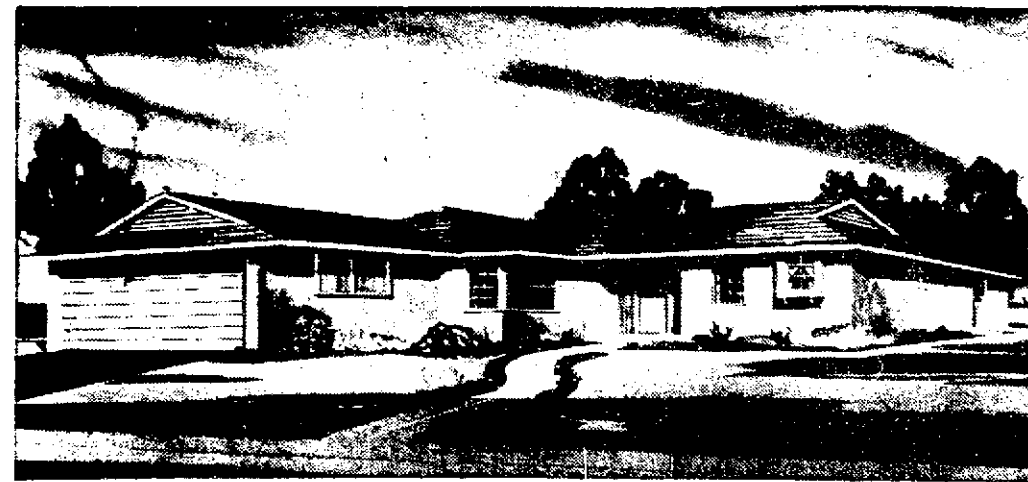

A spokesman for the housing committee reported hundreds of home-seekers are availing themselves of the community service by calling at the newly-erected, ranch-style "Welcome House" on Manchester-Firestone Blvd., between Loara and Lincoln Sts.

Questions are answered at the "Welcome House," regarding schools, churches, shopping districts, parks, plants and recreational facilities, and literature covering a tour of the community is provided.

Similarly the visitor is guided in his search by a "Welcome Way," which has been outlined clearly with special markers along main streets of Anaheim, leading to points of interest and the area's many new modern homes developments.

'Pilot Home'

Work has started on a "pilot" home to find out whether the new prefabricated concrete panels already being used in industrial buildings are not also suitable for small dwellings, reports H. V. Embelen, general manager, Builders' Control Service, Los Angeles. In industry, says Embelen, use of the panels, which consist of two layers of wire-reinforced concrete around a filling of insulation material such as wood or glass fibre, has effected a 30 per cent reduction in building costs.

ANAHEIM is the locale of this dwelling, one of many nearing completion in new Bonded Homes development at East and La Palma Sts., just north of Center St. Each home has three-bedrooms, 1½ baths, more than 13000-sq. ft. of livable area plus porch and garage. Prices are from $13,550 to $13,750. Three furnished model homes are open every day from 10 a. m. to 8 p. m.

Typical of the delightful ranch type homes which are being built in Orange Gardens, new residential development in the popular Garden Grove district, in this three-bedroom house. According to the builder, I. W. Lenney, a total of 72 homes are being built in this tract, 24 of which have already been completed. A model home, tastefully furnished with Early American furniture and displaying the numerous luxury features with which all these Lenney-built homes are equipped is open daily from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m.

Bulk of Los Altos Homes Are Sold Out in Advance

MILTON J. BROCK, one of the nation's biggest builders of homes, commercial, industrial and institutional buildings, who is associated with Lloyd S. Whaley in his Los Altos Village development, is very happy with the results of his first group of homes in this area.

He is happy largely because the bulk of the 182 homes now under construction in Los Altos Village have already been sold, well in advance of the completion date. In fact only about 50 of the popular homes remain as of this date.

Visitors to the M. J. Brock

& Sons section of Los Altos Village have marvelled at the unusual amount of detail that goes into the homes, and many have been the comments regarding the quality of construction and the workmanship that is plain for even the layman to see.

The Brock homes accomplish two basic objectives, according to DeWitt Lee of Walker & Lee, sales agents for Los Altos Village: (1) They use quality building techniques throughout, and (2) they achieve the maximum amount of eye appeal through the use of smart architects, who have an honest desire to turn out something different and better for the buying public.

Brock homes may be seen at the present time in that section of Los Altos Village which extends from north of Stearns Street, south to Atherton Street, approximately seven blocks east of Bellflower Boulevard. They are located near the campus of Long Beach State College, and are also close to the Lloyd S. Whaley Los Altos Business District.

Furnished model homes in

Bonded Homes

FIRST HOMES will be completed within two weeks in the new Bonded Homes development at East and La Palma Sts., just north of Center St. in Anaheim. It was announced today by C. Fred Smith, developer.

Reflecting a continued strong market for quality dwellings, more than $500,000 worth of the homes have been sold in the new community in the few weeks advance showings have been held, Smith said.

Priced from $13,550 to $13,750, and available to veterans and nonveterans on either FHA or VA terms, the three-bedroom, 1½-bath houses are designed along the easily informal indoor-outdoor motif so suitable to the balmy climate of Orange County.

Architect William M. Bray, member of the American Institute of Architects, designed the homes so that the living room faces the rear. Sliding glass doors look out and open on a spacious covered concrete patio or porch, giving the room an expanded vista in fact and new dimensions in effect.

Representative of the many styles available are three models, furnished completely by the Don L. Andrews Furniture Co. They are open for inspection every day of the week from 10 a. m. to 8 p. m.

Living rooms have such features as wood paneling on feature walls, and wood-burning fireplaces with mantel details.

Kitchens have electric exhaust fans over ranges, real ceramic tile drainboards, Waste King garbage pulverizers, and large breakfast areas.

More than 1300 sq. ft. in a livable area characterizes each home. Each is built on the center hall plan.

Among the features are Payne forced-air heating, Pullman-type lavatories, Thermador electric bathroom heaters, and large double-door wardrobe closets.

In addition, each home has indoor and exterior planters, electric bathroom heaters, covered base linoleum in kitchens and baths, exterior doors weather-stripped, and No. 1 oak floors.

The streets end in cul-de-sacs, eliminating through traffic so that children might play in safety.

The property is a half mile north of Center St. in Anaheim, and can be reached most easily by going north on East St.

Los Altos Village may be seen by driving east seven blocks to Atherton Street from Bellflower Boulevard. They are open until 9 daily, according to sales agent's Walker & Lee. These latter homes are in the section being built by Mac-Bright, Inc.

Must Fight Bug of Sales Resistance

By Newt Todd
Realty and Building Editor

IN THE field of real estate, as in some other commercial pursuits, a little bug called "sales resistance" has reared its ugly head, according to Virgil G. Baker, Minneapolis newspaperman.

Baker contends that the prospective customer has a tendency to say "yes, but . . ." or "well, I don't know, I'd like to talk to Granddad first . . ." and the sale goes out the window.

It's no epidemic, of course, but the lush days of the later years of World War II and the period that immediately followed, when a man or woman could make a fast buck and would let go of it just as fast, seem to be gone out the window, too.

There's no down trend much apparent and firms with aggressive personnel will be marking up 1952 as one of their biggest business years. But these days they have to work for it. There are reasons, of course.

For one thing, the nation's builders of homes have produced millions of new houses since the end of World War II, which has taken off some of the pressure for just any kind of shelter. And there's been a lot of remodeling done.

New building materials and products, particularly such things as kitchen and bath equipment, floor and wall finishes, and the tendency of builders and architects to get together for a more realistic approach to planning (even of the least expensive new houses) have a lot to do with it.

Another factor in prospective buyers' resistance, Baker points out, is reluctance to part easily with the much larger initial equities (down payments) that have been required for several years now. Lower down payments contribute to less selective buying.

Artificial controls (decrees of political government) is another factor causing sales resistance and, currently, there is an apparently short-term factor of economic dislocation caused by the shifting of many manufacturers from civilian to defense production.

From a long-range viewpoint, the housing market is still far from saturated, however, and instead of looking to retrenchment of operations (beyond defense material saving requirements) builders and dealers are looking to continued improvement in products to take the bugs out of the sales situation.

When subdivision or other types of buyers are asked how they like their homes these days too often the answer is, "well, it's fine as far as it goes, but . . ."

Some of the "buts" were . . . Kitchen too small . . . hate to take the lawnmower out through the kitchen (where house had no outside stairs to basement) . . . no porch . . . basement damp . . . round furnace ducts take up too much room in basement . . . only partly sodded . . . yard's a muddy mess . . . no shrubs . . . still have to buy blind and curtain rods.

Experience has proved to real estate dealers and builders that "if the little woman likes the place" the bug of sales resistance (instead of the sale) usually flies out of the window.

NPA OK's 162 New Projects

ALLOTMENTS of controlled materials for the construction of 162 commercial, religious, municipal, and entertainment projects with an estimated cost of more than $121,000,000 were announced recently by the National Production Authority.

NPA said most of these allotments were made just prior to the steel strike.

In accordance with new regulations pertaining to the post-strike distribution of steel, NPA has provided that fourth quarter allotments will be valid for deliveries of materials scheduled through February, 1953.

Freeway Program Booms

ADEQUATE supplies of materials and labor will be available during the remainder of 1952 to permit full speed continuation of the current freeway and highway program throughout Los Angeles and other counties of Southern California, W. D. Shaw, general manager of the Associated General Contractors, said yesterday.

In Los Angeles County there is currently $47,308,600 of state highways under construction. This includes $44,125,500 of freeways, $587,000 of expressways or divided highways and $2,596,100 of ordinary two-lane roads.

Total construction of this type in the 12 southern counties amounts to $81,847,600. This is comprised of $55,495,100 of freeway contracts, $14,219,300 for expressway work, and the balance of $12,134,200 for ordinary two-lane roads.

The amount of state highway construction now in progress in other southern counties includes: Orange County, $2,921,900 of freeways, $1,049,900 of expressways, and $858,300 of two-lane roads.

Funds Reserved for Building

AN ADDITIONAL $5.5 million in federal funds have been reserved for school construction in "federally affected" defense areas, the Federal Security Agency announced recently.

By "federally affected" is meant those communities adjacent to defense plants or military installations and activities.

This latest figure brings the total amount reserved thus far for school purposes to approximately $106,000,000 out of the total Congressional appropriation of $195,000,000.

Exotic Materials Used

ALDON CONSTRUCTION CO. imports Philippine mahogany and Japanese ash, despite high tariffs, for living room wall paneling in its homes at Lakewood Plaza, officials announced yesterday in a report on the development north of Spring St., between Studebaker Rd. and Palo Verde Ave., in the Lakewood district. The exotic paneling, used for one entire wall of every dwelling, is among a number of luxury materials secured by Aldon for its varied stylings. These include genuine Arizona flagstone from Arizona for the fireplace. Officials reported large numbers have commented on the use of such items, exemplified in the community's seven model homes, four of which are fully furnished by Aaron Schultz furniture stores of Long Beach. The homes are on display daily and Sunday from 10 a. m. to 8 p. m. The dwellings, in 20 different elevations, all priced at $12,000, are offered to veterans for down payments of $825, plus impounds and closing costs, with monthly terms of $59 for principal and interest. Liberal terms are available also for non-veterans. Living rooms, in line with the Southland's love of indoor-outdoor living, face rear terraces through French doors that open in a wall of windows.

CAPE STYLE—This "Cape Anne" exterior is typical of the 29 varied elevations included among the 516 homes at Aldon Construction Co.'s sixth unit of Lakewood Plaza, north of East Spring St., between Studebaker Rd. and Palo Verde Ave., in the Lakewood district.

Obispo Park to Open

OBISPO PARK TRACT, new residential area at 6490 Obispo Ave., holds their grand opening today. The new tract is located opposite Long Beach Obispo Park, between Lakewood Blvd. and Cherry St., south of Artesia.

The six models to be shown are all three-bedroom or two-bedroom and den homes, some with bath and a half, and fireplace. New luxury features incorporated in these new homes include colored bath fixtures, Venetian blinds, tile bath with stall shower, covered formica drainboards, garbage disposal, Armstrong linoleum, concrete drive, double garage and service porches.

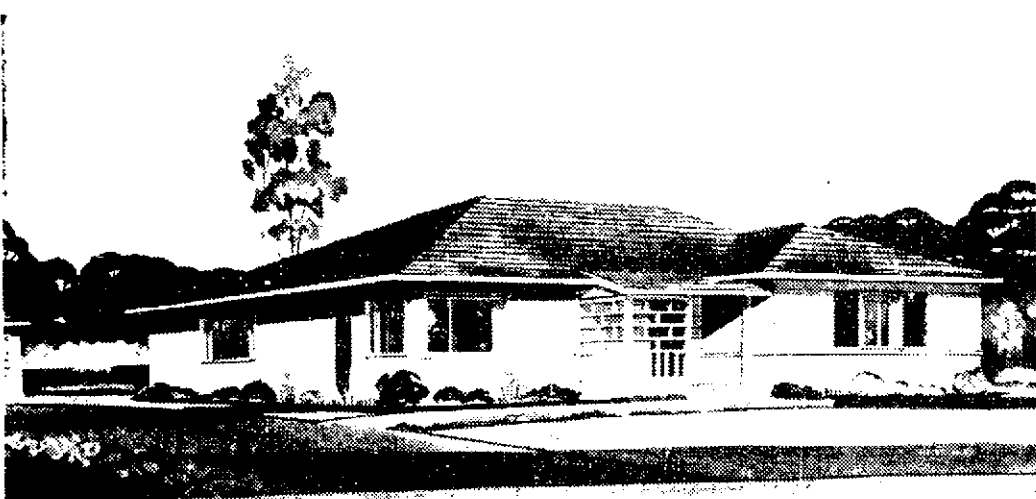

Living rooms face the rear with adjoining paved terraces in many plans. Kitchens are extra large and include dinette. Twenty-eight exterior plans are offered, and the buyer selects the interior decorating colors as well as the exterior colors.

Obispo Park is conveniently located near schools and fine shopping centers and all improvements are in.

Prices start at $9950, and lowest financing is available including GI, Cal Vet, FHA, and conventional terms, according to Southern California Builders, developers and builders of Obispo Park.

Affiliated

Affiliated organizations of the National Association of Real Estate Boards include the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers, Institute of Farm Brokers, American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers, Institute of Real Estate Management, Society of Industrial Realtors, Women's Council and Secretaries Council.

A good selection among three-bedroom models is still available at Carson Park Mutual Homes in fast-growing Lakewood, the community combining attractions of country living with the conveniences of the city. Low down payments prevail for nonveterans.

Hodges Co. Sets Sales Record

THE MONTH of August reflected the largest volume of transactions in the history of the Rex L. Hodges Realty Co., according to Bill Barber, president. He reported 121 transactions totalling in excess of $1,200,000. This is the second million dollar month in 1952. Sales concluded were of all types but were principally represented in homes in the $10,000 to $15,000 class.

Activity was not concentrated in any particular area but was quite general in the areas served by the Hodges company which has nine offices in Long Beach as well as offices in Garden Grove and Bellflower. Barber and Hodges were both complimentary regarding the activities of their 50 salesman staff and of particular interest was the activity of Fred Bowles over in the Santa Fe Ave. office who had a sale a day for a solid week aggregating approximately $70,000.

The Hodges Company has always made a practice of taking a weekly inspection tour of all of their listings as well as outstanding listings of other brokers and officials of the company believe that this inspection plan contributes to the overall volume of sales.

Carson Park Has Good Selection of Homes Left

FOLLOWING last week end's smash opening of the third unit at Carson Park Mutual Homes in beautiful Lakewood, officials of the fast-selling development announce that a good selection of two of the most popular models of three-bedroom homes is still available to nonveteran buyers.

Officials emphasized that the terms of $895 down at Carson Park Mutual Homes is the best deal in the area to nonveterans for the functional, attractively designed three-bedroom homes.

Sales headquarters for Carson Park Mutual Homes at 6741 East Carson St., just east of the City College, will be open daily from 9 a. m. to 10 p. m.

Officials announced all two-bedroom models at the development are sold out for the present.

Situated in the heart of one of Southern California's fastest growing communities, Carson Park offers residents the attractions of country living coupled with the conveniences of the city.

Community attractions include public transportation connecting all major metropolitan centers, an 18-hole golf course and country club, an archery range, handball courts, within 10 miles of some of the Southland's finest beaches, Pan American Park with acres of picnicking grounds and sports facilities, churches of all major denominations and fine new schools with classes from kindergarten through college levels.

Carson Park homes are constructed under continuous FHA inspection to insure top quality in materials and workmanship.

Among features cited by builders are cedar shingle roofs, bay windows, steel sash windows, sheltered entrance porches, detailed trim on shutters, trellised porches and doors, hardwood slab doors throughout, full double garages, front, side and rear lawns planted by builder, rock wool insulation, 57,000 BTU dual floor furnaces, electric heaters in bathrooms, all-steel kitchen cabinets, double-drain sinks with laminated heatproof, stainproof plastic top drainboards, built-in electric garbage pulverizers, in-laid linoleum, separate service porch with laundry facilities, hardwood floors, spacious wardrobe and walk-in closets, rubber tile floor with cove base in bathroom.

Builders to Hear Collins

L. A. COLLINS SR., editorial columnist for The Independent, has chosen the topic "Problems Ahead," for his talk Monday night before members of the Long Beach Builders' Exchange at the Lafayette Hotel, according to President Lowell Clarke and Program Chairman Bill Punt.

Manager Jess B. Farmer has announced that the State Builders' Exchange Convention will be held Nov. 6-8 in Bakersfield. Also, that a free night school will start on Sept. 22 for the benefit of architects, craftsmen, building foremen and inspectors. It will consist of seminary and discussions concerning the problems, new developments and technical aspects of each building trade.

The following plans and specifications are now on file at the Builders' Exchange office: Enlargement of the Department of Fish and Game laboratory at Terminal Island, 2 p. m., Sept. 17, and warehouse building at the Norwalk State Hospital, 2 p. m., Sept. 17. Enterprise Junior High School in Compton, 3 p. m., Sept. 19.

Heavy Sales

Unusually heavy sales at Norpark Homes, now Anaheim residential development, were ascribed this week to the fact that 37 of 47 homes in the first unit will be ready for occupancy before the fall school term opens.

Nominate Latham

ROBERT E. LATHAM, engineer with the Long Beach Department of Building and Safety, has been nominated as president of the American Association of Engineers, Long Beach Chapter. It was announced yesterday by Secretary Norbert W. Dean.

Other nominations include Dean, vice president; Henry Simmons and Ivan P. Wheaton Jr., secretary, and John E. Morton and E. M. Edwards, treasurer. Nomination committee consisted of past presidents.

Monthly meeting of the organization will take place Thursday night at the Lafayette Hotel's University Club and will consist of the discussion of current business topics and more nominations from the floor.

Presidential-nominee Latham will show a series of colored slides of the Bakersfield-Tehachapi earthquake damage at the conclusion of the session.

It's Been a Hot Year!

OF THOUSANDS of pictures taken this summer, PARADE thinks this one best told the story of the unusual heat that plagued the nation.

In Lewiston, Me., an elephant named Babe decided she'd had enough of the 90° weather.

Babe, part of a traveling show, simply lay down in the street to take a 20-minute rest. It didn't worry her that she was blocking traffic.

Motorists fumed and fretted, a sweltering traffic cop tried to untangle the jam. Then, refreshed, she climbed back in her trailer, and Lewiston returned to normal.

NOW, TIDE WASHES CLOTHES WHITER THAN YOU CAN BLEACH THEM!

Yes, TIDE gets clothes
WHITER than bleach alone...
WHITER than bleach added to any soap or "detergent"!

New TIDE miracle! No need to bleach —except for stubborn stains!

YES! New laboratory tests prove that Tide actually washes clothes whiter than you can bleach them! (Even if you soak them in bleach overnight!) In fact, Tide washes whiter than any other washing product with a bleach added! It's washday's big news. Try it—and when you see how much whiter your clothes come with Tide alone, you'll never want to put bleach in the wash water again!

CLEANER CLOTHES, TOO! Tide gets clothes cleaner than any soap of any kind. No soap gets out so much grimy dirt, yet leaves clothes so free of dulling film! There's nothing like Tide for washday miracles!

NO OTHER WASHING PRODUCT CAN PROMISE ALL THIS!

So Kind To Hands! So Safe For All Washable Colors!

SO KIND, SO GENTLE! Yes, with all its cleaning and whitening action, Tide has an amazing new mildness. Not even the leading "detergents" made especially for dishwashing are so gentle and kind to hands as Tide!

ACTUALLY BRIGHTENS COLORS! For dramatic proof of Tide's safety, watch soap-dulled colors come brighter after just one Tide wash! Yes, Ma'am! You can trust even your daintiest wash prints and pastels to Tide's gentle care.

SO THRIFTY TO USE! Such a little Tide makes such oceans of rich, long-lasting suds . . . goes so far in hardest water, it's a miracle of economy. Get Tide today, and next washday you'll rinse out cleaner, whiter clothes—with no bleaching!

DR. BENJAMIN M. DUGGAR: He didn't want to be remembered for mushrooms . . .

Too Young to Quit

PEARL RIVER, N.Y.
ON A JUNE afternoon in 1943, Dr. Benjamin M. Duggar walked homeward across the sun-dappled campus of the University of Wisconsin.

He had just given his last botany lecture. Dr. Duggar was nearing 71, and state law required that he retire.

He was thinking about the things he could do now that he was free—maybe break 90 on the golf course or bring in that granddaddy bass over at Round Lake.

When he got home, Dr. Duggar scarcely glanced at the mail.

He threw aside a note from Dr. Yella-pragada Subba Row, director of research at Lederle Laboratories, offering an advisor's job in the search for new wonder drugs.

But after dinner, the doctor opened one of his scholarly journals. He read a passage marked by his wife, Elise:

"Dr. Duggar will probably be best remembered for his noteworthy inquiry into the physiology of mushrooms . . ."

He Wrote a Note

Dr. Duggar winced . . . to be remembered only for mushroom inquiry when many of the men in his field were working daily to cure human diseases. He picked up his pen.

● "I would like very much to work with you at Lederle," he wrote Dr. Subba Row.

● In 1948, five years after he had "retired," Dr. Duggar made the world forget his standing as a mushroom authority.

From his work at Lederle came the wonder drug—aureomycin—which is now used all over the world to treat a great variety of infections from boils to Rocky Mountain spotted fever.

● And today, at 80, he's still going strong at the Lederle labs here.

NEW YORK CITY

WHAT HAPPENS when a couple of beautiful girls model $37,000 worth of fur coats on a hot day?

Here's what happened to Conover Girls Janie Williams and Betty McMullens—two of New York's leading fashion models:

On a sizzling late summer afternoon, they posed for fashion pictures. A sweltering crowd gathered. Some observers were amused, some were sympathetic.

Here are some of the comments:

- "Whew! I wouldn't do it for a million!"
- "They'd have to give me a coat!"
- "I'd stand anything for all that mink!"
- "Why don't they work in an air-conditioned studio?" (Reason: photographers like real outdoor settings.)

The girls, used to it all, had no comment. They were the coolest people in the crowd.

PANTING dog looked at furred girls, then barked.

"I'LL BET she has nothing on under it," this man muttered, mopping brow.

I'm married to

Mrs. Frank Leahy, the gridiron's first lady, tells her own

'I'M SO LONELY FOR THE KIDS.'

At their home in Long Beach, Ind., the Leahys pose with seven of their eight children. (They were afraid the sun would be too strong for baby Chris.) Frank misses them (see story) on trips as Notre Dame coach.

LONG BEACH, Ind.

ONE QUESTION I am often asked, simply because I am Coach Frank Leahy's wife, is this:

"Which is the greatest Notre Dame team you have seen?"

That's a hard question, because Frank has produced four national championship teams since he started coaching at Notre Dame in 1941. He rates the 1949 eleven with the best. But I favor the 1951 squad which lost two games.

A woman will naturally like a team that hasn't won so much, and yet has tried so hard. You feel more for a team like that.

People also ask me who has been my favorite Notre Dame player. Again, while Frank has helped develop many wonderful All-Americans, the one boy who always stuck out in my mind was Paul Lillis, captain in 1941. He was a tackle and a fine Notre Dame representative.

I remember Paul vividly from that season 11 years ago. It was Frank's first at Notre Dame. Maybe I was more impressionable then. Anyway, Paul reminded me of a typical American boy. He was a fine leader, too.

As the wife of the football coach at Notre Dame, and as the mother of eight children—from 16 years down to less than six months—I should be leading a life full of thunder and excitement. Actually, it is fairly quiet.

These days Frank does not bring his football home with him to the extent that he did when we were first married. Our home is 38 miles from the campus at South Bend, and, although football is in the air 12 months a year, we manage to take it in stride.

Frank's Not Tense

FRANK IS NOT as tense as he was years ago, and I believe it is because of our increase in family. Besides, he can discuss things now with little Frankie, who is not so little at 16. He's five feet, ten inches and showing every sign of being a good quarterback.

As a result, little Frankie makes something of a pig of himself in conversation, and he gets the girls mad at him once in a while. He talks sports with Frank until it becomes somewhat monotonous for the distaff side. We've had to shush Frankie up several times.

We eat in two shifts at our house. What I call the teen-agers—Frankie, Sue, 14, Flossie, 12, Jerry, 9, and Jimmy, 5—generally dine in one shift. The babies—Fred, 3, Mary, 18 months (named after Frank's mother who has helped with my problems more than I can tell), and little Chris—eat in the other.

Sometimes, a baby qualifies for the teen-age shift, depending upon circumstances. Every intimate story of life in a coach's family

thing is not as systematized in my home as my methodical husband would like it to be. (As a coach, he has to be definite in what he does. He can't afford to make mistakes, but I can.) Nevertheless, matters work out on a fairly organized basis in our household.

The main thing is that Frank still likes to come home. The first words he said when he came in the door after a recent business trip were, "I'm so lonely for the kids."

Coaches, incidentally, have to spend a lot of time on the road—often driving over icy roads in winter or riding in trains, airplanes and buses. That's why our youngest was named for St. Christopher, the patron saint of travelers.

No Dull Moments

THERE ARE no dull moments for us. Flossie loves horses and would like to have a ranch in Colorado. Five-year-old Jimmy, the family's politician, is always inviting people in for something to eat. Sue is the domestic type—they all go to her with their problems.

Naturally, I could go on describing all the children (who are growing up all too quickly), but it would require a book. They keep me so busy that I don't realize the football season is in full bloom until Frank starts staying on the Notre Dame campus two or three nights a week instead of coming home to us.

- When the games start, we make a family outing of them. Frank isn't home, of course, because he stays over in South Bend. The kids get up about 7 a.m. on Saturdays. We have a quick breakfast, and then we pack a picnic lunch of fried chicken to eat at the game. Some of the children are nervous, especially Frankie and Flossie who are getting old enough to know how important football can be to their dad.

- We generally go down in three cars with six or seven to a car. Different couples in Long Beach drive us down. One day we had a flat tire on the way to South Bend. We were late for the game. Frank didn't really believe the story about the tire. "There's no excuse for anybody to be late to a kickoff," he said. I'm never late to a game anymore.

- After a game, Frank comes home with us for a bowl of soup and some toast. He always holds his press conference first, of course, but then he tries to escape the innumerable well-meaning queries of "How did it go today?" and "Why did you send that man in?"

We have lots of company, especially during the season. If we know someone well, we entertain him in the family manner which means he has to accept the children or anything that may happen. After home games, there's usually a football crowd at our house. My life as a football coach's wife could be divided into two parts. The first period was when Frank assisted at Fordham, and then became head coach at Boston College. At that stage, we had more time for the so-called glamorous life of attending social affairs. Then I found out you can't do all that and build towards the more solid future with your children.

- In fact, I've been so occupied with the family that I haven't had time to work on Frank's scrap books since 1944. Back in Boston, I used to sit up until three or four in the morning, pasting up clippings about Frank and his team. We have a box about four-feet high and bulging at the ends. One of these days, little Frankie or the others will have to bring us up to date on the clippings.

- I met Frank on a blind date at Fordham in 1934. A graduate of Notre Dame, where he had been a coaching protege of Knute Rockne's, he was assisting Jimmy Crowley at Fordham. I lived in Brooklyn where I had attended Erasmus Hall High School. We were married in 1935.

- Even then there was never any question in my mind as to Frank's unusual ability. You kind of know in the beginning whether a man is a go-getter or not. Frank was always that. Frank's folks were of moderate means, and he made up his mind to be successful.

Frank Coaches Frankie

WITH A NEW football season currently under way, one thing I'll miss is seeing little Frankie play for the local school. He has transferred to a Wisconsin prep school to stay with his favorite coach. You might think it strange that I should miss seeing him play football, as many mothers shy away from watching their children in body contact sports.

But I know one thing. They'll play if they want to. And they could be injured doing anything. I believe in letting children go according to their desires, within reason. It would break Frankie's heart if he didn't at least try to play football. It might break big Frank's, too, because he believes football does a great deal for a boy in later life.

Frank and Frankie are very close. After a game, they will walk off the field together, talking it over. Frank has taught Frankie a lot about the game. Before Frankie played last year, Frank would take him down in the basement and teach him pivoting and feinting. And sometimes Sue would line up in the formation. I used to do it. Frank hasn't started working on young Jerry yet, but I have an idea he figures Frankie will teach Jerry a lot of football and so on down the line...

In spite of my large family and the many drains on my time, I do find breathers for bridge on Wednesdays. Then I belong to clubs, although I am not too active in them.

Occasionally, I face a minor crisis at home. Some years ago, when I had only four children, Frank invited one of his favorite people, Sid Luckman (then with the Chicago Bears), to South Bend to help the passers. A practical joker friend of Frank's—John McGuire—told Sid there was a magnificent diner on the train from Chicago to South Bend. But it was only a local, and Sid missed breakfast. He arrived just in time for practice and missed lunch. Frank phoned he was bringing Sid to dinner.

At that time no car was available, and so I could not dash to town for extra provisions. We had only vegetables and a bit of meat in the house. I concocted a stew, a dish I'm usually proud of. But this one was full of lumps.

Hungry as he was, Sid proved to be a gentleman. Nevertheless, he glanced at me quizzically when I asked him to return some time for another meal. He hasn't accepted the challenge.

Anyway, that is one of the hazards of being a football coach's wife. You should be able to feed an All-American on short notice. I mean in addition to the eight growing All-Americans that Frank and I have at home now.

She was in her garden, and . . .

Then bang went the Iron Curtain

BY ALLAN GOULD as told to KARL KOHRS

CLERK Anny Ney, who works for Steinhauser, saw Reds kidnap West zone customs guard.

SHIFT cost Siegfried Wilke 60% of his farm. Klaus Brinkmeyer (right) works for him.

PASTOR Thiele has helped villagers escape Russians, vows never to leave neighborhood.

OBERLIN, Germany
NE SUNNY morning not long ago, Frau D - - stepped out of the back door of her home in Staaken, a suburb on the new border between the British and Russian zones.

She walked 20 feet to her neat garden, and pulled up some carrots to cook for supper.

About 5 o'clock there was a knock on the door. There stood two Russian policemen.

• "Frau D - -," said one, "you will come along with us, please. You are under arrest."

• "Arrest?" gasped Frau D - -, "but what for?"

• "You have transported food out of the Russian zone."

"But I have never been in the Russian zone," said Frau D - -.

"This morning," the policeman said, "did you not take some carrots out of your garden?"

"Yes, of course."

"Your garden," said the policeman, "is in the Russian zone. Now, please come along."

Frau D - - was taken to Potsdam prison. Four weeks later, her pastor, Johannes Thiele, found out where she was, and persuaded the Russians to free her.

Overnight Change

THIS is what might happen to you if you lived near the Iron Curtain today. I talked to many people in this Berlin suburb, and all their stories were equally fantastic.

Until June 1, things weren't so bad, they told me. In Staaken, the dividing line between the Russian and British zones bulged some 400 yards toward the West. That put most of the suburb in the British sector.

Then, overnight, the boundary was changed. The British needed a new road to the airport, and so they traded ground with the Russians. Now the new boundary runs right down the middle of Staaken—and, so to speak, right through the middle of the lives of the people who live here.

- Take Erich Steinhauser, for example. His general store is right on the line. He sells everything from gasoline to soap.

- Before the change, Erich told me, he sold as much as 5,000 litres of gasoline a month. Now he's lucky if he sells 500 litres. Germans used to stroll over, unnoticed, from the Russian zone. But now, they don't come into his store anymore. They're afraid of being seen by Russian guards.

- One day, two Russian officers came in to buy some soap. Within five minutes, East zone police charged across the border and arrested the officers. Erich had to chase after them to get his money.

- I heard another story from a boy of 10, Klaus Brinkmeyer. The hour the boundary change went into effect, Klaus said, he was in a school-located in what was then the East zone.

Without warning, the door was flung open and in marched Russian police. Swinging rubber hoses, they drove out the West zone 'kids. Klaus got whacked across the back for not moving fast enough.

He Doesn't Scare

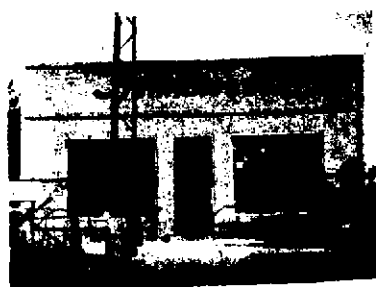

BUT THERE is one man in Staaken whom the Russians can't bully. He is Pastor Thiele, of the Evangelical Church, who helped free Frau D - - from Potsdam prison.

When the new boundary line cut between his church and his parsonage, Pastor Thiele tried to move to the East zone, where his church now stands.

- Friends finally talked him out of it, saying the Russians probably would pretend not to notice if he crossed the border "illegally" to preach in his church. Why? There is a great but secret trend to religion even among the Communists.

- Strangely enough, they were right. Pastor Thiele walks unmolested to his church every Sunday. And every Sunday, too, Pastor Thiele does a good turn for his friend, the priest of the nearby Roman Catholic Church, closed by Russians.

- After Sunday service, Pastor Thiele leaves the doors of his church open. After everybody has gone, the priest and his displaced congregation quietly slip in and celebrate Mass.

ON BORDER, Steinhauser's general store has fewer and fewer customers.

LEGS...

KATHERINE HEPBURN: with Aldo Ray in "Pat and Mike," she displays shapely legs.

MARLENE DIETRICH: she started the legs trend: is still the leader.

BETTY GRABLE: she's afraid that she can't compete with new trend in movie beauties.

ARE BUSTS and shoulders shoving legs out of business? BETTY GRABLE, the girl with the $1,000,000 legs, thinks they are.

"The eyes of the film fan world have switched UP the feminine form," she declares, "and I just can't compete. I've always been able to stand on my own legs, but there are lots of women with bust lines nature didn't provide!"

Betty agrees with PARADE (Aug. 31) that more shoulders are showing in current movies.

She's right. But if glamor-leg girls are being put in the shade, they still have an audience. To find out what's really happening in the Legs Dept., PARADE made a spot check. The results should cheer you.

COLETTE MARCHAND, for example,

(better known as "Les Legs") is making her first movie in London. The Paris ballerina got the role after all her "leg publicity" in the U.S. last year.

MARLENE DIETRICH, Queen of Legs, is busy making movies in which her celebrated underplinnings look better than ever.

MONICA LEWIS, actress-songbird, won the title "Miss Leg-o-genic" from the well-researched Society of Illustrators.

... and Katie, Too

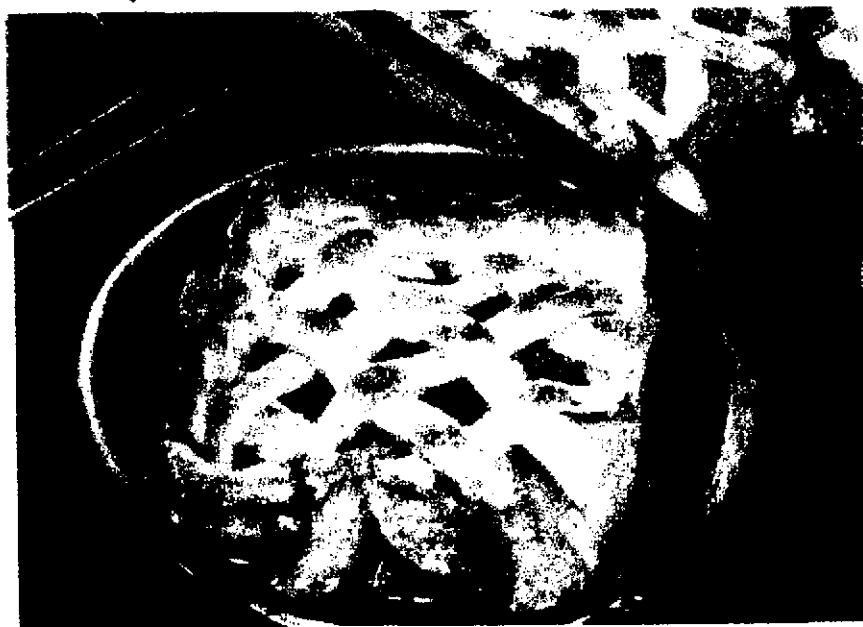

KATIE HEPBURN discarded her slacks, and delighted fans with a show of shapely gams in "African Queen" and "Pat and Mike."

Who's Running Your Schools?

The answer, an expert says, should be you...

NEW YORK. AROUND a table in an office at Teachers College, Columbia University, an unusual conference was taking place.

One of the nation's top authorities on public school administration, Dr. Paul Mort, a trigger-quick, pipe-smoking professor of education, was getting the "third degree."

• Questioning him were Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Peller, of Newark, N. J. They were asking him about all the things that bothered them as parents of two public school students—Marion, 9, and Elton, 11. And Mrs. Peller was armed with experience as past president of the Parent Teachers Assn. at her children's school.

• Suddenly, Dr. Mort changed roles. "And what has your PTA done at the school?" he asked.

"Well," said Mrs. Peller, "we've bought plants for the library and a kiln for art class."

Dr. Mort took his pipe from between his teeth: "So they're letting you play with the gadgets? Good." Then he snapped, "But sooner or later you'll have to concern yourselves with the education process, because you're so much a part of it."

This statement summarizes the message that Dr. Mort was trying to send, through the Pellers, to you—

It's Your Job

IT is high time parents (and other taxpayers, too) pitch into the job of running the schools their children attend.

The conference was arranged by PARADE for an over-all look at our schools in these first weeks of a new school year. Other articles in PARADE throughout the year will take up new ideas in education to help you understand them.

TO EMPHASIZE a point, Dr. Paul Mort, of Columbia Teachers College, gestures toward a

HERE'S THE give-and-take between the Pellers and Dr. Mort. Maybe you would ask the same questions.

MR. PELLER: "What about these new teaching methods? Take reading, for example. I have a feeling my children aren't learning to read as well as I did."

• Dr. Mort: "In a Connecticut community recently a committee of citizens was formed to study reading, because teaching methods seemed so different. They went to an education library and read up on it."

"They found that the teachers were actually holding back on the new method because of criticism. In the end, they recommended that the teachers go all out and published a booklet explaining the method to other citizens."

• "You don't have to go in and ask, 'Please, Mr. Principal, are we teaching reading the right way?' You're adult. Go and find out. The trouble with most laymen is that they are too lazy to get the information. They get together and gab and make up their minds in pure ignorance of what they're doing."

• "This business about the school being run by professionals who know all about it, and the parents and other citizens accepting the situation is changing."

"The problem of education is not a city problem. It is the problem of parents and teachers in a local school. That's where the education takes place. All the rest is mechanics."

MRS. PELLER: "Is doubling up of classes due to increased enrollment affecting our children's education?"

The Answer to Crowded Schools

DR. MORT: "It's either affecting their education, or we have been wasting a lot of money on single sessions."

MR. PELLER: "Is there any solution to this?"

Dr. Mort: "The solution is to foresee these things and make sure that housing is provided and that teachers are provided. If there's been a failure in that, then the thing to do is make it up. We have these children for a dozen years. To say we can deny them the opportunity they require and that we will be forgiven is well, we will not be forgiven."

(In questioning the Pellers about their experience with schools, Dr. Mort learned that, through PTA efforts, parents in Newark had looked at the school budget for the first time last year. The budget, the Pellers said, is set by a Board of Estimate, comprising the "city fathers" and some members of the Board of Education.)

Dr. Mort: "Most of the districts in New York State hold a town meeting every year that deals with school matters only. Every voter, whether or not he is a parent, may come. The Board of Education submits the budget. Then the voters can do anything they want to with it—raise it or lower it. When they vote it, the municipal government has nothing to say about it."

• "Don't you think you smart people could work out some way that would leave you less subject to bureaucrats and pressure?"

• "We got this idea of efficiency about 25 or 30 years ago, so that we turned everything we possibly could over to experts. And that left the members of the public nothing to do but use pressure."

• "You as parents haven't anything to do but howl and hope that your howls are louder than those of anybody else. (This state law I was telling you about operates only in small districts.)"

MRS. PELLER: "Well, is the administration of schools by boards composed of laymen a good system?"

Dr. Mort: "That's the best way that has been invented."

MRS. PELLER: "Should they be appointed or elected?"

Dr. Mort: "Elected. In our great cities, there should be some way to give citizens more control over smaller areas. We have an experiment set up in New York City where the people living in a four-square-mile area elect a local school committee. They share responsibility for decisions normally made by principals and school superintendents."

"It is an attempt to get at the problem of apathy in large cities. We've never had much experience with these large cities. They're only 50 years old. If we accept this type of remote control as the American way, well, we're just not informed."

Parents Are "Full-Time Teachers"

WHEN THE Pellers asked about homework (which Dr. Mort doesn't think necessary if teachers give children a chance to work in class) and report cards, Dr. Mort said:

"So many of your questions indicate you think schools are way out here, controlled by some wise group of people. I think of education as a partnership. I think of parents as teachers, too."

"As to report cards, there must be some means of communication between part-time teachers and full-time teachers, the parents. I would like to see the parents and other citizens sit down with the teachers and decide just what they want reported about their children's progress in school. Any short-cut to this is a failure."

SOME OF DR. MORT'S TESTS OF A GOOD SCHOOL—

- Enough teachers so that they have only 25 pupils each.
- Plenty of adults, other than competent teachers, doing useful things around the schools.
- Children obviously enjoying themselves.
- Informal groupings of chairs in most classrooms.
- Teachers listening. "If you hear their voices going bang-bang all around you, it's the old hand-out school."

GREENVILLE, Miss.

DON'T THROW away those empty gallon jugs that clutter up the kitchen.

Bring them down here on the Mississippi, tie baited hooks to the jug handles and throw them into the river. You may catch up to 100 pounds of catfish per jug.

Experts like Herman Caillouet (left), the champion jug-fisher in the area, toss out 50 or 60 at a clip. On the day these pictures were taken, he caught eight fish—totaling 175 pounds—in 4½ hours.

Watch Those Jugs!

FIRST, he swishes yellow paint inside the jug to make it visible at a distance. Then he corks it tightly, and ties on six feet of line. One or two hooks, baited with beef heart and smeared with fish lure, do the rest.

As the jugs drift along half a dozen miles of river, the big blue "cats" gulp down the hooks. Then bobbing yellow jugs mark "fish on," and Caillouet comes along in his boat to haul aboard the fish and jug. ■

STEP 2: Tie on a strong hook and a sinker to hold it under. Bait? Beef heart.

STEP 3: Toss the baited jug overboard as your boat cruises upstream. Jug floats.

Beauties like this are netted as the jugs spread out. You even get the jugs back.

Can you

Here's a new idea for hand . .

'STOP: DON'T PASS ME!' There's a small child in the road ahead, and this driver is waving a full-arm "flag-down" signal to stop cars behind. Second car tried to pass when she used usual stop signal, but pulled back when "flagged."

● Do YOU ever anger other drivers without meaning to? Signals like these may help.

'CROSS IN FRONT OF ME:' Driver flicks hand across windshield to tell another car (or a pedestrian): "I'll wait while you cross." It's a growing road courtesy.

'THANKS!' Young driver flashes quick salute of thanks to girl in car at left, when she lets him make a left turn in front of her car. Such signals will increase driver courtesy.

Say Thanks?

...signals to promote friendship on the road

AMES, Iowa.

ON A RAIN-SWEPT ROAD the other day, a shiny new car cut sharply in front of an old one—and splashed a shower of mud on the windshield.

In the second car, tempers flared suddenly. Its angry driver raced after the offender.

He was "going to show that fellow" he couldn't cut in like that.

That night, in a junkyard, both cars lay in a heap. And in a hospital nearby four motorists lay critically injured.

• They were victims of highway temper.

• But the tragic part of the story is: no one should have been angry in the first place. For the driver of the shiny car did not MEAN to cut in.

What the other driver did not know was that the car overtaking him had swerved to miss a dog that darted into the road.

If its driver had only been able to signal his apologies, the accident might never have taken place.

Such things have happened to you. You've seen drivers do things that made you angry because they seemed rude. Yet traffic experts are coming to think that these bits of highway rudeness, often, are not intended at all!

Your Car Can't Tip Its Hat!

BECAUSE YOUR automobile has no sense of politeness or "conscience," a group of careful young drivers met here the other day for a special purpose.

They met to recognize a need—and create an entirely new system of hand-signals . . . signals that will help you say, to other drivers, such things as:

- ▶ "I'm sorry."
- ▶ "Thanks for giving me a break."
- ▶ "I know you're trying to pass me on this narrow, curving road. I'll help you pass as soon as there's a safe spot!"

Or, signals that will protect other drivers and help create the friendship that truck drivers (who have their own system of signals) feel for each other.

Signals such as:

▶ "Look out! You're running into trouble." Or—

▶ "Better stop. There's something wrong with your car."

The signals shown on these pages are entirely experimental. They were tried out under the critical eyes of one of America's top safety experts: Prof. A. R. Lauer of Iowa State College.

Also observing were two veterans of the Iowa Highway Patrol, Lieut. Harry Brown and Officer Melvin Howe. Co-operating, too, was the Junior Chamber of Commerce, whose Iowa chapter sent two fine young drivers try the idea.

"We Get Disgusted"

THESE DRIVERS, Gary Hessel, 19, and Darrell Doidge, 18, were two contenders for the Junior Chamber of Commerce safe driving Road-E-O held in Washington, D. C.

The other young drivers—all in their teens or twenties—are affiliated with the Iowa State College Driver Testing Laboratory. They were Charles Schumacher and Chet Collins, of Chicago, and Miss Ann Stacy and Miss Re Lampman, of Ames.

The signals they tried have been reviewed by the National Safety Council, the AAA and six other top traffic experts.

• The National Safety Council summed up the feelings of all: "Anything that promotes more courtesy is good. The experimental signals are interesting and should be given further careful study."

• Commented teen-agers Gary Hessel and Darrell Doidge:

• "We get disgusted when we see older drivers get angry with each other. Usually it's a case of misunderstanding.

• "We feel that courtesy signals will help people get along on the road as well as they do at home or work.

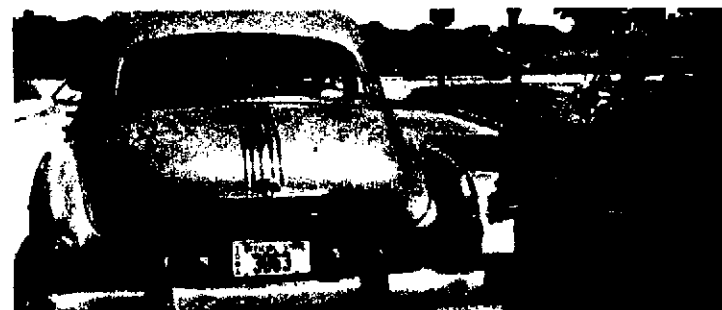

• "You couldn't get along even with your best friend if you never had a chance to say 'I'm sorry,' or 'Thanks!'"

'SLOW IT DOWN:' Lt. Brown shows Prof. Lauer and signal-test group how patrolmen pump hand up and down to warn oncoming cars of danger. Patrolman Mel Howe, in car, shows how hand should be held low.

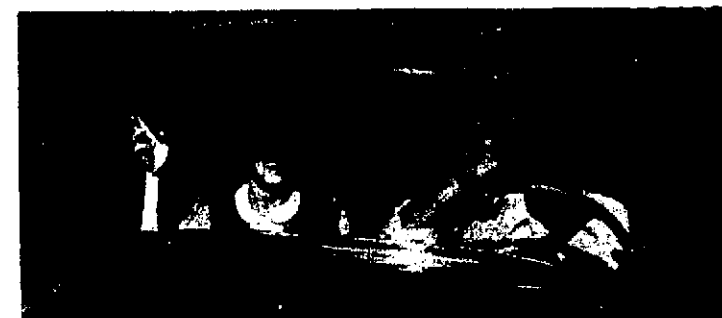

'I'M SORRY, FRIEND!' Even the best drivers now and then annoy others without meaning to. This signal, palm up in a mild shrug, seemed to the observers to convey the idea: "Sorry, I didn't mean to offend you."

'YOU HAVE TROUBLE:' Finger pointing to road means: "Stop and inspect your car." It could indicate a soft tire, a boiling radiator, an open door — or even that a package is about to fall off a truck.

'I'LL HELP YOU PASS:' The test drivers tried this sign (hand slowly wig-wagged back and forth) as one way of saying: "I know you want to pass me and I'll help you pass as soon as the road ahead is safe."

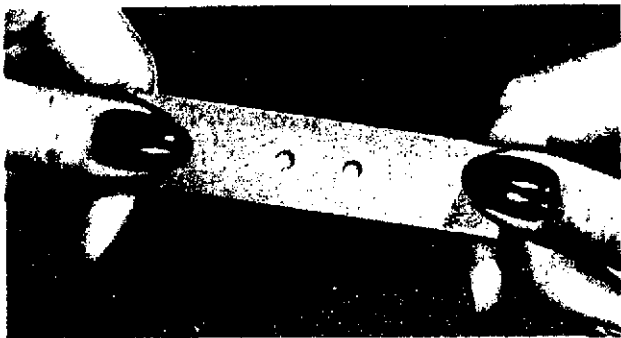

LET YOUR PASSENGER HELP: In this car both young motorists are waving "thanks" to another driver. At times a driver is unable to signal a car on his right, and his passenger can help say "thanks."

WHAT DO YOU THINK of these signals? Send your comments and suggestions to Traffic Editor, PARADE, Chrysler Bldg., 405 Lexington Ave., New York City 17.

HY GARDNER FEATURETTE

GARDNER (on horse) and Gabby Hayes: "my shoe was caught in the stirrup . . ."

WHAT'S SO FUNNY?

... to save you from blushing, I won't mention names

I DON'T like to brag, but I'm probably the only hired hand hereabouts who's ever been thrown from a wooden horse.

Fortunately, Hopalong Cassidy's old pardner, Gabby Hayes, was around to catch me when the heel of my shoe caught on the stirrup. Otherwise I'd have broken into that exclusive circle of folks whose freak accidents are palmed off as humor while they writhe in pain . . .

- Checking through my files I came across many such incidents. I'm going to delete all names so as not to embarrass the folks involved . . .

- In San Francisco, a six-foot bride rushed her five-foot groom to a hospital when he fell and broke a leg while she was trying to carry him over the threshold of their honeymoon house . . .

- In Detroit, an insurance company settled the claim of a woman who sued a store when she sprained her hip while wiggling into a new girdle . . .

Near Indianapolis, a motorcycle scooted off the road and injured a woman picking four-leaf clovers . . .

In Montreal, two teen-agers had to be rushed to a dental clinic. Seems their tooth-braces locked as the result of a too-ardent kiss . . . And in Pennsylvania, a 10-week-old baby wrecked the family car when he hit his mother (who was driving) on the head with a nursing bottle. Shows how dangerous it is to hit the bottle . . .

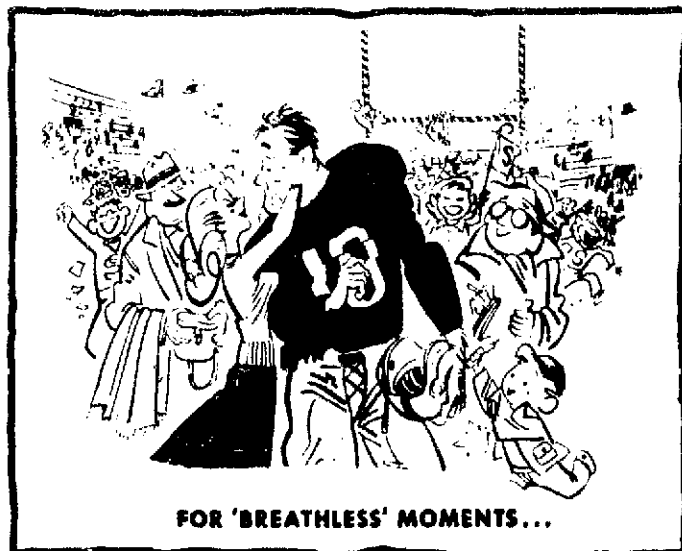

In Macon, a female wrestler and a roller skater both broke their legs, decided to get married and honeymoon while their bones were being set.

A Guilty Thumb

IN FLORIDA, a tourist, stopping suddenly to give a policeman a lift, smashed into another car, broke his arm and was given a ticket for reckless driving by the cop whose thumb caused the mishap . . . In Minneapolis, a woman tried to fix a washing machine with what she thought was a pin. It was a stick of dynamite.

A Toronto housewife climbed a rickety ladder to avoid a mouse, lost her balance, fell, and got burned on a hot stove. She frightened the family dog, so he bit her.

How to prove to yourself Luckies are made better—to taste cleaner, fresher, smoother

Strip the paper from a Lucky by carefully tearing down the seam from end to end. Be sure it's from a newly opened pack, and that you don't dig into the tobacco. Then gently lift out the tobacco.

Here's why Luckies taste cleaner: You can see that Luckies hold together without crumbling—without loose ends to get in your mouth and spoil the taste. Lucky Strike remains a perfect cylinder of clean tobacco—round, firm and fully packed.

Here's why Luckies taste fresher: Note how free Luckies are from air spaces—those "hot spots" that give you a hot, harsh taste. Luckies' long strands of fresh, good-tasting tobacco give you a fresh, smooth smoke.

Here's why Luckies taste smoother: L.S./M.F.T., Lucky Strike means fine tobacco—fine, light, naturally mild tobacco. So, for a smoke that's cleaner, fresher, smoother, for tobacco that's truly mild, for a cigarette that tastes better... make your next carton Lucky Strike!

FOR A CLEANER, FRESHER, SMOOTHER SMOKE...

Be Happy-Go LUCKY!

Swathed in layers of spider webs, this tree stands on a lonely ridge in the Himalayas, 6,000 feet above sea level.

Cloud Caught in a Tree...

LIKE AN atomic cloud, this strange tree looms up on a ridge above the village of Chandag in northern India.

The "cloud" is a thick layer of spider webs spun over a "shilling" tree, a rare species found only in that region.

Villagers say the spiders (ordinary house variety) began weaving the web in early spring. By late August, even fierce storms hadn't torn the webs, and the tree was as healthy as ever. ■
